MRS. HALL RELEASED UNDER $15,000 BAIL FOR FALL GRAND JURY

Court Says No Great Evidence or Presumption of Guilt Was Established.

PROSECUTOR HIDES HIS CASE

WIDOW GOES HOME SMILING

Moore Names Senator Simpson to Handle the Prosecution—Charges Will Be Pressed.

Special to The New York Times.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 30.—Chief Justice William Gummere of the New Jersey Supreme Court released Mrs. Frances S. Hall in bail of $15,000 today, holding that no "great evidence or presumption of guilt" had been established by Prosecutor Francis Bergen of Somerset County. Under New Jersey law "great evidence or presumption of guilt" must exist to warrant holding a prisoner without bail.

Prosecutor Bergen, who had previously insisted that the great urgency of the case justified the arrest of Mrs. Hall at midnight for crimes four years old, offered no urgent reason for keeping Mrs. Hall in jail. He declined to offer to the Court the new evidence which is said to break the alibi of Mrs. Hall and to show that on the night of Sept. 14, 1922, she took some part in the murder of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills at the Phillips farm near New Brunswick.

Wants Evidence Kept Secret.

Explaining that he would rather permit the release of Mrs. Hall on bail than reveal the State's new evidence, Mr. Bergen said:

"I do not want to take the responsibility of consenting to bail and at the same time do not want too strongly to oppose bail."

In the afternoon it was announced that Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, who started the new investigation of the Hall-Mills case, had superseded Prosecutor Bergen by causing the appointment of State Senator Alexander Simpson to handle the case for the State.

Mrs. Hall had no trouble in obtaining the $15,000 bail—$7,500 for each murder charged. At 7:45 o'clock tonight she left her room in the Somerset County Jail here and went back to her home.

A report circulated tonight that Mrs. Hall and Timothy N. Pfeiffer, her attorney, had left her New Brunswick home by a rear door and had taken a train at 9.22 o'clock for New York was found to be without foundation. At 10:30 Mrs. Hall came to the door of her house and bade good-night to Mrs. Edwin Carpender, her cousin, who had been with her all evening. The person from the Hall household who did leave on the 9:22 o'clock train was Mrs. David Murray, a relative of Mrs. Hall who had been staying there for several days.

When the new Grand Jury is sworn in on the third Tuesday in September, if Prosecutor Bergen carries out his intention made known tonight, the evidence against Mrs. Hall will be put before the Grand Jurors for a first degree murder indictment. Defense attorneys fully expect Senator Simpson, the special prosecutor, to push the charges vigorously. Mrs. Hall will take the stand in her own defense if an indictment is returned and a trial held.

She Takes Release Calmly.

Mrs. Hall received the news of her release with her usual equanimity. The stoicism which has supported her through four arduous years deserted her for a moment, however, when she saw a great throng of townspeople, automobile tourists, photographers and newspaper men waiting for her in front of the jail. She flinched for a time.

Finally, after conferring with her counsel, she decided to face the cameras in the hope that, after one great photographic orgy, they would cease to follow her. She posed patiently according to instructions, looking this way and that. When smiles were ordered, she supplied them. Hundreds of stills and a great footage of films were taken. At one time when the crowd pressed forward, in spite of the Sheriff's order to stand back, the accused woman laughed.

Continuing his policy of silence, Prosecutor Bergen refused to explain the necessity for the midnight arrest of William Phillips, the reformed burglar, whose story contradicts the alibi of Mrs. Hall.

Mrs. Hall's story was that at about 2 o'clock on the morning after the murder she and her brother, Willie Stevens, started out to search for the missing rector, returning at 3:30 o'clock. Phillips, a night watchman since his reform, said he saw Mrs. Hall drive home at 2:10 o'clock that morning and that she was not accompanied by Willie Stevens.

The Phillips story, if true, would show that Mrs. Hall did not begin her search for the rector at 2 o'clock, but that she actually completed her night's mission before that hour. The return at 2 o'clock, according to the Phillips story, fits in with the State's theory that Mrs. Hall was a party to the murder, although it is not contended that she fired the well-aimed bullets which killed the pair.

The story of Phillips, however, was available to the State four years ago,

ALBERT B. CUMMINS,
United States Senator From Iowa, Who Died Suddenly Yesterday.

SENATOR CUMMINS DIES SUDDENLY AT 76

HAD BEEN IN GOOD HEALTH

Was Writing His Memoirs and Displayed Vivacious Spirits at Dinner Wednesday.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 30.—Senator Albert B. Cummins, one of the most distinguished figures Iowa has given to public life, died at his home here today at 4:15 P. M., succumbing suddenly to a heart attack which he had fought on even terms for thirty-six hours. He was 76 years of age.

The Senator, in better health and spirits than he had been for many months, had been engaged since his return from Washington in writing his autobiography, in which he purposed to incorporate the records of his observations during his many years in public life. He worked on the autobiography until late Wednesday afternoon, and in the evening as a dinner guest at the home of B. Frank Kauffman, a banker, behaved with unusual vivacity and spoke with enthusiasm of his book.

Early Thursday morning the Senator suffered a slight heart attack at the home of his sisters, the Misses Margaret and Anne Cummins, with whom he was making his home for the Summer. When they reached his bedside he compalined of acute indigestion, but physicians found the Senator suffering from his fourth attack of angina pectoris in two years. This attack did not appear so severe as former ones, but the others had served to wear down his resistance.

Suffers a Relapse.

All day Thursday he retained consciousness, and athough his physicians regarded his illness with gravity because of his weakened condition, he held his own throughout the day. During the night, with doctors constantly at his bedside, he rested well and this morning was still within rallying distance of recovery when he suffered a relapse at 1:30 P. M.

Although Senator Cummins retained consciousness and clarity until he died, he refrained from speaking, obeying the instructions of the physicians to conserve his energy. He made no utterance during the final hours of his illness.

The death of Senator Cummins may result in the return to the Senate of Smith W. Brookhart a year earlier than would otherwise be the case if he is elected in November over Claude R. Porter, the Democratic nominee.

In the case of a vacancy in the office of Senator occurring while the Senate is in session or when it will convene prior to the next general election the vacancy must be filled by the Governor. These are the circumstances brought about by the sudden death of Senator Cummins. A general election is to be held in November, but the Senator elected will not take office until March 4, 1927, and the session of

TRAILED TO AN APARTMENT

CHILDREN AID CAPTURE

A plucky truck driver frustrated an attempt to seize his truckload of twenty barrels of alcohol at 171st Street and Webster Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday by shooting two of the three hold-up men. By a trail of blood the trio were easily traced to their hiding place and captured without a struggle. Two are in the Fordham Hospital. The third, who was not wounded, is in the Bathgate Avenue Police Station. All are charged with felonious assault and robbery.

The wounded men and their companion had taken refuge in the third floor apartment of Mrs. Solomon Schecter at 1,461 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, where they had found only Mrs. Schecter's two daughters, Anne, 15 years old, and Bertha, 12 years old. Anne fainted and was revived by her younger sister. The thieves offered to pay the girls to hide them, made the frightened sisters bring the wounded men water, and used bed linens and even the girls' dresses to stanch the flow of blood from their wounds.

Neither the police nor officials of the Arrow Service Corporation, at 15 Park Row, which owned the truck, would reveal the identity of the courageous truck driver. Detectives of the Bathgate Avenue Station told newspaper men to call him "Sam Markowitz," saying that to publish his name and address would mean that he would be "bumped off before morning" by friends of the hold-up men, whom he identified after their capture.

Crowds Fill the Sidewalks.

Although the sidewalks at the scene of the hold-up were well filled with people, including babies in arms and in their carriages, witnesses, most of whom fled for cover, seemed uncertain whether the hold-up men had actually fired at the truck driver. "Markowitz," however, said they did. He admitted he fired "before they could draw." No weapons were found, however, either upon the thieves or at the scene of the shooting. Mrs. Schecter's apartment also was searched in vain for weapons.

The wounded men said they were John Russo, 27 years old, of 235 Mulberry Street and James Rinaldi, 24 years old, of 1,060 Brooklyn Avenue, Brooklyn. Their companion said he was Frederick Pellechio, 33 years old, of 178 Chrystie Street. Russo received a scalp wound, a bullet in his right chest and a wound on the middle finger of his left hand. Rinaldi was shot through the outer wall of the abdomen. Both are expected to recover.

The police said Pellechio had served terms in Sing Sing for burglary and safe-blowing and that Russo and Rinaldi had been arrested on a previous occasion for holding up a truck. The trio are suspected of having held up a truck covering the same route Thursday, when twenty-five barrels of alcohol were stolen.

Driver Went Prepared.

"Markowitz" was delivering the alcohol from the Federal Products Company, at 70 West Street, to the National Distributing Service, at 2,645 Webster Avenue. Both concerns have alcohol permits and the truck driver had a permit to carry a pistol. The driver had been held up before, he told the police, and had lost his truck. That was four years ago. He had heard, however, of the Thursday hold-

Britain to Send Commission To Study Labor Methods Here

LONDON, July 30.—The British Government has decided to send a small commission, composed of leading employers of labor and workers' representatives, to study industrial relationships in the United States, according to the Daily Mail.

The commission, which will leave in September, also will include one or two Government officials. Its sole object is to investigate methods of maintenance of close relationship between employers and employed in the United States.

TO PUT OLD MASTERS BENEATH THE X-RAY

TO FIX TESTS FOR FRAUDS

Habits of Underpainting, He Says, Once Found Will Aid Discovery of Forgeries.

Alan Borroughs of the Fogg Museum, Harvard University, will sail on Monday morning on La Savoie to X-ray 200 masterpieces at the Louvre and the Berlin Museum through an arrangement entered into between those institutions and Harvard University.

Paintings by Raphael, Velasquez, Rembrandt, da Vinci, Titian, Rubens, Correggio and other famous masters will be photographed to establish X-ray evidence of their styles of painting, which may be used later in tests to discriminate true works of old masters from copies by their students and from forgeries.

At the Fogg Museum, Harvard University, photographs of more than 300 paintings have detected modern retouching or repainting, and discriminated infallibly between modern and ancient paintings. What appeared, for example, to be an excellent fourteenth century Sienese painting was discovered to be a modern forgery. This painting now hangs at the Metropolitan Museum of Art as an example of remarkable forgery and as a warning to connoisseurs and collectors.

Not Seeking Forgeries.

"We do not expect to find any forgeries at the Louvre or the Berlin Museum," said Mr. Borroughs, who will be accompanied by his wife, Molly Luce, the painter. "That is not the purpose of the trip. The great value of the X-ray is in showing the character of the underpainting or the preliminary work done by the painter before he finishes the surface. The preparatory strokes show faintly in the X-ray pictures. The painting may be made over a sketch or over a rough draft. The tricks of the painter in his approach to the work are detailed in the X-ray pictures.

"It is necessary, however, to have X-ray photographs of a number of paintings by one master and to study them with great care before the characteristics of his style are established. We have made enough X-ray photographs of Rembrandts to establish standards for judging his work and for discriminating it from members of his school. In the case of Rubens, the study may be particularly difficult, as it is well known that the painter worked in cooperation with many pupils. His brush-strokes and theirs may be found intermingled in the same picture. It may require the study of a great many pictures to disentangle the style of Rubens from that of others of his school.

"The X-ray has absolutely no damaging effect on paintings. I would consider myself particularly lucky if I had a chance to X-ray Mona Lisa. She is so popular that it may be considered inexpedient to remove her from the walls for this purpose.

"I will be permitted to work at times when the public is not admitted to the galleries. I expect to X-ray about 150 pictures in Paris and fifty or more in Berlin. If the painting is large, it is necessary to photograph it in sections, each X-ray picture being 14 inches by 17 inches. With good conditions I can photograph about seven paintings in a day.

X-Ray Exposes Copyist.

"The X-rays have an amazing power to expose the hesitating work of a copyist, as opposed to the bold, free strokes of the master. The great painter is usually translating on to the canvas a thing which exists clearly in his imagination. The copyist or pupil is painfully working up a canvas to make it look like another canvas or sketch. The pupil keeps changing his lines and adding little touches. The master usually paints the outline of a cheek, for instance, with a few strokes which give him exactly what he wants."

The X-ray's great ability to detect modern forgeries is due to the fact that the old painters used mineral colors, which stop the X-rays, so that the painting registers itself as a shadowgraph, while in modern paintings vegetable colors, transparent to the X-rays, are used. Moreover, ancient paintings, having lost their oils by volatilization, are so condensed that they stop X-rays.

The X-ray method will be extremely valuable also in detecting fake furniture, according to Mr. Burroughs.

FINDS NO DELIBERATE FRAUD

SEES TRAGEDY IN LOSS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—After an investigation covering five years, the Interstate Commerce Commission made public today a report severely criticizing officials of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company for the part they took in financing the so-called Western Pacific enterprise, conceived in 1905 to provide an outlet from Salt Lake City to the Pacific Coast for the Gould system of railroads. The Commission named George J. Gould and E. T. Jeffery as among those prominent in the ill-fated promotion which wrecked the Denver & Rio Grande and rendered worthless capital stock of that railroad with a par value of $87,775,670.

The commission stated that prior to the promotion the stock of the railroad held an investment standing and had been widely distributed throughout this country and Europe, the investments in many instances representing the savings of individuals for years, put aside to safeguard families against the consequences of illness or death.

Sees Tragedy in Loss.

"To them the loss of such investments spells tragedy," the commission said. "Letters in our files bear witness to the fact that many such tragedies have followed in the wake of the new Denver's insolvency. That insolvency is not shown to have been brought about for the personal profits of the new Denver's officials, but the responsibility for the ill-advised commitment of the new Denver from which it resulted is none the less theirs."

The commission did not go in detail into the question of the effect that rivalry between the Gould interests, which controlled the Missouri Pacific, and the late E. H. Harriman, who controlled the Union Pacific and had obtained a link for his system connecting the Ogden, Utah, gateway with the Pacific, may have had upon the ambitious plans of the promoters of the Western Pacific. But in one section of the report reference is made to the reported ambitions of the late Jay Gould and the competition between the Gould lines and the Harriman system.

"The statement frequently made in the public press," the commission said, "to the effect that Gould undertook the promotion of the Western Pacific in deference to the wishes of his father, Jay Gould, who had cherished the ambition of connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans by a chain of railroads controlled by him, is not proved or disproved by the record in this proceeding.

Discusses Gould Motives.

"If the motive animating Gould's effort was indeed the establishment of a complete transcontinental chain of railroads under domination of the Gould interests it seems clear, nevertheless, that the construction of the Western Pacific as a step in this direction was precipitated by the Union Pacific's acquisition of control of the three railroads connecting the Ogden gateway with the Pacific Coast and by the further fact that the Union Pacific was thereby placed in a position to divert and did, in fact, take steps to divert traffic to its own lines which had been enjoyed theretofore by the Denver companies and the Missouri Pacific. Some efforts were made to negotiate a satisfactory traffic contract with the Union Pacific covering

Coolidge Won't Lift Arms Embargo Now, But Will Await Developments in Mexico

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 30.—President Coolidge, saying that this Government has been studying for a long time the question of lifting the embargo on shipments of arms to Mexico, let it be known today that there would be no action on this subject at present.

The attitude of the Government, it is explained, is that the embargo should be lifted in due time. The State Department has made a thorough study of the question and the data on the subject have been prepared for consideration by the President. It is understood that the decision to lift the embargo depends greatly upon developments in Mexico, and that the American Government is waiting only for the moment to raise the ban when it can be done with safety to the Mexican Government and people. This Government feels that there should be a free movement of arms across the border when peace exists and no revolutions appear likely to disturb the Mexican Government.

Pressure on the Administration to lift the embargo has been very great, it is said, coming from Americans and Mexican residents. Much of the pressure exerted here has been from American ammunition makers and therefore the agitation has not greatly impressed itself upon the Government.

President Coolidge offered no explanation for the Government's attitude. The only statement offered in his behalf was that he and Secretary Kellogg had made a long study of the question, but that there was no expectation that there would be favorable action in the immediate future.

OUR RUBBER BUYERS WIN PRICE VICTORY

NO CHANGE IN PRODUCTION

British Fought to Limit Results Under Stevenson Plan—Londoners Cheer Result.

LONDON, July 30.—American rubber consumers won their price war against the British producing interests today. They won it by only the thousandth part of a penny, but even if it had been but a millionth it would still have been sufficient for their purposes.

The result means that the quota of rubber produced in the British Dominions for export at the minimum rate of duty will be maintained for the next three months at 100 per cent. Had the average price of rubber during the last quarter dropped below a shilling and ninepence a pound, production would have been reduced 20 per cent. under the Stevenson restriction scheme.

Had today's quotation been less than a shilling and eightpence, it would have been just sufficient to reduce the quarterly average. As a matter of fact the market closed at a shilling and eight and one-eighth pence, making the average quarterly price a shilling and 9.0017 pence. Strenuous efforts had been made by the producing interests during recent weeks to force prices down, but the consumers had made it evident that they were able to absorb the rubber thrown on the market at a price just sufficient to maintain the desired average. Consequently there was no attempt today to flood the market.

There was great interest, however, in the situation, and considerable betting went on in the crowd which had gathered in the street at noon to await the final quotations. When the whistle was blown at 12 o'clock there were loud shouts from the Stock Exchange of "No change!" There was an answering cheer from some of those in the street.

POPE PIUS RESISTS INTERDICT DEMANDS

GREAT PRESSURE ON HIM

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, JULY 30.—Despite the Pope's disinclination to take any extreme measures on Mexico, the majority of high Vatican officials are almost unanimously of the opinion that strong action is necessary to focus the attention of the whole world on the plight of Catholics in Mexico and to make the Mexican Government realize that if it wishes to continue in its present course it will have to fight the public opinion of the whole world.

The idea of interdicting Mexico has been pressed upon the Pope from authoritative quarters from time to time. Pius, however, who by nature is adverse to extreme decisions, has refused to give way to the suggestion till all avenues of persuasion and conciliation have been tried and found unavailing.

The difference of opinion between the Pope and his advisers reached a pronounced stage as long ago as the last consistory, when, as will be remembered, the Pontiff in his allocation referred to the situation in Mexico as being a disgrace to any civilized nation. The tendency in the Vatican is to consider the persecution of Catholics in Mexico as a defiance and a challenge to the Holy See which should have been met with firmness and decision. On that occasion also, however, the Pope was in favor of temporizing and contented himself with sharply stigmatizing the Mexican Government instead of adopting those measures which his advisers considered immediately necessary.

He hoped his stinging words would induce the Mexican Government to mend its ways.

Want Pope to Act on Sunday.

The order by the Archbishop of Mexico to abandon all religious services is declared by some here to amount in its practical results to de facto interdiction. An official interdiction, these maintain, would therefore not materially in any way change the situation of the Catholic with respect to the Church, but would have the effect of drawing the attention of the whole world to the anti-Catholic policy followed by the Mexican Government.

It is on account of the strong position in which they find themselves, owing to these facts, that the most extreme of the Pope's advisers still hope they may be able to induce him to decree an interdiction of Mexico on Sunday, when they believe such a measure would have its greatest effect in its coincidence with the prayers recited throughout the whole world for the Mexican Catholics.

The Vatican view is that conflict between the Church and State in Mexico has been brought about by the law which prohibits the clergy from officiating at divine services without first obtaining the Government's authority. This authorization can be obtained through local Governors only if the priests are ready to submit to many restrictions.

Among these is that they must be subject to the control of a board of MEXICO CITY, July 30.—The first bloodshed in the conflict between the Government and the Catholic Church occurred tonight when the police fired upon a crowd of communicants who refused to leave the Church of San Rafael. Nine persons were wounded.

Women on the roof of the edifice hurled rocks down on the heads of the police. Firemen rushed to the scene and finally quelled the rioting, dispersing the people with heavy streams of water.

There were reports of rioting around churches in various parts of the city during the night. Ten churches, however, were peacefully taken in charge by Government officials.

Attorney General Attacked.

MEXICO CITY, July 30 (AP).—Crowds stoned Attorney General Ortega and a party of Department of Justice officials tonight while the officials were closing the annexes of St. Catherine's Church.

The officials took refuge in one of the church buildings, where they remained for a while. Then they forced their way out by discharging their pistols in the air and using whips and canes upon the attacking party.

At this moment firemen arrived and turned the hose upon the people, causing them to flee. The officials closed and sealed the annexes before they departed. No one is reported to have been injured in the mêlée.

Firemen with hose also dispersed a crowd which was evincing anger at policemen who were detaining two women discovered attempting to carry away a picture of a saint from a Catholic church in one of the slum sections of the city.

The crowd threw stones and various missiles at the firemen, but the powerful streams of water scored a quick victory.

There were other disturbances in different parts of Mexico City tonight when people gathered around Catholic churches clashed with police guarding them.

The firemen dashed from one end of the city to the other in response to reports of trouble. In several instances they played their hose upon crowds in combat with the police, drenching the crowds and thus bringing about their dispersal.

Worshipers at the Catholic Church of Santa Julia in Tucuba, a Mexico City suburb, became excited when two Aldermen and the Municipal Secretary came to the church to discuss with the priests the delivery of the church to a municipal committee tomorrow. They massed around the officials and began stoning them, preventing their entry to the edifice.

MEXICO CITY, July 30.—While the last services were being held today in Catholic churches throughout Mexico, President Calles took an important step in the conflict between Church and State when he ordered Mgr. Tito Crespi, in charge of the Apostolic Legation here, to leave Mexico within twenty-four hours.

On the eve of the enforcement of the Government's religious regulations, to which the Church so strongly objects, both sides remained firm, President Calles basing his determination to enforce the decrees upon the whole machinery of the State, and the Catholics resting their hopes in Divine help and peaceful protest to save their religion from the peril in which they believe it to be.

Troops are held in readiness to put down any forceful resistance against the law, and the Government has ordered them to shoot all who resist.

German Perfects Color Film Process Obviating Use of Screens and Filters

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 30.—A process for producing movies in natural colors without greater expense or more trouble than in black and white effects has been perfected by a German photochemist, Professor Emil Wolff-Heide, who has labored many years on a theory which is a departure from the methods generally used.

With an ordinary camera and a monochromatic film specially treated by the Heide process, a film showing every shade of tone from the top to the bottom of the spectrum is obtained which can be projected with an ordinary projector.

Neither on the camera nor on the projector are screens or filters used. Color fringes, which are the bugaboo of all systems where filters are used, are unknown in Professor Heide's system. The films run double the ordinary speed, requiring thirty-two exposures per second instead of sixteen.

Professor Heide has built a machine which automatically stains alternate frames of the negative film red and yellow. Each machine is capable of turning out 400 meters of film per hour with a total operation cost of one-tenth of a cent per meter.

After development, the same as that used for black and white negatives, ordinary prints are made which are tinted and toned according to another Heide process. All the operations are as simple as the work of tinting and toning now done in movie laboratories.

The results produced portray perfect coloring, even to a sharp definition between shades of the same colors near the short ray end of the spectrum.

A test film specially shown to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent covers a wide range of lighting conditions both artificial and natural, as well as in various colors, all of which were reproduced with remarkable accuracy.

Judging from the simplicity of the new method and the excellence of the results, the Heide method promises to solve the difficulties of this interesting and useful field of motion picture photography.

Experts such as Professor Miethe of the Polytechnical University here herald the new process as one of the greatest advances in photochemical research in a decade.

New Rochelle Girl, With Scant Resources, Will Try English Channel Swim Tomorrow

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DOVER, England, July 30. — Two lonely women in an unknown land, faced with the problem of making arrangements for their attempt to swim the English Channel within a few days, handicapped by lack of funds, is the position Miss Clarabelle Barrett of New Rochelle and her only companion and friend Miss G. B. Leister of Baltimore find themselves in here.

They are waiting impatiently until Sunday morning, when Miss Barrett hopes to achieve her ambition of being the first woman to swim the English Channel. Miss Barrett has been from the first so convinced of her ability to achieve this almost impossible feat that, although she is not blessed by an abundance of wealth, her family and friends rallied loyally around her, lending her small sums, sufficient, it was thought to cover all expenses.

Miss Barrett arrived in England on July 9 with a letter of introduction to the British Olympic swimming trainer, Walter Brickett. She saw him at Brighton, where, under his critical eye, she made many practice swims which Brickett considered excellent exhibitions.

Then the two women arrived at Dover, ambitious but without a large bank account. They expressed surprise when given a rough estimate of the cost of the swim. First there was the cost of the accompanying tug. The lowest quotation for one swim was $350, an impossible outlay. A well-known English swimmer, who manages channel swims, telegraphed for $50, traveling and hotel expenses when his services were sought.

Miss Barrett felt that their slender resources would not stand the strain, and faced with this difficulty they approached the Dover pilot, Captain Learmont. Captain Learmont is now trying to obtain a motor boat and an attendant boat with a crew for $75.

The questions of hotel expense and food for the swim, advice on the tides and Channel conditions are now occupying the attention of the two women. Miss Barrett's swim, if made, will be carried out under conditions very different from those of other swimmers with their professional trainers and attendants and without financial worries.

In response to an appeal, Brickett sacrificed a week's work and came to Dover, taking full charge without pay. When interviewed he said: "I cannot leave such a splendid woman in difficulty. She may surprise all. I consider her good for twenty hours." Brickett is arranging to have the champion British swimmers accompany Miss Barrett.

gan closing and sealing church buildings not actually used as houses of worship, such as the offices of Archbishops and Bishops. The storerooms for church treasures were also closed.

Many churches suspended services this afternoon, although the hour for suspension was midnight tonight. Part of Mexico City Cathedral was closed this afternoon.

Crespi Will Come to New Jersey.

Mgr. Crespi has been in charge of the Apostolic Legation since Archbishop Caruana, the Papal Nuncio, was expelled a few weeks ago.

President Calles gave him twenty-four hours to leave, but when the Italian Legation intervened in his behalf the time was doubled.

Mgr. Crespi will leave tomorrow for Linden, N. J., to visit relatives before going to Rome.

The instructions from President Calles ordering him to leave described the prelate's presence as "inconvenient."

Mgr. Crespi denied tonight that he had participated in the religious conflict, which, he said, had been dealt with by the Mexican Episcopacy.

Prelate Is an American Citizen.

The charges against Mgr. Crespi are not known, but it is rumored that he is accused of counseling the boycott.

He is an Italian by birth, but an American citizen.

The last services in the Catholic churches of Mexico before the Government's religious regulations go into force tomorrow were held today.

Throughout the whole republic churches were thronged all day and in many places pilgrims went barefoot to shrines or their local churches to beseech the divine aid in the struggle over their faith.

Other banks report strong signs of withdrawal of Catholic accounts.

Senator and Judge Killed in Row.

Senator Hernandez Galvan and Judge Jesus Salcedo were killed last night during a political row in a barroom here where a group of prominent politicians were drinking and discussing the present crisis.

Senator Galvan was hit by eight bullets and Judge Salcedo was shot through the head. A newspaper vendor was wounded by a stray bullet.

More than twenty-five shots were fired and the barroom was bespattered with blood.

The bodies were still in the barroom pending an order from a Judge for their removal when the widow of Judge Salcedo arrived on the scene with her two children. They all became hysterical.

This was the first trouble here over the recent election for Senators and Congressmen and it is expected that it will be followed by other killings.

Arrests of Catholics Go On.

Arrests of Catholics still continue in Mexico City. The second directorate of the Young Men's Catholic Association has been put in jail. A third directorate is now functioning, and it is stated that the society has arranged for twelve directorates to take the places of others as fast as they are arrested.

Distribution of the circulars requesting Catholics to enforce the boycott still continues and arrests are made daily.

Several priests who appeared before the Attorney General to explain their failure to register at the City Hall stated that they did not disobey the law as they thought it was the duty of the Bishops to register all priests.

Agrarians Oppose Labor.

What action the Confederation of Labor, which supports the Government's religious policy, will take outside the cities and towns of the republic is not known. It has a few followers but many enemies in these places.

The agrarians are bitter enemies of the confederation, especially in the State of Puebla, where General José Maria Sanchez, a strong supporter of General Alvaro Obregon, and Soto y Gama, known as the first agrarian in Mexico and one of the advisers of General Emiliano Zapata when he organized the famous Zapatistas, have complete domination.

These two leaders of the agrarians are bitter enemies of the labor leader, Luis Morones, and are continually working to prevent the growth of the labor unions in the agricultural districts.

Although the confederation dominates in Mexico City and the Federal District, yet in other cities where there are large cotton mills employing thousands the federation has made but slight headway.

Many Outside Confederation.

Another group, known as the United Workers, has control of the majority of the mill workers in the republic.

The strongest organizations of skilled labor, whose unions were formed a year ago, are not affiliated with the federation, namely, those of the railway engineers, conductors, dispatchers and other railway employes.

These unions are entirely separated from the confederation, and within the last few days have threatened to call a general strike as a protest against interference by the confederation in railway matters.

If the unions hold together they may be effective, but the question is, Can the labor leaders persuade Catholic members of the unions to give up their allegiance to the Church?

The Indians and Mexicans who are part Indian put their Church first. Working-class mothers also are devout Catholics, no matter what attitude the fathers take.

Labor May Decide Issue.

The Confederation, however, may decide the outcome of the present conflict. It supports President Calles, and in Mexico City and the Federal District it is very strong. Practically all the employes of general industries are members.

Pressmen and reporters on the local dailies are also members. In fact the hold of the unions on the press is so strong that the greater part of news opposed to labor is thrown out. It practically controls the press.

But the question arises, will Catholics in the unions go against their religion? Ninety per cent. of Mexicans, and practically all the working classes, have been Catholics from childhood.

Now, that the unions have obtained a hold on the sympathies of the laboring classes through extensive promises of better conditions what the Catholics will do is causing speculation. If its discipline is maintained, the Federal Army can be counted on to support President Calles, but if one or two prominent Generals should revolt there would be trouble for the President.

With the support of both labor and the Federal Army he appears strong enough to weather any internal storm that may arise now and the only possible danger to President Calles's Administration would seem to be a revolt financed outside the republic.

Orders were issued today by the Government under which it will take over all houses attached to churches, priests' houses and other church property. These will be used by officers.

Officials of the Government stated that the churches would not be closed, but that the Government would provide caretakers for the buildings to protect the property. The people may enter to worship whenever they desire.

Government agents in all parts of the republic have been notified to take over the churches tomorrow.

The Attorney General, in a circular issued today, states that the penal laws which affect religious matters are effective tomorrow. He warns that the laws must be obeyed strictly.

A second circular states that the Government officials must make inventories of all church property. Personal effects may be taken out of the churches, but everything owned by the church must remain.

Police Ordered for Extra Work.

Secretary of the Interior Tejeda declared today that the Government would maintain order in the crisis.

"We will use force wherever necessary," he asserted. "The Government has taken precautions to prevent any disorderly acts against our institutions and has formed a firm resolution to eliminate once and for all the resistance of Catholic agitators who unpatriotically oppose the Government."

Orders have been issued to General Cruse, Inspector of Police, to have all mounted men ready on Saturday and Sunday for extra work in case they are needed to prevent disorder.

The Federal District branch of the Confederation of Labor has sent a circular to employes of the Government inviting them to attend the parade to be held on Sunday in support of the Government. The circular states:

"Employes of the Government departments should attend this manifestation.

"So that we may know who is assisting at this manifestation we have resolved to take the names of all present, and at the same time make a note of those absent.

"All who fail to comply with this order will be reported."

Dismissal of Catholics Asked.

A group of women employes has sent the circular to a local daily for publication to show the compulsion used against them. The women say they are opposed to the parade.

The President of the Confederation of Labor has requested President Calles to dismiss instantly all employes of the Government who profess the Catholic religion.

José Maria Faran, who wounded a General in Puebla yesterday, was killed while being transferred from the military prison to the city jail. Friends of Faran in an attempt to rescue the prisoner opened fire on the automobile carrying the prisoners and his guards. Faran was killed by the bullets of his friends, who fled in a large touring car. No guards were wounded.

The dispute between Faran and the General arose when the General demanded to know why the grocer was displaying a Catholic poster.

When President Coolidge's statement denying the lifting of the arms embargo at this time was shown to Ambassador Sheffield today, he declined to comment.

Mr. Sheffield left Mexico City during the day to spend a few days at Cuernavaca. He is expected to return on Monday night. Mr. Sheffield will be out of the city during the time when excitement is likely to be high in the Federal District. The American Embassy will be in the care of Secretary Lane until the return of the Ambassador.

Arrested for Taking Property.

The police have arrested two women charged with taking away church objects to be hidden. The Rev. Macias Flores Espinosa, of the Church of the Virgin of Lourdes, has been arrested charged with the removal of sacred objects, among them a statue of the Virgin with thirty-two gold images attached.

Three were wounded in a fight near the Church of Santa Catarina that arose from a religious discussion. A woman wounded three men with a dagger. They are in a hospital.

A telegram has been received by a member of the staff of President Calles from General Juan Amaya, who reports that a woman tried to assassinate him.

The General says he was visiting the cathedral in Puebla when Señora Pina Topa, crying, "In the name of free, sensible women, take this, hypocrite," struck the General in the face, causing his glasses to fall to the floor of the cathedral. The General adds that the woman escaped.

Federal forces were ordered today to guard the Congressional Building to avert possible trouble between Congressmen-elect. The killing of Senator Galvan and Judge Salcedo last night caused the authorities to institute these precautions.

Bishops Issue Statement.

The Episcopacy, in a statement today, declared:

"The whole world should know why we have suspended public worship throughout the republic. It was not meant as a punishment of the nation, but was ordered because of the impossibility of our submitting to the demands of the Government against our religion and our consciences.

"The Holy Father has approved our conduct and the Mexican people understand the necessity for the means we have adopted. We are tranquil before God and our people. It is our duty to defend the honor of the Church and of Mexican Catholics.

"The charges of our persecutors have had little effect on the Mexican people. But they might change the opinion of friendly nations who know less about the situation here. We must, threfore, speak to foreign countries, because here our words are absolutely stifled."

Replies to Labor Charges.

Replying to the charges of the "Crom," or the Federal District section of the Confederation of Labor, the statement says:

"We wish serenely to answer the assertion of the Crom that the Government does not presume to attack the beliefs of any one, but desires only to compel obedience to the laws regulating cults, laws which are naturally the same for all creeds.

"In the first place, we can demonstrate with a hundred facts, as well as by the declarations of President Calles, that the intention of the Government is to destroy the Church by law and without law. In the second place, it is impossible to respect creeds and sustain at the same time the oppressive laws against our religious liberty.

"The laws in question were made by an armed group and are wholly anti-religious. They contain precepts such as the prohibition of religious teachings in schools.

"In the third place, textually, the Constitution makes no distinction between different religions. The facts show that only the Catholic religion is being persecuted. Meanwhile the ridiculous farce of a schismatic religion, which was born a year ago, still has the protection of the Government.

"In its first pastoral letter, the Episcopate stated with finality that it did not seek pre-eminence as a religious body, but simply and sincerely desired that religious liberty which all churches now enjoy in the United States.

"The Crom also insinuates that the boycott is a plan to force an uprising. The only answer to this is that we do not pretend to anything of this character.

"Although it is true that the boycott is causing the economic crisis to be more severe, we also are faced with a moral and religious crisis. Great wrongs require great remedies. Using the boycott of the Mexican Catholics as the only legal, peaceful means possible, we cannot be held responsible for the crisis.

"In conclusion, when we obtain religious liberty the boycott will cease. If it is prolonged, the blame will rest upon the Government and upon the Crom.

"When all is said, the American Federation of Labor had reason when not so long ago it announced to the Crom that the American Federation would refuse its help if the Crom persisted in its work against religious liberty."

Greatest Religious Out-pouring.

MEXICO CITY, July 30 (AP).—Catholics today gave way to a great manifestation of devotion to their religion and of grief over its troubles as the last few hours slipped by before the new governmental regulations become effective.

The extraordinary scenes of religious emotion of the last fortnight, marked by the flocking of thousands to their churches and shrines, were surpassed as vast assemblages swamped the cathedral in Mexico City, the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe and other beloved places of worship.

By nightfall services in most of the churches had stopped in accordance with the orders of the Mexican Episcopacy. Many thousands of Catholics were turned away disappointed. At the cathedral the authorities granted the sacrament of intention to all those in the great waiting crowd.

Detachments of Federal troops are already patroling the streets and roads in the villages and open country of the Federal district, ready to give assistance to the municipal authorities of the towns and villages if disturbances arise over the religious situation.

Have Orders to Shoot.

The troops traveling in motorcycles and automobiles have instructions to shoot any one offering resistance.

These steps have been taken because of reports of intense excitement in the suburbs and outlying villages, especially among the Indians.

There was a poignant note at these final services, for tomorrow Catholic priests will withdraw from the performance of their religious offices under the orders of the Archbishopric of Mexico.

Their action is intended as a protest against the Government's religious regulations, which they regard as striking at the very heart of the Church in Mexico.

Pilgrims Go to Churches Barefoot.

Barefoot men, women and children by thousands trudged over the rough, sunbaked road to Guadalupe today. Often their feet were bleeding.

Gently nurtured women, unaccustomed to the hardships of life, tramped under the broiling sun, saying their beads and brushing shoulders with sturdy Indian women, inured to the elements and hardship.

From every part of Mexico came similar stories of barefoot processions to favorite shrines or local churches as a special demonstration of grief on the last day of the priestly services for no one knows how long.

The number of priests and the capacity of the churches were inadequate; many thousands waited in vain for the priestly offices. Often there was a heartbroken sob as realization came of inability to secure baptism, confirmation and the marriage service.

Great crowds camped all last night around the cathedral in Mexico City and the shrine of Guadalupe, and long before daylight lines were formed at the entrances.

Most of those who came through the day were disappointed, and tonight, wearied and dejected, they dragged themselves away reluctantly.

Government Refuses to Bend.

Hundreds of thousands of Mexico's 10,000,000 or more Catholics, startled by the news that their priests, acting under orders of their Archbishop, will cease functioning in protest against the religious regulations, have been blocking to half hourly masses in the twelve thousand Catholic churches throughout Mexico.

Baptisms, confirmations, marriages and other services have been performed by the thousand in the past few weeks. Rarely has a country seen such a wave of religious attendance.

The Government's answer is that it will not be swerved from its course and that it will stamp out any attempts to weaken enforcement of its regulations.

In this it has the support of the Confederation of Labor and its affiliated unions, who last night assured President Calles of their approval of his attitude.

"The Government is attempting to end the ignorance of the Mexican workman resulting from thirty years of tyranny and ten years of revolution," the Confederation statement said.

"It is his ignorance which the clergy are attempting to use by fixing in the minds of comrades and our people generally the belief that religion and the clergy are one and the same thing."

Stands Taken by Contestants.

President Calles has summed up his own attitude as follows:

"In Mexico, from the time of independence to the present, the Catholic Church has been a constant political problem."

On another occasion President Calles said:

"No foreign or interior influence, including the Pope's grumblings, will make my Government change its attitude."

The pastoral letter issued by Archbishop Mora y del Rio, ordering the suspension of services by priests, said:

"The regulations now issued by the Federal Executive injured to such an extent the divine rights of the Church entrusted to our guardianship and are so contrary to Mexican Constitutional rights that it is impossible for us to yield further."

Statements issued from the Vatican and by Catholic leaders in Mexico have denied consistently that the Church has been interfering in politics in any way.

Troops Held in Readiness.

Federal troops are known to be in readiness for any emergency. At the Department of the Interior today it was said that "all necessary measures" had been taken to suppress possible disorders.

It was added that the Government is firmly decided to abate at once and for all any resistance to enforcement of the Constitution which may be offered by the unpatriotic work of Catholic or other agitators."

Dispatches from Vera Cruz say Governor Jara has ordered the use of Federal troops, if necessary, when on Sunday the Mayors in the State of Vera Cruz take over possession of the Catholic churches.

The Governor is quoted as saying that the attitude of the Church toward the Government's religious regulations "involves rebellion on the part of the clergy."

Cabinet Member Warns Papers.

The principal newspapers of Mexico City have been told privately by Attorney General Ortega that the newspapers and newspaper men are largely responsible for the present situation by the great space they have given it.

He said the situation had been greatly magnified by the press and gave warning as to the further treatment of the news.

Supporters of the Government's policy are planning extensive propaganda, including lectures by Confederation of Labor leaders among soldiers and sailors. The Laborites say this is necessary to offset Catholic propaganda among them.

Alfredo Perez Medina, Secretary General of the Confederation, has offered to debate the religious question with any of the religious leaders in the largest theatre in Mexico City.

Several Cabinet Ministers will make speaking campaigns in support of the Government's policy, beginning next week.

Ricardo Trevino of the Confederation has sent cablegrams to all labor organizations in the United States, Latin America, Great Britain, France and Spain, announcing that Mexican labor is supporting President Calles and soliciting a sympathetic understanding by labor throughout the world.

Pope Reported Against Boycott.

The Government is still considering the question whether it will file formal complaints against the Archbishops and Bishops who signed the recent pastoral letter suspending church services by priests.

In well-informed quarters the belief is expressed that if the prelates are summoned, it will be upon a charge of inciting the people to disorder.

Numerous Catholics are planning to participate in the economic boycott proposed by the League for Defense of Religious Liberty.

Statements have been published here that Pope Pius has not approved the project, but whether or not this is authentic, it has apparently had little influence among a considerable number of Catholics, some of whom have been heard to say that only specific disapproval by the Pope would cause them to abandon the boycott idea.

The Government agents continued today their investigation of the files and records in the offices of the league. They have turned over to the police the membership list of the league, as well as lists of members of other Catholic organizations.

Labor Plans Boycott Curb.

The Confederation of Labor, through its Secretary General, announces to union workers that if any industrial or commercial establishment supports the economic boycott, the confederation will take the necessary steps to control the establishment until the owners or managers cease supporting it.

Attorney General Ortega announced today that the two newspaper men taken into custody at Chihuahua City yesterday were not arrested because of violation of the religious laws, but for offenses not connected with the situation. The nature of the alleged offenses was not specified.

The men are Silvestere Terrazas, director of El Correo, and Cecilio Robles, director of El Mocho.

3,000 Confirmed in Merida, Yucatan.

MERIDA, Yucatan, Mexico, July 30 (AP).—Every Catholic church in the State of Yucatan today was filled to overflowing, while the cathedral here was the centre of a service at which 3,000 persons were confirmed. Some of the worshipers fainted from the excessive heat.

In accordance with the direction of the church authorities, services will cease here at midnight tonight, as in the rest of Mexico.

The local branch of the National League for Defense of Religious Liberty has invited Catholics to engage in an economic boycott similar to that of Mexico City.

The attitude of the clergy and Catholics here is peaceful and it is not expected that any disorders will occur.

MEXICAN ISSUES OUTLINED.

Stand of Church and State Reviewed and Regulations Summarized.

MEXICO CITY, July 30 (AP).—The dramatic struggle between the Catholic Church and the Mexican Government enters its crucial phase tomorrow when the new Government religious regulations, providing for the enforcement of the Constitution of 1917, go into effect.

President Calles and his Government have at their command the military, administrative and judicial power of Mexico and the support of the Confederation of Labor.

The Church has called into use what has been described as a "partial interdict," a dread measure to the faithful. The Church is supported by the National League for Defense of Religious Liberty.

The Government's stand is that the Church and the State must be kept separated and that the Church must stay out of politics; the Church's stand is that it is being persecuted by a hostile Government, which is threatening religious freedom, and that it has not meddled in politics.

So far-reaching are the issues in the controversy that Pope Pius has appealed to the faithful throughout the world to raise their voices in prayer for their Mexican co-religionists and will offer his own prayers for his Mexican flock.

No foreign ministers of any religion may function in Mexico.

Church ownership of property is forbidden and all such property reverts to the State.

Religious orders, convents and monasteries are forbidden.

Priests and ministers are forbidden to participate in politics or to hold political meetings, to criticize the Government or criticize and oppose the Constitution, laws or acts of the Government or to incite others to do so.

Outdoor religious ceremonials and the wearing by priests of their religious robes outside of their churches or residences are forbidden.

Periodicals of a religious nature are forbidden to comment upon the Government's acts or to print news concerning the actions of the Government.

Punishments may range from a fine of 500 pesos, or fifteen days' imprisonment or both, up to six years' imprisonment, or "additional punishment," as the Court may care to impose.

Trial by jury in these cases is not provided for.

Enforcement of these constitutional provisions, which date back to the Constitution of 1817, has met with determined opposition by the Church.

Archbishop Mora y del Rio of Mexico City has issued an order to all priests in Mexico not to perform their offices after midnight tonight, when the regulations go into effect.

The League for Defense of Religious Liberty has issued an appeal for an "economic boycott" to register its protest against the Government's attitude.

CALLES PUZZLES BRITISH.

London Times Wonders What Good Can Come of "Stifling" Religion.

LONDON, July 30 (AP).—The controversy between the Catholic Church and the State in Mexico is attracting much attention in the news columns of British newspapers, although there has been little editorial comment.

The Times today, after summarizing the situation, wonders what effect an anti-religious rule would have upon a nation the greater part of which, it says, is illiterate and derives its only ideas of religion and morality from the Church.

"These teachings are the only spiritual and moral influence to guide the lives of millions," The Times says. "What conceivable advantage to a State and society can come from their violent suppression where there is not even a pretense that anything exists to take their place."

Princess Maria, the King of Spain's Cousin, Arriving Here Alone, Has Baggage Trouble

Her Royal Highness Princess Maria de Bourbon, daughter of the Infante Francisco de Bourbon and second cousin to the King of Spain, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Aquitania from Madrid, traveling alone. She was met at the pier by Mrs. B. G. Dahlberg, who will entertain the Princess at her home, 999 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, and then will take her out to Red Crest ranch in Minnesota for an outing.

The Princess is a slim, fair-haired young woman, with large blue eyes. She speaks English quite well, but is more at home with French and, of course, her native tongue, Spanish. She said the King had written to the President so that it would be possible for her to remain here six months or even a year with her friends if she desired to do so.

"At present," Princess Maria continued, "I am going to spend six weeks with Madame Dahlberg and then go to China and Japan so that I shall be away from my home in Madrid for a long time. I am fond of Spain, it is my country, and I also like America, which is the reason why I am coming here a second time."

Asked if King Alfonso was likely to come to the United States, the Princess said he had often expressed a wish to do so and some day it might be gratified.

Princess Maria had a great deal of trouble with her baggage and was detained more than an hour on the pier in the intense heat, which made her feel weak, she said. There was no one from the Spanish Embassy or the Consulate General in New York to greet her, and no request had been made for her name to be placed on the Customs list for immediate attention.

Owing to her lack of knowledge of the English language she had inscribed herself as a resident of the United States on her declaration paper instead of a resident of Madrid.

Among her personal effects the Princess had a handsome Russian sable coat valued at more than $5,000 by the Customs officials, and the Appraisers had to pass upon it. After she had made an affidavit that her father had bought it for her ten years ago, her baggage was cleared.

Under a new ruling on the Cunard pier the passengers have to stand in line to get a porter to take their baggage outside. The line yesterday afternoon was a long one, and the Princess said she felt as if she could not stand any longer. Finally the head of the baggage department on the pier was found and he succeeded in getting a porter for her.

Mrs. Dahlberg drove the Princess to the Ritz-Carlton for the night, and will take her to Chicago on the Twentieth Century Limited this afternoon. The Princess wore a sea green silk gown and a black hat trimmed with purple.

CATHOLIC BODIES HERE FORM 'MEXICO SOCIETY'

Talley Says It Will Tell Facts of Situation, and Charges 'Atrocious Persecution.'

Several Catholic societies here formed a new organization called "The Society for the Protection of Religious Rights in Mexico" at a meeting at the Catholic Club last night. Former Judge Alfred J. Talley was elected President. Other officers elected were Joseph V. Mitchell, President of the Archdiocesan Society, Vice President; Walter T. Lynch, Chairman of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, Secretary, and Mrs. Antonio C. Gonzales, representing the Catholic Big Sisters, Treasurer. Other organizations represented were the Catholic Daughters of America, the Xavier Alumni Sodality and the German Catholic Central Verein.

Mr. Talley said that plans were under way to organize similar associations in every State and city in the United States, and that the movement was designed to give the facts "of a situation that has for its background the most atrocious religious persecution of modern times." He said that what was happening in Mexico was due in a large measure to the "indifferent attitude of this government." He said the government now maintained "a fraternalistic attitude" toward the Calles administration through the arms embargo.

As a government, Mr. Talley said, "we are apparently afraid to raise our voice" on behalf of 90 per cent. of the Mexican people whose rights, he declared, were being trampled upon. He said he saw a "bold and adroit Mexican propaganda" at work here, which he promised the new society would attempt to counteract.

PROTESTANT PRAYER ON MEXICO URGED

A plea that all Protestants in the United States "fall on their knees" tomorrow and join Roman Catholics in prayer for "the persecuted Church in Mexico" is made in the issue today of The Living Church, an Episcopal national weekly published in Milwaukee.

The question has become one of a real persecution of the Christian Church and is now no longer one between the Vatican and the Mexican Government alone, the publication says.

"The new restrictions that are effective July 31 involve prohibition of teaching religion in primary schools, private as well as public, and a multitude of other prohibitions, including confiscation of Church property, limitation of opportunity for services, and much else, such as are directed against the practice of the Christian religion in any form," say The Living Church.

"We hope that many other American Christians than Roman Catholics will carry out the earnest suggestion of the Pope for united prayer on Aug. 1, when the new régime begins; and we can appreciate that the probable entire suspension of public services of the Roman Church, indicated in the Monday morning papers, may, very likely, be followed by like action on our part. Of course our work in Mexico is absolutely trivial in comparison with that of Rome; but we shall certainly not wish to make capital out of the distress of the principal Church of the land."

"For Americans, Episcopalians and Protestants as well as Roman Catholics," The Living Church urges "that we all fall on our knees next Sunday and earnestly pray God to guide all who have responsibility for Christian work of any form in Mexico, according to His will, and to overrule the present persecution for ultimate good. We hope that in many of our churches such prayer may be publicly offered at next Sunday's services."

SAYS CALLES FIGHTS CHURCH HIERARCHY

In interviews here yesterday, Roberto Haberman, delegate of the 2,000,000 members of the Mexican Federation of Labor to the United States, said that President Calles was not proceeding against religion, but against a Church hierarchy made up of foreign priests; and Bishop George A. Miller, Methodist Episcopal administrator in Mexico City, assailed Latin-American Catholics for alleged lawlessness and for persecution of followers of other faiths. Representative Loring M. Black Jr., Democrat, in a statement, demanded that President Coolidge lift the Mexican arms embargo or stand responsible "in the eyes of the American people" for the Calles régime.

Mr. Haberman said: "The movement in Mexico is not anti-religious, but is directed against a Church hierarchy composed of foreign priests, largely Spaniards, the hereditary enemies of the Mexican people. There is no friction between the working people and what might be termed the 'low-class' priests. These latter are the native Mexican priests. They are cruelly exploited by the foreign clerics, who appropriate all the fat livings and sinecures, with the result that the Mexican padre makes scarcely enough to live on. Out of this native class came Father Hidalgo, the George Washington of Mexico, and Father Morelos, another of the country's great fathers. Both were excommunicated and executed, but they are the great heroes of Mexican history.

"It is particularly hard for other Catholics, such as the great number of Irish Catholics in the United States, to understand our situation. In all Irish revolutions against England, the Irish priests marched shoulder to shoulder with their flocks. They naturally gained intense admiration and respect. They deserved it. But in Mexico the great body of our foreign priests always lined up against the people. In every revolution they have taken sides against the workers and in favor of reaction."

Mr. Haberman said this attitude was one reason for the Mexican Federation supporting the present position of President Calles. Another, he said, was the enmity of the Church to the labor federations. Labor leaders were excommunicated and denied the ministrations of the Church, he said, and in 1921, he declared, a Church publication, "Friend of Truth," called for a convention of Catholic unions at Guadelajara to destroy the new body. He said the Church had similarly denied religious benefits to all Mexicans who accepted public homesteads from the Obregon Administration, charging that Federal confiscation made such lands stolen property.

Mr. Haberman said the possibilities of the trade boycott had been overrated. "Of 15,000,000 people in Mexico," he said, "only about 3,500,000 wear shoes."

At the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions, 150 Fifth Avenue, Bishop Miller said the Catholic hierarchy was to blame for present conditions. He attacked "the opposition, intolerance and persecution" which he said the Catholics throughout Latin America "visited upon followers of other faiths."

"It has at last become necessary for the best Government that Mexico has ever had to use drastic means in the control of the ecclesiastical situation," Bishop Miller said. "The Roman Catholic priests in Mexico have openly refused to comply with the law of the land, have persistently meddled in politics, and have now organized an economic boycott with the openly avowed purpose of bankrupting the country, thus defeating the present administration."

Representative Black's statement was in answer to a query from former Judge Alfred J. Talley. In it he reviewed the President's proclamation of Jan. 7, 1924, which permitted the sale of arms "to the then Mexican Government to protect it from its opposition," and that the President continued to assume a sponsorship for the later Calles régime until that proclamation was revoked, which Mr. Black asked the President to do. The statement called the Calles Government an oppressor which denied free religion and free speech to the Mexican people, "an infidel dictator" and a subscriber to "the Russian notions of government."

DR. ZIMMERMAN FINDS AUSTRIA IS SOUND

League High Commissioner, Here, Tells of Fighting Social Democrats During His Term.

Dr. Alfred R. Zimmerman, who was the High Commissioner of the League of Nations for Austria for three and a half years, arrived yesterday on the Holland-America liner Rotterdam from Holland to lecture at the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., on "The Reconstruction of Austria."

Financial conditions in Vienna were good when he left there on June 30, Dr. Zimmerman said. The Austrian currency had been stabilized and the schilling remained firm and was worth about 17 cents.

"The crop outlook was good and the industries were gradually improving, and the political situation was quiet," said Dr. Zimmerman.

"Do you think that Austria is likely to join in with Germany?" he was asked.

"Not for the present. If the Austrian people can get raw materials and carry on their arts and industries successfully, they will prefer to remain independent."

"Have you read an editorial in the Vienna Arbeiter-Zeitung of July 6, in which it was said that in spite of having put the new republic firmly upon its financial feet, you have become unpopular and had lost your influence in Austria, so that your departure from Vienna on June 30 had made very little difference to the country?" he was asked.

Dr. Zimmerman replied that he had read on his arrival the reprint of the editorial in last Sunday's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES, and did not think that it was worth while discussing now. The Vienna Arbeiter-Zeitung, he said, was not a newspaper of great importance except to its Socialist readers in Austria, and he was rather surprised that the editorial had received such prominence in THE NEW YORK TIMES.

"The Social Democrats in Vienna," he added, "are a small but active minority and I had to fight them for three and a half years while I was in control of the finances of the Austrian Government. I shall deal with this question fully in my address before the Institute of Politics at Williamstown."

Dr. Zimmerman served two terms as Burgomaster of his native city, Rotterdam, and attracted public attention by the manner in which he dealt with the street car strikes during his term of office and with the city finances.

He speaks English fluently besides French and German.

EMPLOYERS ATTACKED BY GARMENT STRIKERS

More than sixty striking garment workers attacked four clothing manufacturers in Trinity Avenue, near 158th Street, the Bronx, yesterday. Policemen arrested thirteen of them.

Saul Copeland of 68 East 109th Street and his two brothers, who operate a clothing factory at 761 Jackson Avenue, the Bronx, stepped out of the Prospect Avenue subway station into a crowd of strikers. The strikers charged them and the brothers separated and fled. Saul took refuge in a candy store, armed himself with soda bottles and halted the strikers. They threatened to wreck the shop unless he was driven out and the proprietor appealed to him to leave the place, but he was still holding the fort when the police arrived, and arrested as many as they could gather in. Nine of the strikers pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct in the Morrisania Court and received suspended sentences.

Abraham Hyman of 616 East 158th Street, the Bronx, proprietor of a clothing factory in Jersey City, inadvertently walked right into the fracas and was felled with an iron bar before he could back out of it. He was attended by a physician at 580 Trinity Avenue. He charged four prisoners with assault on him. They were Albert Krant of 249 Clinton Street, Herman Rogoff of 1,512 Charlotte Street, the Bronx; Meyer Todish of 231 Henry Street and Morris Fein of 1,706 Nelson Avenue, the Bronx. Magistrate Rosenbluth in Morrisania Court held them for examination today.

The Joint Board of the Cloak, Suit, Skirt and Reefer Makers' Union, which is conducting the strike, announced yesterday that seven more employers, making a total of thirty-seven, had signed an agreement with the union.

ALCOHOL INQUIRY TAKEN TO GERMANY

TWO ARE HELD IN TORONTO

Ontario Prosecutor Declares German Bootleg Ring Was Responsible for Deaths.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 30 (AP).—Three Federal agents have been detailed to make a complete check on all alcohol importations into the United States within the past six months as the latest step in the Government's drive against poison liquor vendors. A fourth agent has been sent to Germany to conduct an investigation of exports of wood and denatured alcohol to America in the same period.

These announcements by Frank J. Hale, National Chief of Alcohol Control, were taken as an indication that the Government would make every effort to ascertain how widely distributed was the poisonous alcohol which bootleggers were unable to rectify, or redistill, with the result that more than forty persons in Western New York and Ontario died of poisoning.

Chief Hale stated today that papers found in a safe in the home of James Voelker, alleged distributer of poisonous alcohol which caused several deaths here, indicated that he had connections in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Rochester, N. Y.

In consequence of this information, Federal agents turned to these and neighboring cities in their search for many gallons of bad alcohol which they have not yet been able to account for out of the shipment of 4,400 gallons known to have arrived here from New York City.

TORONTO, Ont., July 30 (AP).—A bootleg organization importing poisonous liquor from Germany was responsible for the deaths of eighteen persons in Ontario and a large number in New York State within the past few days, W. H. Price, Acting Attorney General of Ontario, said tonight.

The liquor, he said, was landed in New York and distributed from Buffalo into Ontario. Those under arrest for its distribution admitted knowing the alcohol was poisonous, he charged, having disregarded a chemist's report.

Max Wurtzman and Henry Goldstein were held without bail today when arraigned in Police Court on manslaughter charges growing out of the deaths of William Maybee and Oliver Guertin, two of the first victims in Toronto. Wurtzman and Goldstein were indicted yesterday at Jamestown, N. Y.

Four others, also indicted at Jamestown, were held without bail on charges of manslaughter. They were Benn Kerr, arrested at Hamilton, and James Sacco, John McHale and William Herbert, arrested at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 30 (AP).—Customs officials here are interested in the arrest at Hamilton, Ontario, of Ben Kerr, known here as the self-styled "King of the Lake Ontario rum-runners." Kerr was captured by customs men near here on May 27, 1925, while with his crew aboard a rum-running boat, Martimas. He was released on bail, charged with violation of the tariff laws and smuggling, and failed to apear here for trial.

OTTAWA, Ontario, July 30 (AP).—Accusing former Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of "dastardly innuendo," H. H. Stevens, Minister of Customs in the new Conservative Government, has issued an open letter to him in connection with recent alcoholic poisoning in Canadian border cities.

Criticising Mr. King's speech of a few days ago at Sarnia, Mr. Stevens accused the Liberal leader of trying to leave in the public mind "the thought that I am personally responsible for the deaths of these victims of alcoholic poisoning."

Mr. Stevens states that, immediately on taking office, he gave orders that not another ounce of denatured alcohol was to be released from any Canadian bond and that this order was being strictly observed.

"Therefore," the letter continues, "if any of this poisonous alcohol is still to be obtained in the Dominion of Canada, it is alcohol that you and your colleagues released on the unsuspecting public, and I may say that from the middle of December last up to your inglorious exit from office, your Government distributed over 175,000 gallons of this poisonous concoction for beverage purposes."

ten laymen nominated by the Government. This is a proviso which runs contrary to all of the Holy See's notions about liberty of the Church, and it provoked the order by the Archbishop of Mexico to the clergy to stop all religious services, thus paving the way for an official interdiction.

No Decree in 1606.

One argument against adopting an interdiction in Mexico's case is that it is a somewhat archaic measure. The last case on record, in fact, of its being decreed against any independent State is in 1606, when it was applied by Pope Paul V against the Republic of Venice. Since then for over 300 years it never has been used in any controversy between the Church and an independent State.

It is based, however, on one of the fundamental principles of the Church which reserves to itself the right of declaring unworthy of its communion those individuals, communities or States which do not respect its doctrines and its laws. It consists in forbidding mass to be celebrated or heard by the faithful, in prohibiting holy sacraments to be administered or received, and in prohibiting the clergy from performing burial rites.

The interdiction was first applied by Pope Gregory VII. in 1073, and was freely used in the Middle Ages. Notable examples were the interdiction of France pronounced by Pope Innocent II. in 1141, which lasted three years; the interdiction of England in 1212, and the interdiction of Portugal by Pope Gregory X. in 1273, which lasted sixteen years until repealed by Pope Nicholas IV., in 1289.

ILLINOIS UTILITY MEN GAVE SMITH $213,734

NEW GIFTS TOTAL $45,000

SECRET LIST PARTLY BARED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 30.—A total of $213,734 was given by three owners of public utility corporations to the campaign fund of Frank L. Smith, winner in the Illinois Senatorial primary, it was revealed today when the Senate investigating committee drew from Allen F. Moore, the Smith manager, that Ira A. Copley contributed $25,000 and Clement Studebaker $20,000 to Colonel Smith, who was and still is head of the Illinois Commerce Commission, which has control over the electric, gas, street car and other utility companies of the State.

Through this revelation the Copley and Studebaker gifts were added to the $125,000 Samuel Insull contributed to Colonel Smith, the $33,734 Mr. Insull used for propaganda against the World Court, which Colonel Smith opposed, and the $10,000 Mr. Insull gave the Crowe-Barrett faction, which backed Colonel Smith.

As the Smith fund is estimated at $462,281 through inclusion of the Crowe-Barrett $175,000, the Insull $33,734, and the $253,547 accounted for by Mr. Moore, it is seen that the trio of traction and light executives furnished approximately half of it. If Mr. Moore's $253,547 is used as the total Smith money, Copley, Studebaker and Insull donated all but about $40,000 of it.

Represent $900,000,000 Holdings.

The three men represent holdings of about $900,000,000. Financial manuals show Mr. Insull's varied concerns with assets of $500,000,000 to $600,000,000, Mr. Studebaker's $335,000,000 and Mr. Copley's $54,600,000. The Commonwealth Edison Company, an Insull concern, has assets of $230,000,000; the Middle West Utilities Company, his holding corporation for about thirty subsidiaries, $69,000,000. Mr. Studebaker is President of the Illinois Power and Light Company, with assets of $158,000,000, and of the North American Light and Power Company, $177,000,000. Mr. Copley is President of the Western United Gas and Electric Company, $18,600,000, and of the Western United Corporation, $36,000,000.

A sidelight on the Studebaker $20,000 is that Senator McKinley, Colonel Smith's defeated opponent in the primary, is Chairman of the board of the Illinois Power and Light Company, of which Mr. Studebaker is President. Mr. Studebaker is one of a group of financiers who bought control of the Illinois Power, Light and Interurban Traction Companies formerly owned by Senator McKinley.

Reed committee members said this afternoon in private conversation that the Smith campaign offerings from the wealthy public utility capitalists would be hotly denounced on the Senate floor, if Colonel Smith won from George E. Brennan, his Democratic opponent, in November. Indications are that the Senate will see more than one repetition of the Newberry incident next Winter, for a bitter fight will be made on Colonel Smith as well as on Mr. Vare.

While the Studebaker and Copley holdings are not nearly so large as the extensive Insull interests, they are influential throughout Illinois. The Illinois Power and Light Company operates all through the southern part of the State and branches into Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, in serving electricity, gas, heat and water. One of the Copley companies, the Western United Corporation, distributes gas and electric power and light to 350,000 people.

Mr. Insull's Commonwealth Edison Company serves 755,000 customers, his Middle West Utilities Company has thirty subsidiaries in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky, Virginia, Vermont, New Hampshire, Nebraska, Northeastern New York, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri. Its gross earnings in 1924 were $41,000,000. One subsidiary has assets of $55,000,000, and others of $27,000,000, $23,000,000 and $22,000,000.

Some Names Still Withheld.

Mr. Moore testified to the Copley and Studebaker donations after Senator Reed told him he must tell who contributed to the campaign. On Monday Mr. Moore insisted that some of the gifts were confidential and, therefore, he did not fell justified in reading them off from the little black memorandum book he keeps in his own private cipher. But Senator Reed instructed him then to confer with Colonel Smith and ascertain if the Republican Senatorial nominee "wished to take the responsibility" of keeping the names secret.

"I asked," he told Senator Reed today, "that confidence imposed in me be respected. Some of these men have asked that their names not be made public. You asked me to consult with my principal. He told me simply that if I received any money confidentially I should use my own judgment.

"The only charge he put on me in the campaign was that I should not obligate him in any way. If I have done so it was a political mistake."

The witness then produced the memorandum book and read the names of some seven or eight contributors, but asked that he be permitted to keep the rest confidential, which Senator Reed agreed to. The Studebaker money he said, came in two instalments, each of $10,000; the Copley money in divisions of $10,000 and $15,000. Daniel Schuyler, whom he declared gave $2,500, is said to be Mr. Insull's attorney.

Recesses Until Tuesday.

Mr. Moore was on the stand just twenty minutes, the committee recessing until Tuesday to permit Senator Reed to go to St. Louis to speak for the Democratic candidate for Superior Court Judge and Senator La Follette to go to Kenosha, Wis., to speak tonight for Governor Blaine against Senator Lenroot. If Senator King, the second Democrat of the committee, arrives on Monday, Senator La Follette probably will not return. The close of the hearing is expected to occur the last of next week, perhaps sooner.

Before he left the stand Mr. Moore was told by Senator Reed that Frank L. Smith still had the opportunity to file with the committee the statement he began to read on Monday, but which was shut off when he attacked Senator Caraway as using "the terminology and tactics of a practiced scandalmonger."

The offer to receive the statement, purged of "derogatory statements," was still open, Senator Reed stated.

Yesterday Timothy McCarthy, an East St. Louis newspaper man, testified that $6,000 was paid to a man named Charles Scendry, Secretary of the Foreign Voters' League of East St. Louis, to swing 125,000 Smith votes, but Mr. Moore said he had no knowledge of such a transaction. He had an unanswered letter from Scendry seeking an appointment, he declared.

The only other witness of the short session was James A. White, Federal Marshal for the Southern Illinois District, who said he expended $1,475 for Senator McKinley, paying workers $5 to $15 daily.

When the committee resumes work next week Mr. Insull will be called to tell if he gave other money than the $193,734 he contributed to varied political causes. Fred Lundin will be summoned concerning the activities, collection and expenditures of the Small-Lundin combination, and will doubtless be queried specifically about alleged donations from State employes and contractors to aid Governor Small in fighting the $1,000,000 decision against him requiring him to account for interest on State funds.

Two other witnesses will be Homer K. Galpin, who disbursed the $175,000 of the Crowe-Barrett faction, and Morris Eller of the Twentieth Ward. Galpin will be questioned on how the Crowe-Barrett money was paid out and Eller about his ward, which has a reputation for gunmen, tricksters, voting of absentees and counting in of false ballots.

TERRIBLE NEW YORK SHOCKS A BRITISHER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 30.—Donald Calthrop, English actor-manager, who has just returned from New York by steerage—"for the experience," he explains—has a low opinion of New York's morals.

"To live in New York," he declared today, "must be an awful strain. Every one is full of the get-rich-quick idea. Crime is frequent. New York policemen always carry one revolver, and sometimes two. This is the sort of thing that happens there:

"One day I was crossing Times Square and was suddenly passed by a screaming individual, who told me to lie flat on my back. Soon I saw a startling fellow coming around a corner, pursued by a number of waiters and a huge mob. He carried two revolvers and was firing them in all directions. Policemen immediately appeared on every corner with revolvers, which they fired indiscriminately. They didn't seem to care whom they hit, so long as they got somewhere near the fugitive. When the crowd had passed I discovered that he had tried to get some easy money from some joint or restaurant. The films, after all, are not so fantastic as they seem.

"A theatrical censor is very badly wanted in New York. Some of the most disgusting revues and plays I have ever seen are on the boards in Broadway, which leaves Paris far behind. In England, playwrights would not think of writing such stuff. The nudity is simply appalling. On the other hand, there are some very fine productions."

The thief chase to which Mr. Cathrop refers appears to be the one which took place on July 14, when, after a pistol duel, police captured Glenn Miller, a Buffalo gunman, not in Times Square, but between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Streets, on Broadway, opposite the Strand Theatre. This took place just before the theatre hour and five persons were hit by stray bullets.

CAPTURE A SUSPECT IN ICE CREAM HOLD-UP

Detectives Seize Brother of Red McKenna in Office of Parole Commission.

Michael McKenna, 23 years old, an ex-convict, who gave his address as 149 Meserole Avenue, Brooklyn, was locked up last night in Police Headquarters on suspicion of being one of the four gunmen who held up the branch of the Reid Ice Cream Company at 9 West 144th Street last Sunday and got away with $8,000 after shooting a driver.

McKenna, who is a brother of John (Red) McKenna, fugitive from the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton and now in the Tombs awaiting sentence for his confessed participation in the $6,700 payroll hold-up of the General Baking Company last May, was arrested by Detectives Senff, Tierney and Hayras of the Homicide Squad in the office of the State Parole Commission at Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

The prisoner denied complicity in the Reid holdup, but the detectives said witnesses had identified his Rogues' Gallery picture as that of one gunman. Peter Powers, another ex-convict, was captured in East Harlem when he and his confederates were fleeing from the holdup in an automobile. The robbers opened fire on detectives, who pursued them in another car. When a uniformed patrolman joined in the chase, Powers was alleged to have attempted to shoot him.

Mrs. Gibson Sticks to Story.

Mrs. Jane Gibson, the pig farmer, stuck to her story today that she saw Mrs. Hall and others at the Phillips farm on the night of the murder. Riding a mule and tracking a man whom she suspected of stealing chickens and corn from her, Mrs. Gibson said she passed through the Phillips property and by the light of an automobile headlight saw the rector's wife and others there. Mrs. Gibson's story was discredited four years ago by other witnesses. Her discreditors are now discredited themselves and her story reinstated, it is alleged.

The discovery of other evidence of importance overshadowing the testimony of the reformed burglar and the so-called "pig woman," is hinted at by the prosecution. No further arrests in the near future, it was said, are expected, however.

Free After Twenty-Minute Hearing.

It took only twenty minutes today for Justice Gunmere to conduct the hearing which resulted in the liberation of Mrs. Hall on bail.

The hearing was held at the Summer home of the Justice at Point Pleasant, N. J. Robert H. McCarter, formerly Attorney General, made the argument for Mrs. Hall. Timothy N. Pfeiffer, who was Mrs. Hall's attorney in the investigation in 1922, was present. The third of Mrs. Hall's counsel, Augustus Studer, partner of Mr. McCarter, also participated. As soon as Justice Gummere fixed bail of $7,500 each for the two complaints Mr. Pfeiffer and Mr. Studer motored to the jail here and served the order of bail on the authorities.

The hearing began at 3 P. M. Earlier in the day Prosecuter Bergen had announced that the hearing would be held. In making known the fact he attempted at first to suppress the time and place of the hearing but finally disclosed it. He preferred to have the hearing a closed one, but Justice Gummere, with the agreement of the defence attorneys, ruled that it would be open.

Bergen arrived at Point Pleasant at least a half hour in advance of McCarter, Studer and Pfeiffer. The defense counsel had gathered at the home of Mr. McCarter in Rumson and motored down the coast to Point Pleasant. Upon the arrival of Mrs. Hall's lawyers the group moved into the Justice's study, a small room at the back of the house. The room, with its furnishings of another day, made a quaint setting for the court procedure. Justice Gummere, a tall, white-haired man with smiling face, seemed slightly amused as he surveyed the group of attorneys, sitting like so many school boys on a sofa in front of him.

Affidavit of Mrs. Hall.

Mr. McCarter, however, was decidedly serious and launched into his argument without delay. He produced an affidavit made by Mrs. Hall and read it slowly, emphasizing strategic parts. The affidavit was as follows:

State of New Jersey }
County of Somerset } ss:

Frances Hall, being duly sworn upon her oath, says:

I am the widow of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, whose dead body, together with that of Eleanor Mills, was discovered near New Brunswick, but in Somerset County, on the morning of Sept. 16, 1922. At that time, as the present time, I was living at the residence owned and occupied by me in New Brunswick.

I am absolutely innocent of these crimes and have no knowledge of the persons who caused the deaths of my husband and Eleanor Mills, or either of them.

Great excitement followed the discovery of these homicides, and an elaborate investigation was made by a Grand Jury of Somerset County, conducted by Wilbur A. Mott, specially selected to collaborate with Azariah M. Beekman, then prosecutor of this county. I attended for a full day at the Court House in Somerville while this investigation was in progress, and requested leave to appear before the Grand Jury, agreeing to waive immunity. My request was not granted. Reinvestigation resulted in nothing and no indictment was found.

Twice Went to Europe.

Since then I have lived constantly in my house in New Brunswick except for a period during which it was being reconstructed, when I resided in an apartment near by. I have, however, in the intermediate period taken two trips to Europe, returning the last time in April, 1925, since which time I have hardly left New Brunswick, except for one or two short visits with friends.

Whenever requested by the public authorities, and at least on two occasions, I made statements to the prosecutors of Middlesex and Somerset Counties and notified them that I held myself in readiness to give them any information at my command bearing upon the subject.

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night, when I was preparing to retire, without the slightest previous warning to me or any one on my behalf, about half a dozen State police came to my house with two warrants for my arrest, copies of which are hereto annexed. I was compelled, after dressing, to go, under arrest, with them to the common jail of Somerset County, in which I am now confined. I attach hereto true copies of the complaints whereon said warrants are based. FRANCES HALL.

Sworn to and subscribed before me at Somerville this 29th day of July, 1926. AUGUSTUS C. STUDER JR.,
Master in Chancery of New Jersey.

The attorney then droned through the legal phraseology of the twin complaints and the commitment papers.

Reviews Futile Investigation.

Then the attorney began his real argument.

"Now," he said, "the situation is, Chief Justice, just this: After four years of full investigation, four years after a Grand Jury had heard all of the evidence adduced against her and had failed to vote an indictment, four years after the State of New Jersey had appointed a special prosecutor in the person of Wilbur Mott, this lady is arrested in her own home at midnight upon pure 'information and belief,' without information or warning and was taken by four officers to Somerville and is still there in jail.

"There is not a word of basis of support for these charges beyond 'information and belief.'

"The complaints are based solely upon that phrase. We feel that, under the Constitution, even though this offense charged be a capital one, Mrs. Hall is entitled to bail. Bail is admissible in capital cases except where the proof is evident and the presumption great. In this case every presumption is in her favor. They have thoroughly investigated every proof against her and they have nothing.

Cites Prosecutor's Youth.

"So far as the evidence is concerned, it is purely the affidavit of the prosecutor, a young man, newly appointed—"

At this point Justice Gummere raised his hand.

"That's not against him, is it?" he inquired.

"No, no," the attorney hastened to add, "not at all. I have the highest admiration for Francis. I knew his father well and I am only sorry that he did not live to see his son appointed prosecutor."

The former Attorney General beamed over at the prosecutor and then continued:

"This charge is remarkable in that it was made, although there had been no Coroner's inquest and no real proof brought before any one Mrs. Hall is a responsible person, and she is prepared to give bail in any reasonable amount. We feel that she should be released without delay, because otherwise she faces a long confinement in jail.

"They tell us over in Somerville that no Grand Jury will be in session until the third Tuesday in September. Supreme Court Justice Parker, who has charge of the Somerset County Grand Jury, is absent on vacation at Bar Harbor, and that is why we are here bothering you. It would be a horrible thing to keep this lady languishing in jail after four years have failed to bring out anything against her. It would not be proper and it would not be constitutional to deprive her of her liberty. We therefore respectfully urge that she be released, in whatever bail you see fit to fix, to await the action of the Grand Jury."

Bergen Sets Forth His Case.

Justice Gummere then asked Prosecutor Bergen if he had anything to say. Mr. Bergen rose, and after some hesitation set forth the case against Mrs. Hall.

"I realize the responsibility I have taken upon my shoulders," he said, "but for all the previous investigation I am convinced, after reading the stories of witnesses and listening to them recite what they saw or knew, that a Grand Jury would return an indictment that would lie.

"Truly, as Mr. McCarter said, Mrs. Hall is a responsible person in the matter of bail. She is not likely to depart. I don't want to too strongly oppose bail, but I don't want to take the responsibility upon my shoulders of consenting to bail."

Justice Gummere said that Mr. Bergen "had not said anything about a person's right to bail, even in capital cases in certain instances—nor have you given me one suggestion of her guilt."

"Well," said the prosecutor, "these facts—I thought I had expressed that thought when I said that I was convinced that the evidence was strong enough to warrant an indictment."

Upholds Right to Bail.

"Well," said the Justice, "all persons have the right to bail even in capital cases where guilt is not strongly presumptive. As to your belief that the evidence would result in an indictment, there is nothing in the examination which empowers a prosecutor of the pleas to proceed solely on that ground. Have you any evidence, new or otherwise, which you wish to disclose?"

The prosecutor, who is said to have desired to prevent the defense from obtaining an inkling of the information he has received, halted a minute before replying.

"I am not in a position," he said, "to give the evidence now."

"Well," said the Chief Justice, "the law presumes the innocence of every person. Unless you can lay before me facts which would warrant me in acting otherwise I shall be inclined to grant the application for bail. You see how the situation lies. Have you any objection to my logic?"

"No sir," said the prosecutor.

"Then," resumed the Court, "I think the application should be granted. The question now arises as to what would constitute reasonable bail."

Mr. McCarter then declared that Mrs. Hall was "a person of standing in her community," that she owned the house in which she lives and other property, "but is not a Croesus," and that she was willing to give any reasonable bail.

"She is not here seeking favors, I might add," the lawyer said.

"How about bail in the amount of $10,000?" said the Chief Justice.

"That is all right," said Mr. McCarter.

"It shouldn't be any lower," interjected Mr. Bergen.

"You see," continued the Court, "the theory of bail is not to fix it so low that the person leave the jurisdiction, nor so high that it is impossible for the person to obtain it. There have been cases where bail as high as $75,000 or $100,000 has been asked where the person concerned could not even raise $5,000 and yet was a person who obviously had no intention of leaving the jurisdiction. That sort of bail is no bail at all."

Then Mr. Bergen asked whether the bail was to be $5,000 each on the two complaints or $10,000 each. Mr. McCarter said that he though the bail should be divided between the two charges.

Justice Gummere then interjected:

"I shall fix bail of $7,500 for each complaint."

In order to facilitate the release of Mrs. Hall Justice Gummere consented to sign the order of bail at once. He then appointed John F. Reger, an attorney of Somerville, to approve the bond as Supreme Court Commissioner. Bail was speedily arranged.

Warden Informs Mrs. Hall.

At 3:35 in the afternoon word came to the county jail that bail had been arranged in Point Pleasant. Warden James Major took the news to Mrs. Hall personally. She was in the steel grated detention room that has been her home for two days. Mrs. Edward Carpender, a relative by marriage, who had called with flowers and delicacies, was with her.

When the Warden told the news to Mrs. Hall she rose and said: "Thank you." Then Mr. Major left.

The news spread to the small group that had lingered on the lawn about the jail. It spread down the street. By four o'clock the streets surrounding the jail were lined with automobiles. Warden Major abandoned efforts to keep the curiosity seekers off the lawn.

The scene resembled a county fair. Finally Mr. Reger, the lawyer appointed to arrange the release papers, appeared, along with Russell E. Watson, lawyer, and Edward Reilly, New Brunswick Bank trust officer.

The crowd waited. Then more than four hours after bail had been arranged, and forty-three hours after her arrest, the steel door swung open and Mrs. Hall walked out on the arms of Mr. Watson and Mrs. Carpender.

Cameras clicked to right and left. Two flashlights exploded. From hundreds of feet on all sides the crowd pressed toward Mrs. Hall. "Look this way, will you, Mrs. Hall?" a camera man shouted. Mrs. Hall, with notable composure, looked that way. Then she smiled, apparently without effort.

The party proceeded down a little slope behind the jail and into the Carpender car. In the car with Mrs. Hall were Mr. Watson, Mr. Pfeiffer, Mr. Reilly, Mr. Struder and Mrs. Carpender. They took the Newark Road, turned off through Bound Brook and reached the Hall residence in less than half an hour.

She Declines to Talk.

Mr. Watson later emerged from the residence and said that his client had been instructed to say nothing for publication.

"She has been outrageously treated," he said. "What's the use of her talking about it? What's the use of my talking about it? She made an affidavit today denying all knowledge of the crime. What more can she say? What more can any one say? What's the use of talking?"

Prosecutor Bergen will not ask for a Special Grand Jury to hear the evidence against Mrs. Hall, he said after a conference with county detectives and State policemen. The case, he said, would come up in the regular course. He added that it would not be the first case considered. No new arrests were contemplated at present, he declared.

"We interviewed a number of witnesses today," he went on, "but uncovered no evidence on which we can make further arrests."

The witnesses interviewed included several who were not questioned in the investigation four years ago. Asked if the evidence was of an important nature, the prosecutor said: "Fairly important." He declined to name the witnesses.

Midnight Arrest Resented.

C. S. Atkinson, Secretary of the Board of Trade of New Brunswick, said yesterday that while the people of that community were divided in their opinions on all other aspects of the case, they were united in the belief that Mrs. Hall had been harshly treated in her sudden midnight arrest, when she could have been taken into custody in the daytime any time in the last four years.

"I have discussed the case," he said, "with twenty-five leading business and professional men of the city today, and it is their opinion, regardless of the innocence or guilt of Mrs. Hall, that the authorities did not show her proper consideration.

"The consensus of opinion is that their actions have been nothing short of brutal. Of course they may have had some particular reason for doing as they did, but to us it seemed as if they might at least have waited until morning before making the arrest."

Russell E. Watson of counsel for Mrs. Hall, in answer to questions as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Hall's brother, "Willie" Stevens, said that he was where the authorities would not "get him out of bed at 2 o'clock in the morning."

"He is not missing," the lawyer said, "he is with friends and if the authorities want him it will be a perfectly simple matter for them to get him."

Others in both New Brunswick and Somerville commented today on the cost of the case. The bills to date for the two counties in the case have amounted to $56,000, of which Middlesex has borne $20,000.

CARPENDER TELLS OF ALIBI.

Mrs. Gibson Is Mistaken or Lies, Mrs. Hall's Cousin Says.

Henry Carpender, cousin of Mrs. Hall, gave more details of his alibi on the night of the murder of Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills in an interview yesterday and characterized the story of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman," that she had seen him near the bodies that night as "ridiculous."

"I had dinner that night with Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Rice Jr. in their home in New Brunswick," said Mr. Carpender. "Mrs. Carpender was with me. After dinner we all sat there until quite late and then Mrs. Carpender and I drove home. I went to bed and remained there until morning."

Mr. Carpender was interviewed over the telephone on the cruiser Pittsburgh at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where he was the guest yesterday afternoon of his brother, Commander Arthur Carpender. The reporter who spoke to Mr. Carpender gave him the first information he had received that Mrs. Hall had been released on bail. "That's fine," he commented. "I'm glad they've done it."

Mr. Carpender was reminded again of the story told by Mrs. Gibson that on the night of the murder she was at the scene and heard Mrs. Hall cry, "Oh, Henry," and that a little later she saw a man she later learned was Mr. Carpender.

"That's ridiculous," said Mr. Carpender. "Mrs. Gibson either was honestly mistaken or was telling a deliberate falsehood."

Mr. Carpender then added:

"If there is anything I can do toward clearing this thing up, believe me, I'll be very glad to do it. I'd like to see the whole thing unraveled. I'd like to know the solution myself."

SIMPSON ACCEPTS POST.

Special Prosecutor in Hall Case Is a Leading Lawyer and Politician.

TRENTON, N. J., July 30 (AP).—Senator Alexander Simpson of Hudson County announced tonight that he would accept the appointment as special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case.

Senator Simpson is one of New Jersey's most prominent Democratic political leaders and a lawyer of prominence. His legislative activities in the last few years have obscured his courtroom work in the public attention, but he has found time to handle several important cases.

Senator Simpson is a political ally of former Governor Edwards and the present Governor. His work in the Legislature has been on the side of labor, of the wets, and in general against everything hinting of blue laws. He sponsored the bill for the Sunday exhibition of motion pictures and bills legalizing peaceable picketing and opposing injunctions against strikers.

Two years ago Senator Simpson was attorney for J. Harry Foley, New Jersey Superintendent of Weights and Measures, in the New Jersey beer scandal. Recently Senator Simpson has been representing Albert Weisbord, leader of the Passaic textile strikers.

REPORT RUSSIA-JAPAN PLOT

Paris Rumors Have Tokio Plottting for Manchuria and Sakhalin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 30.—In view of the rumors of strained relations between Russia and Poland special interest attaches to reports reaching Paris to the effect that relations between Russia and Japan are becoming strained. It is said that not only with regard to China but also with regard to Manchuria and Sakhalin, Tokio and Moscow find themselves at odds. Japan is said to be preparing an effort to obtain a stranglehold on Manchuria and to have threatened to use force to support her claims to rights in northern Sakhalin.

It is noticed here that the increased diplomatic activities of Japan with regard to Russia corresponds in point of time with the Soviet difficulties which have developed at Moscow.

MOORE GIVES STATE SPECIAL COUNSEL

Asks Appointment of Senator Simpson to Lead County Attorneys in Hall Case.

SIMPSON READY TO ACCEPT

Governor Says There Is More Evidence for This Prosecution Than Four Years Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 30.—The appointment of a special prosecutor by Attorney General Katzenbach was Governor A. Harry Moore's answer to the retaining of Robert H. McCarter by Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and the reported intention of the defense in the Hall-Mills case to engage Max Steuer of New York when the case comes to trial.

Governor Moore explained tonight his purpose in recommending the appointment of State Senator Alexander Simpson of Hudson County as Special Prosecutor. He had announced during the day that he had recommended the appointment in a talk over the long distance telephone with Mr. Katzenbach, who is on vacation in Maine.

"I had two reasons," said the Governor. "In the first place, this case is peculiar in that while the crime was committed in Somerset County the people concerned in it all live in the adjoining county of Middlesex. For that reason there is a sort of divided authority.

"But in addition to that it is quite clear that the defense is to be represented by very eminent counsel, and I think the State should be similarly represented. McCarter is one of the best lawyers in this State. I have heard, too, there is a possibility of the defense engaging New York counsel. Mr. Steuer. So I have recommended the appointment of Mr. Simpson, who in my opinion is one of the best criminal lawyers in the State—in fact, in the whole country."

Simpson Said to Be Ready.

The Governor was asked whether he had talked with Mr. Simpson. He replied he had and added, "I had a telegram from him this evening in which he says:

" 'I am willing, of course, to comply with any request you make.' "

The Governor explained that he had not appointed Mr. Simpson and in fact could not do so. The appointing power lies with the Attorney General, who can only act in such cases as this on the request of the Justice in the district in which the special prosecutor is to act, in this instance Justice Parker.

"I am getting in communication with Justice Parker," the Governor went on. "He doubtless will make the request and the Attorney General will make the appointment. I feel there will be neither any hitch nor any delay."

It was quite apparent from the way the Governor talked that he was actually directing all the moves in the Hall-Mills case and that he had been devoting many hours to it. He was informed of the action of Chief Justice Gummere in fixing bail for Mrs. Hall in $7,500 on each count.

"How much is that altogether?" asked the Governor.

"Fifteen thousand dollars."

The Governor looked thoughtful. Then, answering a question, he said:

"Far be it from me to make any comment on the action of the Chief Justice."

No Action to Get Jury.

The Governor said he had been in touch with the two prosecutors who are handling the case and with Major Kimberling of the State Police during the day and had talked over developments with them. He said he had not taken up the matter of calling a special Grand Jury, nor did he expect to. He also said he had not even mentioned the recalling of the April Grand Jury in Somerset County. He added, significantly:

"The next Grand Jury is convened in September."

The Governor was asked specifically: "Do you think the evidence in this case is stronger now than it was when the first investigation was held?"

"Well, I'll say there is more evidence," Governor Moore replied.

He emphasized the word "more," but he refused to go into any details as to new evidence and said he had not even heard that a former State trooper active in the first investigation and who, it is reported, has appeared to be plentifully supplied with money since is now being actively sought by the authorities.

Governor Moore was asked whether he would comment on the reported feeling in New Brunswick and Somerville that the reopening of the case meant an added burden on taxpayers, who had to contribute many thousands because of the first investigation.

"No. I won't comment on that. Every law case, every case of this sort costs money. There is no way of avoiding it. But this is the sort of case that should be settled once for all and an end put to the rumors about it."

BORAH READY NOW FOR VACATION TRIP

Senator Will Start for Idaho Next Week, Speaking in Kansas on the Way.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Senator William E. Borah, minus the riding horse that carries him daily through Rock Creek Park, rain or shine, will leave for Idaho early next week to spend the next two months on vacation. He remained here after the session to wind up a lot of office business and other matters, one of the most important being the Passaic strike, in which he has been acting as mediator.

The Senator believes plans for its settlement are well under way. He conferred this afternoon with officials of the American Federation of Labor, who are expected to take up the affairs of the striking silk operatives in lieu of the United Front Committee. With the Federation in charge of negotiations, it is expected an early conference will be arranged with the operators and a conclusion of the controversy reached.

Senator Borah will speak at Wichita, Kan., Aug. 5, and then proceed direct to Idaho, where he will visit generally until time to return to Washington. His horse will be left here. Senator Borah has planned little horseback riding while away. Instead, he will be on the go trying to make the rounds of friends.

"Idaho is a pretty big State in its total area," Mr. Borah said this afternoon. "It is as large as all of New England and Maryland."

His colleague, Senator Gooding, is up for re-election this year. Senator Borah does not plan to attend the Idaho convention, which meets Aug. 27. He recalled today that he did not even attend the one which nominated him the last time, not believing in conventions. He was still firmly convinced, he said, that the primary was the best way to nominate candidates for public office.

Recent disclosures of large expenditures in Pennsylvania and Illinois had not changed his view, he said, and he pointed out that under the primary system publicity was possible while under the convention method it was not.

The World Court, Eighteenth Amendment and foreign debts will be the principal subjects treated by the Senator in his speeches.

Reports published here that he might lead a movement for a third party met with little encouragement from the Idaho Senator. He declined to discuss the situation as to 1928.

Wide Lightning Damage in Vermont.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., July 30 (AP).—Lightning killed a boy, destroyed two buildings and temporarily crippled telephone and electric light service in Northern Vermont last night. Lucius Smith, 17, of Richford died instantly when a bolt struck him. A large barn belonging to Smith's father was destroyed by fire started by lightning. At St. Albans Hill the farmhouse of Joseph Gere was struck by lightning and burned.

TWO ROBBERS SHOT BY A PLUCKY DRIVER

According to the truck driver's story, he first suspected that he was being followed at 127th Street and Seventh Avenue. He saw behind his truck a Chevrolet in which were three men. He made a short detour and when the Chevrolet followed, he decided he was "in for it." He placed his pistol in his belt in front. The belt was an ammunition belt and was well filled with cartridges.

At 171st Street and Webster Avenue the Chevrolet, he said, drove up and forced him to the curb close to St. Paul's Place. The three men leaped out and, with their hands in their pockets, ordered him off his truck. But "Markowitz," expecting such an order, began firing at once. There was a small panic in the street as women and children ran for cover. The truck driver said the thieves returned his fire as they fled through 171st Streett toward Brook Avenue.

"Markowitz" gave chase, reloading his pistol as he ran. He emptied it a second time, but lost sight of the fleeing men and gave up the pursuit. Meanwhile the Bathgate Avenue Station had been notified and Detective Lieutenant George Yunge, with Detectives Arch J. Burns, Clarence Austin, Michael Harris and Francis Lenihan, started for the scene in a police automobile.

When they arrived a thousand or more persons had gathered and the driver had remounted his truck. They found the abandoned Chevrolet, however, and followed a clear trail of blood to the Brook Avenue address. The blood trail led them up two flights of stairs to the door of Mrs. Schechter's apartment. Entering they found Russo under the bed, Rinaldi in the kitchen and Pellechio in a clothes closet. Anne and Bertha Schechter had promptly told the detectives three men were in the apartment, although they said the man had tried to make them promise they would say nothing.

Offered to Pay the Children.

"I was lying on the bed in my kimono and Bertha was dressing," said Anne, "when three men pushed open the door and walked in. I wanted to cry out, but I couldn't. Then I lost consciousness for a few moments. Bertha revived me. The men told us they had been in a fight and had been shot, and told us they would pay us well if we would hide them and say nothing to any one. They said they would not harm us any more than they would their own sisters.

"One of them fell on the bed and said he was dying. The other two walked about and one time they shook hands, one of them saying: 'I'm all right, and they will never find us here.' They started to try to get out by the fire-escape, but the house, they said, was surrounded and people could see them. The wounded men told us to bring them some water to drink and I brought some. I was afraid not to. Each of the three men had had his head shaved.

"Mother was out marketing and we didn't know what to do, but when I realized the police were after the men I determined to say they were here. The men did not try to harm us, but we were terribly frightened. When they heard the detectives they hid. The one on the bed just rolled under it."

The Chevrolet bore the license number 4-T-8778. Investigation showed that number to have been issued to Michael Pellegrino of 96 Hull Street for an Essex sedan.

HENDERSON FINDS EUROPE BAFFLING

British Labor Leader Deplores Nationalist Rivalries in Face of Economic Problems.

URGES CONTINENTAL UNITY

Declares Old World Must See Errors of Both the War and the Versailles Peace.

CONTRASTS OUR PROSPERITY

He Credits It to the American High-Wage Theory as Against the Low-Pay Policy Abroad.

By ARTHUR HENDERSON, M. P., Former British Secretary of State for Home Affairs.

Copyright in England and elsewhere by London General Press.

LONDON, July 30.—It is scarcely possible that any thoughtful and discerning person could fail to appreciate the widespread and deep-seated discontent that hangs over Europe like a thick black pall. It is indeed quite unnecessary for one to travel across Europe to discover the unmistakable signs of this discontent which has prevailed throughout practically the whole of the post-war period and is still acute today.

Most Europeans will find ample manifestations in their own homeland. We have been accustomed to regard the bulk of these troubles as part of the liquidation of the war; but while this is partly true, it is not sufficient to explain away either the persistence or the intensity of some of the economic, social and political evils, which have balked the efforts of Governments to cope with them, and continue to do so.

During this period I have had occasion to attend several conferences of the Labor and Socialist movement in different parts of the Continent. All these gatherings have been concerned with some aspect of that many-sided problem which is covered by the expression, "the well-being of the people."

Britain's Post-War Struggle.

One could not fail to be impressed by the fact that the urgent problems with which we have sought to grapple in Great Britain have had their counterparts in other countries. At home in Great Britain the post-war years have been the most difficult ones that I can recall during forty-five years' activity in the trade union and labor movement.

Since the depression set in, the workers have been faced with unemployment of an unparalleled severity, drastic wage reductions, concerted efforts to lower other conditions of employment, and with a burden of taxation that makes the pre-war position pale almost into insignificance.

There have been innumerable trade disputes, some of which have involved the workers concerned in large scale industrial conflicts. The mining industry in particular has almost throughout been in a precarious state, has been the subject of repeated wage readjustments and has been submitted to exhaustive investigation on three occasions.

Is it to be wondered at that throughout these years there has been grave discontent and unrest and resentment, which culminated a few weeks ago in the only general strike that has occurred in English history?

Nationalist Rivalries in Europe.

On the continent there have been both political and industrial manifestations of the same popular discontent, with, in some cases, results far more disturbing. Foremost has been the spread of dictatorship of one color or another.

In France the speed with which each political crisis succeeds its predecessor is indicative of the baffling character of the unstable and critical situation with which the political leaders have to contend.

At times one almost feels that a wave of pessimism has submerged the whole of Europe. Concerted international action is prejudiced or rendered abortive by national rivalries within the League of Nations. National Governments seem fated to temporize with urgent problems in the old pre-war style, instead of boldly facing them in a way that will produce practical results.

American Prosperity in Contrast.

In America, on the other hand, there is an amazing prosperity. The material wealth of the great American Republic has reached almost fantastic proportions. There seem to be as many grades of importance among the millionaires as there are among the rest of society. Taking the workers as a whole, there can be no doubt as to their comparatively high standard of life.

One reads of the workers driving to their jobs in cars; of the huge crowds that attend baseball games; of the phenomenal wealth, for example, of the film industry which depends, of course, for its prosperity on the box-office takings of the cinema houses; of the scores of liners packed to capacity with American tourists bound for Europe's pleasure resorts and centres of interest.

Europeans, burdened as most of them are with taxation, learn with envy that citizens of the United States do not pay income tax unless their income exceeds £1,000 a year. These and many other similar indications of America's prosperity come before our notice from time to time.

Nor is the relatively higher material standard of the American worker due entirely to the fact that America's natural resources, with which she has been endowed in a most lavish scale, became the object of exploiting industry at a much later period than was the case with the greater part of Western Europe.

Opposing Theories of Wages.

An important contributory fact is that American "big business" was the first to recognize the value of the "high wages" policy and the commercial fallacy of low paid labor. They have been much more enterprising and scientific in working out the theory of low costs under capitalism than their European competitors. They have secured large profits because they paid high wages which have resulted in increased output and lower costs.

In Europe, low wages were regarded as essential to low costs, and, generally speaking, are regarded so still, and the last thing that the average employer seems to realize is that low-paid workers are a commercial liability.

Capitalist exploitation in America, with large profits for capital and high wages for labor, may be possible for many years to come; but in Western Europe so long as cut-throat competition, inefficiency and inferior enterprise on the part of employing interests continue, it cannot give anything like the same results.

Thus it is we find a constant struggle is being waged between the interests of capital and the interests of the workers, the one seeking to conserve and improve profits and the other striving to maintain and raise their standards of life.

What might be called the "margin" available to meet these two claims is relatively considerably smaller in Europe than in America, and while there is comparative harmony in industry in the United States and the mutual enjoyment of prosperity by both capital and labor, in Western Europe there is conflict and discontent, and a failing standard of life for the bulk of the producers.

Economic Errors of Versailles.

This obviously disadvantageous position at home and on the Continent has been enormously aggravated by the economic effects of the arrangements made at the Versailles Peace Conference. Instead of the peace negotiations limiting the evil consequences of the war and mitigating their effects, they have only succeeded in prolonging and intensifying them.

The immediate and delayed cost of participation in the war was inconsiderable to America when compared with that which had to be borne by Western Europe.

Great Britain has to carry additional handicap due to the bad statesmanship displayed by the Allies when framing the Versailles Treaty, and this is true also of other parts of Europe.

The workers, whether of the victorious or vanquished nations, are alike paying heavily both for the war and for the peace. We shall go on doing so as long as we fail to face together the realities of the situation.

BELGRADE CABINET MEETS ON COMITADJI

It Is Reported to Have Sent Sharp Note to Bulgaria on the Raids.

BELGRADE, July 30.—An urgent Cabinet Council, consisting of the Foreign, Interior and War Ministers, was held last night to consider the steps to be taken as the result of a battle between invading Bulgarian comitadjis and Yugoslav troops near Kriva Palanka, near the frontier.

The decisions were kept secret.

Belgrade's most influential paper, the Politicka, holds that the fighting took place in consequence of the recently concluded Bulgarian refugee loan in London. Friendly relations with Yugoslavia, it says, have been cooling since this.

The comitadjis, who entrenched themselves among the rocks, fought stubbornly and were dislodged after all-day-and-night fighting only by bringing up Yugoslav artillery. The comitadjis, surrounded, then had to fight their way through the Yugoslav lines.

The definite number of casualties is unknown, but up to nightfall the Yugoslavs lost four dead.

VIENNA, July 30.—Unconfirmed press reports here state that the Belgrade Cabinet sent a sharp note of protest to Sofia declaring that the families of the Yugoslav dead must be indemnified and damages paid to those suffering from bombs, the amounts to be fixed later.

The Yugoslav Minister was allegedly instructed to explain that the Yugoslav Government in future will obtain satisfaction for Comitadji crimes in a manner which it considers best.

The note is said to remind the Bulgarian Foreign Minister of the assurances he gave in June that Bulgaria would do her utmost to prevent frontier raids and to declare, despite this, that Belgrade has been informed that the Bulgarian Government supports the Comitadji incursions.

As proof of political connivance, the note is believed to say that this battle, lasting twenty-four hours, occurred near the Bulgarian frontier without, however, alarming the Bulgarian frontier police, who allowed the Comitadjis to escape back into Bulgarian territory.

The League's Bulgarian refugee loan is held partly responsible for the Comitadji troubles, reported intermittently on the Rumanian and Yugoslav frontiers of Bulgaria.

Rumania and Yugoslavia, who have from the first objected to this loan, suspecting that Bulgaria would use it for political, not humanitarian, ends, point to recent Comitadji inroads as proof that the loan is arousing an aggressive spirit in Bulgaria.

Sofia on the other hand says that Bucharest and Belgrade are inventing and exaggerating these Comitadji raids in order to injure and prevent the floating of the loan, only part of which so far has been authorized.

POINCARE PLANS STILL MORE TAXES

Premier Lets It Be Known He Will Introduce a Series of Fiscal Measures.

COMMISSION VOTES TAX BILL

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 30.—Premier Poincaré let it be known today that his new tax bill forms only the introduction to a series of financial measures by which he hopes to save the paper French franc and place it at a considerably higher value before undertaking stabilization.

What these measures may be is the Premier's secret. However, it may now be said that M. Poincaré's declaration that France could save herself without foreign credits should not be taken as a positive indication of his policy, for it is known that the Premier is considering obtaining foreign credits.

When a member of the Cabinet was asked today how the Government expected to get foreign credits without ratifying the Bérenger debt agreement, he replied that even though America had most of the gold in the world she did not have it all.

This checks up with the report that M. Poincaré expects to obtain British and Dutch loans to bolster the franc. It is also recalled that several days ago Charles Duboin, the Under Secretary for Finance in the Briand-Caillaux Cabinet, stated publicly that M. Caillaux had received a definite promise from London and Amsterdam of credits to carry out the experts' plan.

Higher Tax on Aliens Approved.

It is noticeable that the agitation for special taxation of foreigners continues as part of the Government's new finance plans.

The Chamber's Finance Committee adopted an amendment to M. Poincaré's bill establishing a tax of 375 francs in place of 60 francs for identity cards, obligatory for all strangers who remain in France a month or more.

The commission at first approved a proposal to place a tax of 200 francs on any foreigner entering France, but this was rejected because it was found to violate treaties now in force.

The Journal des Debats this evening advocates a tax of 1,000 francs on each foreigner living in France and calculates that since 3,000,000 foreigners live here it would produce 3,000,000,000 francs.

The Liberté today publishes a report that the short-lived Herriot Government agreed to sell the French tobacco monopoly to a group represented by the Morgan bank. According to the Liberté the monopoly would have been ceded against a new credit of $100,000,000, but it predicts that the present Government will not hold to the bargain.

The Government was unable to begin debate in its financial measures in the Chamber today because of the ruling that a report of the Finance Committee must be published in the Journal Officiel twenty-four hours before the beginning of a debate. The report was published only this morning, so that the debate will begin tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

New Procedure Adopted.

Today's debate was principally concerned with a bill sponsored by Candace, the negro Deputy from Guadeloupe, which was adopted by 350 for, to 201 against. First, the bill provides that no amendment may be introduced in the course of a debate on the Government's present finance bill unless it is sponsored by the Finance Commission; second, that the Government's plan remains as originally presented if the commission's amendments are rejected.

This is very important, as the Socialists and Communists were reported as intending to introduce a large number of amendments in order to lengthen the debates and so obstruct the Government's bill.

The commission's report explains that the tax on foreigners will bring enough revenue to cover the proposed increase in the Deputies' pay from 27,000 to 45,000 francs.

Other amendments of the commission oblige Government creditors to open Treasury or Postal Savings accounts into which the Treasury will pay the sums owed, and a 200,000,000 franc increase to the old age pensions of State functionaries.

Although the opposition manifested to the Finance Commission indicates that Premier Poincaré will get for his financial measures a much smaller vote than was obtained at his initial appearance before the Chamber, the general opinion here is that the new taxes will be voted.

Taxpayers Respond to Appeal.

PARIS, July 30 (AP).—The taxpayers of France are reported to be responding nobly to Premier Poincaré's demand that they pay their 1926 taxes immediately. They are doing this without waiting to know the exact amounts due, the Administration not yet having had time to send out its tax bills.

Reports from the provincial cites of Lyons, Bordeaux, Marseilles and Dijon say that the citizens there also have fallen into the spirit of "helping the Treasury." It is likely, therefore, that the Government's balance with the Bank of France will show much improvement in next week's statement.

Deputy Vicomte Louis de Chappelaine, who drafted the Chamber Finance Committee's report on the Government's financial bill, estimates that the yield of the proposed taxes will amount to 2,458,000,000 francs in 1926 and 9,192,000,000 francs in 1927.

GOV. STRONG TO MEET HEAD OF REICHSBANK

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 30.—Governor Benjamin Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York has an appointment to meet President Hjalmar Schacht of the German Reichsbank in the famous Dutch seaside resort of Scheveningen on Aug. 4, according to reliable information obtained from French sources. Governor Strong was first reported to have conferred with the German financial chief at Antibes, but this was not true, for Dr. Schacht has not been in France.

The mere fact that Mr. Strong and Dr. Schacht will meet for a friendly talk should not arouse undue interest, for Mr. Strong has been seeing many European financial leaders during the last five months, and it is only natural to suppose that he would want to discuss the European financial situation with the head of the German State Bank.

While the French continue to read a vital meaning into the meetings of Governor Strong with influential leaders, it can be stated with authority that, so far as the question of large American credits to France are concerned, the situation remains unchanged.

President Coolidge's definite edict to the effect that there shall be no loans to France before the ratification of the Mellon-Bérenger debt accord serves to postpone all direct financial aid from America until France acts upon the debt settlement. And the Poincaré Government has decided to postpone action until the Autumn session of Parliament.

BELGIAN PARLEY BREAKS DOWN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 30.—Emil Vandervelde, the Belgian Foreign Minister, and Emil Francqui, Finance Minister of Belgium, met Premier Poincaré and other members of the French Cabinet in two short conferences after luncheon and before dinner today and arranged for a series of future meetings in which financial reform, stabilization, &c., will be discussed.

Unfortunately, little could be accomplished today, the French Finance Minister, M. Poincaré, being busy preparing a bill for increased taxation. But the French and Belgians discussed their respective situations fully and openly.

One of the most important points raised was whether or not Italy should be asked to join in the contemplated uniform plan of financial reform to be applied simultaneously to the three countries.

It is too early to make decision now, was the opinion expressed by M. Poincaré, who felt the time was not ripe to attempt to adjust even the French and Belgian situations to a common standard.

It is pointed out that France is an agricultural and Belgium an industrial nation and that France wants to stabilize at a higher rate than Belgium is ready to stabilize at now.

The Premier, however, left the door open for future consideration and cooperation by suggesting periodic meetings in Brussels and Paris.

Observers consider that Belgium may be disappointed by today's results, but that she will persevere nonetheless in revising her plans to suit France's, further meetings serving to lessen the differences of outlook.

SAYS TREATY CAUSES CRIME

German Blames Versailles Compact for Increase in Central Europe.

BERLIN, July 30.—The post-war increase of crime in Germany as well as in Austria, Switzerland and The Netherlands is attributed by Professor Exner, criminological expert at the Leipsic Uuiversity, to the economic war against Central Europe and the economic disturbances perpetuated by the Versailles treaty.

The professor remarks that criminal activity sensibly decreased everywhere in the first years of the war, only to assume tremendous proportions in Germany since. He adds:

"But the increase did not consist primarily of offenses or assaults against persons—that is to say, crimes of violence, but rather depredations against property. In other words, it was not due to the brutalization of human beings through wartime experiences, but to the degeneration of the principles of property and honor resultant from economic distress."

The professor says this is proved by the absence of a crime wave against property in France and England, but he omits to explain why he regards the economic position of those countries as better than Germany's, where he also observes criminal activity lessened after the stabilization of the mark.

STALIN, RED 'BOSS,' OUTWITS HIS FOES

Administration Adopts Trotsky Slogan of "Rationalizing Industry" and Rebukes the International.

MOSCOW, July 30.—They play clever politics, these Communists. Boss Croker or Charles Murphy would turn over in their graves if they could see how Joseph Stalin and the Communist Party Administration are dealing with Leon Trotsky and the lesser members of the opposition. The Administration controls the press and has a firm grip on the party machine. So its tactics are sharp and savage.

The first machine attack was directed against Zinovief M. Lashevich and the other opposition extremists who seemed to be deliberately trying to split the party. They were easily beaten. Thereupon the Administration press proceeded to lump all the rest of the Opposition together and to claim that the resolution from Communist units all over the country disapproving the extremists implied the condemnation of the Opposition as a whole.

The Opposition group centered around M. Trotsky, M. Preobrajenski, M. Radek and M. Piatakof had little sympathy with M. Zinovieff, who had been one of their bitterest adversaries two years ago. But now they are suffering for his failure by being involved in the condemnation of him. This is an admirable object lesson in the present-day political strategy of Moscow.

Stalin Leaves Foes Out in Cold.

The fact is, M. Stalin, the Administration "boss," has more political sense than the rest of the Communist Party put together. He is a remarkable personality, this son of a Georgian cobbler who veils his cold-blooded astuteness behind an apparent brusque simplicity.

"I am a plain, rugged fellow," he told the Communist Party Congress last Winter. "You must forgive my lack of tact or delicacy."

But he has most of his opponents bluffed to a standstill. M. Trotsky is far abler and more popular, M. Piatakof and M. Preobrajensky have far more brains and M. Radek has a far greater knowledge of European affairs, but they sit out in the cold. They are reduced today to speculating on their misfortune.

"If there is an economic crisis this Fall," they say, "through disproportion of the prices of foodstuffs and manufactured goods—if the peasants are dissatisfied and the workers are grumbling—then our chance will come."

Opposition Planks Taken U

Meanwhile the Administration is unobtrusively stealing their thunder. M. Trotsky in his chief argument in the recent party controversy was for the "rationalization of industry." Today the Pravda, the Administration organ, puts forward industrial rationalization as one of the chief planks of the Administration's platform. [Rationalization just means more efficient methods which are obviously desirable.]

Another section of the Opposition advocated slackening the activity of the Communist International. The Administration calls this heresy, but gives the Communist International President, M. Zinovief, a resounding smack on the nose which cannot fail to add to the confusion of the Communist Parties outside of Russia.

Yet another group of the Opposition demands reconciliation with foreign capitalists in order to solve the Russian problems by the help of foreign money. The Administration calls this "Menshevism"—which is one of the ugliest expressions a Russian Bolshevik can apply to a fellow Bolshevik.

But there is no particular reason why this plank also should not be adopted, because the Administration claims to represent the mass of the Russian people, of whom 90 per cent. are peasants. And the peasants want cheap manufactured goods which can only be produced in the near future by the help of foreign capital.

BRITISH DEFEND AMERICAN HISTORIES

While Many Are Called Unfair, Some Are Said to Satisfy the 'Most Exacting Minds.'

LONDON, July 30.—Are American scholars being led away from the historical facts of the American Revolution by the textbooks supplied to them on the subject? Discussion of the question was revived by a recent statement of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin when he addressed members of the Anglo-American Conference of Historians in London.

He expressed pleasure that latterly American historical students are devoting themselves to the period of the American Revolution.

"I think," he said, "it is generally recognized, both in America and in this country, how much harm has been done in the relations between the two countries owing to certain representations of that history before the immature minds of school children in America."

He went on to say he had always lived in the hops that there would be a history of the American Revolution written from the English viewpoint.

"I do not know of one, although there may be one. I want to see that written from the viewpoint of men who fought against George Washington."

This led A. G. Bradley, the historian, to express surprise that Mr. Baldwin never knew that such a work was in existence and to mention two volumes on the American war published in 1911 by the late Henry Belcher, vicar of Lewes, which Professor Bradley describes as "the only history setting forth in detail the English side of the question and exposing the many legends and ex parte statements of popular American historians."

C. Grant Robertson, Principal of Birmingham University, has now written to The London Times pointing out there are American histories on the subject which "would satisfy the most exacting British minds." He mentions particularly S. G. Fisher's work, "The True Story of the American Revolution," which he says "demolished the legendary version." This book was written eight years before Belcher published his work.

Sir William Bull, M. P., also writing to The London Times, recommends historical students to read a book called "Myths and Facts of the American Revolution," written by Arthur Johnston and published in Toronto in 1908. This book, says Sir William, is a commentary on the history of the United States as it is written and gives a true statement of the case, supported by evidence which cannot be controverted.

Sir William Bull himself confesses to having acted as a "corrector" of some American history books. He writes:

"There is no doubt great injury has been done to the friendship between the two nations owing to the fact that until a few years ago the United States history books were grossly unfair to this country.

"Whenever I crossed the Atlantic and it was rough I used to amuse myself by going into the liner's library and correcting in pencil some of the statements contained in these 'histories.'"

NEW COLORS SHOWN IN PARIS FASHIONS

PATCHWORK IN EVIDENCE

Leading Couturiers Feature Coats and Capes for Evening Wear in Coming Season.

PARIS, July 30.—Indications that unsophisticated pale creamy pinks, simple blacks and demure-shaded grays will supplant glittering gold and silver as the leading colors for evening wear this season were emphasized today at the Fall and Winter Exhibtion by the big Paris couturiers.

Patchwork gowns, depending for decoration on inlaid pieces, strappings or inch-wide harness trimmings, and embroidery employed around the neck and down the shoulders to the elbow, imitating the wooden yokes used by water carriers, and much ostrich trimming were the interesting notes in the collections.

The premier showings today of Patou, Yteb, Chantal and Bechoff emphasized pinks and blacks for evening wear. A gown in pale pink, draped on the left side with two large loops at an angle to the skirt, which had a short train touching the floor, was embroidered with silver paillettes.

Coats and capes are both fashionable as evening wraps. A circular cape was shown by Yteb in emerald green satin, lined with emerald swansdown, with a large collar of white swansdown.

The day coats showns so far follow straight silhouette lines, and are trimmed with inlaid pieces or flat pleated flounces and big fur collars and cuffs in long or short-haired fur.

The skirt hangs straight, but is fairly full under a four-inch wide swathed belt.

A navy crêpe full skirt edged with narrow red and gold galloon is in much evidence, but the waist is edged with galloon where it blouses over red. The galloon runs from the neck to elbow down a tight sleeve and around the arm.

Jean Patou's opening was a notable event in the fashion and social world. American music was played out of courtesy to American guests. An elaborate buffet supper in a gayly decorated salon was followed by a ball lasting until dawn.

PARIS MONKEY HOUSE BURNT

Gibberings Bring Keeper to the Scene—All Parrots Perish.

PARIS, July 30.—There was a fire in the monkey house in Paris tonight. When the fumes became strong the baboons and others of our long or short tailed cousins began gibbering and screeching until the keepers came.

On the other side of the house was a fine collection of parrots, which added to the uproar, fluttering their gay plumage among the clouds of smoke.

When keys were brought and the iron bars were unlocked all the parrots had perished, asphyxiated, while the monkeys savagely bit their rescuers, injuring several.

The monkeys were saved, however, and located for the night in other cages, while the monkey house burned to the ground.

The fire is thought to have been due to a short circuit.

RIO GRANDE RUINED, GOVERNMENT FINDS

The commission said that the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company, referred to in the report as the new Denver, has in effect agreed to supply the great sums required for promoting the connecting link to be built and operated by the Western Pacific which was incorporated in 1903 by the promoters. Little work was done for the first two years, but in 1905 banking interests agreed to underwrite $50,000,000 of the Western Pacific's first mortgage bonds "subject to the condition that the Denver companies should be formally committed to the support of the enterprise."

Certain contracts were then entered into, the commission stated, as an outcome of which the Western Pacific and the new Denver eventually were put into the hands of receivers. Bonds of the new Denver depreciated in value and its stock was made worthless. The commission held that the action was taken by the new Denver without first obtaining the consent of the stockholders, although after the commitments had been made the stockholders agreed.

Inquiry Started in 1921.

The investigation was initiated by the commission on July 11, 1921, on its own motion, for the purpose of determining the manner in which the business of the companies involved had been conducted and with a view to making a report and such orders as might be proper in connection with their accounts and practices and the issuance by them of securities. It was not found that there had been deliberate fraud or that any order was necessary or appropriate at this time.

The report, which covered 160 printed pages, was written by Commissioner Hall and gave an exhaustive review of the Western Pacific promotion by the Gould interests from its inception.

"The reported insolvencies and receiverships summarized in the foregoing recital," the commission said in its conclusion, "are all traceable to one source, the assumption in 1905 by the Denver companies of obligations with respect to the Western Pacific and its securities, which were beyond their abilities to fulfil. The enormous losses by stockholders and bondholders and the long period of impaired railroad service followed as the natural economic results of that one ill-advised undertaking."

The commission stated that the greater part of the Western Pacific's railroad traversed a mountainous and desert country, which was utterly unable to contribute any substantial amount of traffic, while ample railroad facilities already existed for traffic moving between the Pacific Coast and all territory east of the Rocky Mountains.

Finds Fault With Financing.

"Western Pacific was built to complete the Gould chain of railroads across the country and place it upon a competitive basis with the systems which already reached the Pacific Coast," the commission said. "In itself this purpose was not unworthy. The new link would assist in developing the territory traversed, would open another through channel for commerce and would sooner or later become necessary for free movement of that commerce.

"But against these public benefits, immediate or remote, must be counted the cost. Was the time ripe? In view of the then existing facilities for through traffic, far in excess of the traffic offered, was this new construction justified or likely to be justified within a reasonable lapse of time? And, if justified, who was to bear the initial costs and make good the operating deficits during the stage of adolescence?

"Gould solved the last question first. He bound that burden upon other roads of his system with little concern as to whether or not they could bear it without impairment of their ability to serve the public adequately over their own rails. This little concern of his is our chief concern."

The commission declared that the early activities of Gould and Jeffery in initiating the Western Pacific project were carried on by use of the funds of the old Denver & Rio Grande, which later was reorganized into the new Denver, without the authority of the company's directors or stockholders.

"If the project was undertaken as a personal venture such misuse of company funds cannot be too severely denounced," the commission said, "and this statement is made with full recognition that the loans obtained from and upon the credit of the old Denver were later repaid."

Concerned for Whole System

A majority of the old Denver directors, the Commission declared, were likewise directors of the Missouri Pacific, and the record, it said, "leaves no doubt that their judgment as to the interests of the old Denver and its subsidiary, the Western company, was influenced by their concern as to the welfare of the Gould system considered as a whole."

After pointing out that the Denver companies would have profited more by the conservation of their resources than by a connection with the Pacific Coast, even if it had been successfully promoted, the Commission said:

"In brief, shortly after the Missouri Pacific control had been established over them, the Denver companies, theretofore profitably and conservatively managed, were committed to an unwise speculation which was intended to benefit all railroads of the Gould system, whereas its risks would be borne by the Denver companies alone and its unsuccessful outcome would affect other railroads of the Gould system only to the extent of the 30 per cent. stock interest in the old Denver owned by the Missouri Pacific.

"That such a situation could have been brought about through ownership of only 30 per cent. of a railroad's stock is illustrative of the inequities which were formerly possible within a railroad system controlled through interlocking directorates."

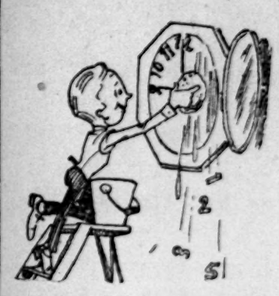
Committed Beyond Strength.

An essential fact, the Commission held, was that the new Denver & Rio Grande, successor to the old Denver companies, was committed by its officials to an undertaking beyond its financial strength. Facing insolvency, it made prolonged, unsuccessful efforts to evade the obligations to which it had been committed, in the interests of the company's security holders.

Agricultural and industrial growth of the country tributary to new Denver lines was retarded and entire communities were subjected to heavy losses by the wrecking of the line, it was held.

"Without intending in any way to minimize the losses to the communities served by the new Denver caused by the indequate service furnished them," the commission added, "it must be emphasized that the chief sufferers from the speculative undertaking to which the new Denver was committed are its security holders. Each step taken by the trustee to enforce the rights of Western Pacific first-mortgage bondholders, whether taken aginst the Western Pacific, whose stock was chiefly owned by the new Denver, or taken directly against the new Denver, tended to deplete the assets of the new Denver.

"Holders of new Denver adjustment bonds and refunding bonds, respectively, have been compelled either to accept heavy immediate losses on their investments or to participate in a reorganization entailing substantial sacrifice of lien priorities. Holders of new Denver stock are holders of worthless paper. There are outstanding $49,775,670, par value, of prefered shares and $38,000,000 par value of common shares of new Denver capital stock. These shares are widely distributed."



Everything's off after noon to-day!

But 'till then, plenty of everything men and boys will want to put on over the week-end.

Plenty service—plenty reasonable prices.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 30.—To Harry Payne Whitney fell the honor of inaugurating the annual race meeting of the Saratoga Association with a winner this afternoon, the three-year-old Peter Pan-gelding Croyden carrying the popular light blue silks and brown cap to victory in the first event on the program. This was a six furlongs dash for three-year-olds and upward, in which seven went to the post. Croyden, at 18 to 5, splashed home through the mud to an easy victory before 10,000 spectators.

From out of the West came that good race mare, Princess Doreen, to take the measure of seven of the best handicap horses in the East in the twenty-fourth running of the Saratoga Handicap, lowering the colors, among others, of Harry Payne Whitney's Blondin, A. C. Bostwick's King Solomon's Seal, Robert L. Gerry's diminutive Peanuts and the Fair Stable's Sarazen.

Princess Doreen was the rank outsider in the field of eight that faced the barrier for the journey of a mile and a quarter, and she paid such as fancied her chances no less than 20 to 1. J. C. Mc Tague had the leg upon the mare, which earned $8,650 for the Audley Farm.

Osmand First Home.

The Saratoga Handicap always features opening day at the Spa, but the spectators enjoyed a double bill. The historic Flash Stakes for the juveniles dividing interest with the event for the older horses. This dash of five and a half furlongs, which was contested for the fifty-second time, was a victory for Joseph E. Widener and Earl Sande. The popular rider booting home the Sweeper colt Osmand to his second victory in as many starts and paying the nice price of 7 to 1. The combination earned $4,550 for the Philadelphia sportsman.

It was an auspicious opening for the Widener outfit, the stable scoring its second victory of the day in the closing number on the card, "Red" Harvey bringing home the gray colt Kiev first in a field of nineteen juveniles. The winner paid 5 to 1.

While the great crowd flocked to the beautiful course of the Saratoga Association on Union Avenue, eager for a glimpse of the thoroughbreds in action, the fates were unkind in the matter of weather. The downpour of yesterday had left the racing strip in poor condition, water standing in spots during the early afternoon, while it was sloppy going except well out in the middle of the track.

Sun Breaks Through.

Ominous clouds hung low all afternoon, but the rain held off and at times the sun flashed out a promise of better weather on the morrow.

So conditions put somewhat of a damper on the sport, which was not of the most thrilling description. There were a large number of scratches, trainers not being willing to take a chance on the very first day of the meeting. But the spectators had a good time, even though they fared poorly in the battle with the bookies. It was a long-shot day, favorites being conspicuous by their lack of success.

As a spectacle the running of the Saratoga Handicap was a keen disappointment, and not even the veriest tyro on the race course could get a kick out of it. Princess Doreen made a show of her field after they negotiated the clubhouse turn and just romped home.

The biggest money winning mare on the American turf, The Princess, is at home in any kind of going, and she surely reveled in the slop this afternoon. It was her first appearance of the year in these parts and Trainer Henderson sent a fit mare to the post.

Sarazen Shares Favoritism.

Sarazen and the Brookmeade Stable's Rock Star shared the interest of the public and both closed at 3 to 1, with Peanuts at 7 to 2 and Blondin at 9 to 2 and heavily played. As Princess Doreen had not been under colors since the Latonia meeting, she received scant consideration. The first line sent out held her at 15 to 1 and with few takers and her price was marked up to 20 to 1. It was somewhat of a shock when the Purple and Lavender silks showed half a dozen lengths in front at the winning post.

The start was none too good and Rock Star got the worst of it. McTague took no chances with his opposition. The Princess broke from an outside post position and was in the best of the going in the first rush down the home stretch. Once she poked her nose out in front there was none to challenge her position, and the further she went the wider the gap she opened on her opposition.

Sarazen broke well, but on the first turn Fritz Weiner feared he was going to get into close quarters and took up. That was fatal to any chances the erratic gelding might have had under his crushing impost of 129 pounds, and while Weiner made a strong effort with his mount on the back stretch and succeeded momentarily in moving up on the inside of Blondin to second position, it was only a flash and Sarazen gradually dropped back to finish fifth

Blondin Hangs On.

Blondin, however, stuck on tenaciously and King Solomon's Seal never threatened him for the place. McAtee finished out in the middle of the track with Blondin, five lengths in front of the Bostwick gelding, which had a like advantage over Peanuts.

The fractional times of the race were as follows: 0:24., 0:49, 1:14 1-5, 1:40 2-5, 2:08 4-5. Princess Doreen carried 116 pounds.

Much more of a contest was the race for the Flash Stakes and it was marked by first-class horsemanship on the part of Sande on the Widener candidate. There was a red-hot tip in the paddock for H. T. Archibald's Candy Queen, winner of her last start at Fairmount Park, and the filly was backed into favoritism at 9 to 5 at post time. H. P. Whitney's Witchmount being the second choice at 3 to 1, but the latter never got a look at the money, while Osmand took the measure of Candy Queen by three parts of a length.

Sande broke Osmand well and this colt, which has always been highly thought of by the stable, was in the contention from the rise of the barrier. Candy Queen was on the inner rail at the barrier and Sande quickly took Osmand up on the outside to measure strides with the favorite. He kept him in the better going and refused to be drawn into a whipping contest in the drive down the home stretch.

Thurber Goes to Whip.

Thurber used his bat freely, while Sande drew his only once and that was inside the sixteenth pole, where he shook up the colt for his final effort. The filly had three lengths at the wire on W. S. Kilmer's Sun Forward, a 10-to-1 outsider. The fractional times were 0:23 4-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:08 2-5.

The first steeplechase of the meeting was even more of a procession than the afternoon feature. It was an outlander that carried off the honors so easily, the winner being the English-bred gelding Silver Hackle, owned by R. W. Bird of Boston, which has raced only three times on this side of the water, starting his career with a victory at the United Hunts Meeting and having finished second twice at the meeting at Brookline last Spring.

With such contention in the field of ten as C. V. Cushman's Courteous and Mrs. G. W. Loft's Britannic, Silver Hackle was not considered by the public, the first named being the short priced favorite. Even Trainer Booth was not optimistic over Silver Hackle's chances, although he thought he might get in the money. So the gelding was held at 15 to 1 and few interested.

As the race was run Silver Hackle was much the best of the lot. In well under 140 pounds, receiving a ten-pound allowance because Jockey F. Duncan had never ridden a winner, Silver Hackle went to the fore as soon as the field was well settled for the two-mile journey and was never in danger. Duncan rated him out in front from start to finish and at the end he had a margin of eight lengths on the Brookmeade Stable's Gravite II.

There were two casualties, L. Dominick's Burton II and rMs. Loft's Britannic coming to grief the second time over the Liverpool jump. Horses and riders escaped injury, Pierce even retaining Britannic's bridle and bringing his mount to a quick stop.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 30.—It was a damp and somewhat inauspicious opening for the Saratoga Association's race meeting here today.

The prospect of a worthy contest for the Miller Stakes tomorrow afternoon is not promising. Only Mars and Nurmi were named through the entry box, while Rock Star and Apostle were added later.

There are more horses quartered here than can find profitable employment, but it will take better track conditions to bring out the best.

Followers of th eWidener colors made a killing in the final number. There had been rumors that the gray colt, Kieve, was the fastest thing in the Widener barn and there was a rush by those in the know to get aboard. The price of 5 to 1 was acceptable.

Everybody in Saratoga apparently turned out for the inauguration, while horsemen from all parts of the country were about the clubhouse and paddock.

It was announced today that Messrs. Morris and Walden have purchased from J. P. Hornung the four-year-old horse, Bucellas, by Buchan out of Wendela, and he will be shipped to this country from England immediately. The horse is a dark bay, standing a trifle over sixteen hands, and his beam a good winner in England. He will stand at Middleburgh, Md.

11 MAY START TODAY IN $100,000 DERBY

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 30.—Eleven three-year-olds, representing eight different interests, have been announced as named to start in the $100,000 American Derby to be run at the Washington Park track tomorrow afternoon. Of these Edward R. Bradley's Boot to Boot and Bagenbaggage, coupled as the Idle Hour Stock Farm entry, will probably rule about an even choice to win with Walter J. Salmon's Display.

W. R. Coe's Black Maria, the only filly entered, also will have a following. The others, which are not considered to have much of a chance, are C. Koerner's Blockhead, Bolton and Smiling Gus, coupled as the C. E. Durnell entry; Colonel Board and David L., coupled as the M. Lowenstein entry; F. M. Grabner's Chicago and the Keeneland Stud's Open Hand.

Officials of the track have estimated that more than 50,000 will see the race.

The winning jockeys in this year's Kentucky Derby and the Preakness Stakes will have mounts in the American Derby. Albert Johnson, who rode Bubbling Over first in the Churchill Downs classic, will have the mount on the colt's stablemate, Boot to Boot, while Johnny Maiben, rider of Display in the Preakness, again will be up on that colt. Benny Breuning will ride Black Maria and Earl Poole Smiling Gus. The field on the whole is probably the cheapest that ever entered such a valuable stake race.

The race will be run at the exacting distance of a mile and a half. The track is fast at present, but the weather was cloudy and threatening late this afternoon. There will be seven other races on the card.

The entries (F):

He came through on the inside in the stretch and finished fast. What'll I Do ran a good race. Extreme had no excuse.

a Rolling Plains Stable and Mrs. F. A. Clark entry.

Silver Hackle, displaying great speed and fencing well, ran into the lead early and drew away after clearing the last fence to win in a gallop. Gravity II was hard ridden all the way and just lasted to save the place. Ruine broke slowly and was outrun for the first mile but closed with a rush. Winoya, always close to the pace, ran a good race. Amstello had no excuse. Britannic and Burton II lost their riders at the twelfth jump.

Candy Queen was rushed up on the inside in the deep going and was taken back around the turn, but came again in the stretch. Sun Forward broke slowly, but worked his way up and outgamed Witchmount for the show. The latter tired badly under the weight. Santrock had no excuse.

Princess Doreen, showing a decided liking for the muddy going, opened a wide gap around the paddock turn. She maintained an even pace and won galloping. Blondin went up fast in the run down the backstretch but came very wide in the stretch and was next beat. King Solomon's Seal closed a big gap and was a fast-going third. Peanuts did not like the going. He could not untrack himself. Sarazen broke well, but was crowded back. He made up ground but then quit to a walk. TRACK RECORD SET BY PETER MANNING.

PACING MARK UNSCATHED

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 30.—Peter Manning, world's champion trotter, broke the track record for trotting by negotiating the mile in 2:05¼ in an exhibition which featured the getaway day program of the initial 1926 Orange County circuit harness horse racing meet at Ideal Park, Endicott, this afternoon. Alonzo McDonald drove the horse, which now is the property of the Hanover Pashoe Stables, and pace was furnished by a runner.

It was of the first day no events were won in straight heats, and the 2:05 pacers disappointed by not coming as close to the track record of 2:05 as they did last year. George F. Johnson had offered $500 to the driver of a horse shattering the record. Dickerson tried hard to get Anna Bradford's Girl, the winner, under the wire faster than Adior Guy made it in 1920, but 2:06 was the closest he came.

Dickerson's charge was fourth in the first heat, breaking twice. Kate Hal took the mile. Anna Bradford's Girl came back to capture the second, and, despite going into the air at the start and losing the pole, did it in 2:06. She came up and grabbed the lead and pole after a poor half at the three-quarter mark of the final heat and won by three lengths.

Mobrey drove Claude Madden to victory in the 2:15 trot for a $5,000 purse, winning the last two heats after bowing to Mary Wood, who took second money in the first mile. The time of two heats was exceptional—2:09¾.

Stokes set out, after taking the first two heats, with Tommy Murphy's Mike Dillon, to make it a straight-heat victory in the 2:21 trot, but Sonya came up to third place at the three-quarter and nosed M

By IK SHUMAN.

Superior pitching by Charles Flint Rhem, or, as some fans might put it, inferior hitting by the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday gave the Cardinals a victory in the first game of the present series, 5 to 2. It was the Giants' fourth straight defeat, and it made any pennant aspirations our boys may still entertain seem almost hopeless, for the Cards are here for four more games, which include a double-header today.

Rhem, whom the Giants defeated on his own diamond last Saturday, when he threw away an easy grounder to let two runs come across in the eleventh inning, had the Giants helpless until the eighth inning, when, on a rally started by Bill Terry, they put over their two runs. Meanwhile, Rhem's teammates were hitting Fred Fitzsimmons quite freely in the first six innings, and in the ninth inning, when Jack Scott tried his luck after Fred had been taken out for a pinch hitter, who was none other than Terry, the Cards got another run.

Two of the Cardinals' runs were homers by Jake Flowers, who is playing second base during the convalescence of Rogers Hornsby, and by Lester Bell, whose circuit drive was his twelfth of the season. Flowers hit his homer in the third inning while Ray Blades was on first, and Bell hit his in the fourth. Both drives went into the left field stands. Incidentally the game was the twenty-first successive contest in which Bell has hit safely, tying the league record of the season made by Kiki Cuyler of the Pirates.

Giants Threaten Early.

However well the pitching of Rhem proved to be—and it was good, as he allowed only seven hits during the nine innings—it seemed as if the Giants would get to him as the game started. Frisch scratched a hit off Rhem's glove and stole second easily after Young flied out to Southworth. Rhem walked Lindstrom. Tyson popped to Thevenow for the second out, and then the fans became highly excited as Kelly beat a slow roller which Bell overran. The bases were full, but Mueller grounded out to Bottomley, and after that the Giants didn't get a man as far as third until the eighth inning.

Fitzsimmons's chief misfortune was that he permitted the two home runs. He wasn't pitching bad ball by any means; and although he was being hit, good fielding, especially by Frisch, several times saved him on the shorter blows. Even as early as the second inning, with one down, the Cards got Bell as far as third on an error by Jackson and a single to centre by Douthit. Fitzsimmons walked O'Farrell and filled the bases, but Frisch prevented scoring by catching a hard-hit liner by Thevenow and doubling Douthit off second, as pretty a bit of fielding as the game afforded.

But it was not as startling as the freakish put-out obtained by Frisch in the sixth, when the Cards attained the doubtful distinction of getting four straight hits off Fitzsimmons but scoring only one run.

Frisch Makes Odd Put-Out.

Southworth led the inning by singling to right and taking third on a single to left by Bottomley. Bell hit a hard one to Frisch, who found it hard to handle and fumbled it. Southworth got home easily, while Bottomley took second and started toward third. Frisch got the ball near the second-base bag, and Bottomley dived back toward second simultaneously with Frisch. They met head-on, and when the dust settled Bottomley was called out.

That was the first out, and when Douthit singled to right, sending Bell to second it looked as if the Cards were sure to score another, but Jackson took O'Farrell's grounder over second base, touching the bag as he scooped the ball, forcing Douthit and then doubling O'Farrell at first.

But fielding doesn't win ball games, and try as the Giants would, they could score only in the eighth. Terry, as has been said, singled to right, going to third on a double by Frisch and scoring on a grounder by Young to Flowers, on which Frisch went to third. Lindstrom lifted a sacrifice fly to left and Frisch scored with the second run.

Scott fared badly in the ninth by allowing Douthit and O'Farrell to double in the order named, and Douthit came in with the Cards' fifth run.

RUTH HITS HIS 32D HOMER

Blow Helps Hoyt to Five-Tally Margin, but He Loses It All in Third Inning.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.
Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—The Browns are getting better. They made the Yanks go eleven innings today before the Elsiarites folded up like a trick hat and were beaten, 10 to 8. Usually the Browns can lose deftly enough in nine innings, but they were full of stubborn ways this afternoon and battled the Yanks to the final minute.

It was the fourth straight victory over the Browns and the Yanks' ninth victory in a row. Starting with the second game of a double-header in New York, the Hugmen have trampled over the White Sox five times and the Browns four.

When the two teams staggered into the tenth round E. Garland Braxton and Joe Giard were the pitchers. Braxton had relieved McQuaid, who had rescued Waite Hoyt in the third inning. Giard was Manager Sisler's second guess, having gone to the aid of Win Ballou when the latter was knocked silly in the Yankee third.

Yanks Jump Ahead in Tenth.

Dugan walked in the tenth, went to second on Braxton's single and scored when Combs hit into centre for a base. Ernie Wingard took Giard's place at this moment and retired the side.

The Browns were full of fight and rushed back with the tying run in their half of the frame. Sisler singled, but was forced by Williams. Miller pounded a hit to centre and Williams ran to third, while Shocker relieved Braxton. McManus's grounder to Lazzeri scored Williams and sent Miller to second, but Gerber was easy for Dugan and Gehrig.

The Yanks came back in the eleventh with a rally that the Browns couldn't match. Gehrig singled to right and was forced by Ruth, who galloped to third on Paschal's hit to centre and came home when Miller threw the ball past third. Paschal hurried to third on the error and scored on Lazzeri's line drive into Rice's glove.

George Herman Ruth hit his thirty-second homer in the second inning, the ball soaring clear over the right-field stand and landing in an adjacent street. He is nine homers or twenty-two games behind his 1921 record pace.

The Yanks gave Hoyt a five-run lead, but Waite shot the entire roll in the third inning, when the Browns tied it up. In the fifth Ken Williams's synthetic homer put the Browns two runs ahead, but the Yanks squared the match on the seventh green.

Paschal's Homer Opens Second.

The Yanks broke out into a rash of runs in the second. After Paschal had flogged a homer into the left-field bleachers, Lazzeri tripled to centre and came over when Ballou made a three-base wild throw of Severeid's grounder.

More doing in the third. Combs singled, was sacrificed along by Koenig and scored on Gehrig's hit to left. Ballou ripped two strikes over on Ruth, but you can't fool the big fellow all the time. He laid all his weight against the next one, and the ball disappeared joyfully over the roof of the right-field stand, touching nothing en route.

This five-run lead evaporated into thin air in the same inning. Schang beat out a bunt to Lazzeri, Gerber popped up and Bennett batted for Ballou and singled to left. Melillo's walk filled the bases and Rice's double to left scored two. Melillo ran in after Sisler's liner to Paschal. Williams walked, then worked a double steal with Rice, who scored. Miller's single past Dugan sent in Williams with the tying run, and Mr. Hoyt sought a cool spot on the bench and McQuaid trudged out to retire the side.

Browns Get Two More.

The Browns put over two more runs in the fifth on Sisler's infield hit and Williams's cheap homer into the right-field stands—a line drive that any right fielder would have caught on a full-sized field.

Plan Million-Dollar Autodrome in Newark With Seating Capacity of at Least 100,000

NEWARK, N. J., July 30.—Plans for the sale of 120 acres of city property at Port Newark Terminal, on which is to be constructed a one and one-half mile automobile race track with grand stands capable of seating between 100,000 and 125,000 persons, were announced today by Mayor Thomas L. Raymond.

The group of financiers negotiating for the purchase are wealthy business men and sportsmen from Brooklyn and New York City, headed by Mortimer S. Coward of Glen Ridge, N. J., President of the Coward Shoe Company. The estimated cost of the track and grand stands, exclusive of the property, will come to more than $1,000,000.

FADING ATHLETICS BEATEN AGAIN, 4-1

CLEVELAND, July 30 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians made it four straight from the Athletics for a clean sweep of the series by winning today, 4 to 1. Errors by Rommel and Hauser allowed the Indians to score all their runs.

Shaute held the Mackmen to seven hits, which were well scattered. Brilliant fielding by J. Sewell, Welch and Jamieson featured the contest.

DETROIT, July 30 (AP).—Timely hitting gave Boston its third victory out of four starts against the Tigers, the Red Sox winning today 4 to 3. Zahniser weakened after the seventh and Heimach finished. A Tiger rally that put men on second and third with two out in the ninth was ended when Heimach fanned Wingo.

Miss Orcutt Gains a Four-Hole Lead on Miss Collett, but Loses at Home Green

MISS COLLETT WINS ON THE HOME GREEN

SQUARES MATCH ON 17TH

Special to The New York Times.

EASTERN POINT, Conn., July 30.—Staging as splendid and spectacular a comeback as can be found in American golf annals, Miss Glenna Collett successfully defended her title and brought the eighth annual women's invitation tournament for the Shennecossett trophy to a remarkable close today by defeating Miss Maureen Orcutt, the young metropolitan champion, by the narrow margin of 1 up.

When Miss Collett won the eighteenth hole, 4 to 5, she completed a triumphal march to victory launched when she was apparently a very badly beaten champion.

At the twelfth hole Miss Orcutt had her 4 down and seemed to be going stronger all the time. The gallery predicted that Miss Orcutt had the trophy within her grasp, and that the match would go no further than the fourteenth hole. She apparently had everything needed to win; her drives were splendid, powerful and well directed, and her putting was of a high order.

Miss Collett retained the Shennecossett trophy today because she refused to be beaten. Trailing her brilliant young antagonist until the latter had piled up a lead of four holes, Miss Collett suddenly called on her resources and began to catch up to her rival.

Evens Count on Seventeenth.

Miss Collett squared the match on the seventeenth hole and won it on the next, but only after a great battle.

The match was a fine one from start to finish. Both girls started with magnificent drives at the first and second holes. The first two holes were halved, and then Maureen, after two rifle shots down the fairway, chipped close to the cup and dropped a putt for a par 4, winning the third hole. They halved the next two and then Glenna squared matters by winning the sixth, getting on in one, while Maureen's iron shot flew to the edge of the green, from which she had to chip on.

Miss Orcutt wasn't worried by that, but went right after the next one, winning it in 4. She was aided by the fact that Miss Collett drove out of bounds in teeing off, which cost her a stroke which she could ill afford.

After halving the eighth Miss Orcutt became 2 up at the turn, winning the ninth hole by clever putting. Miss Collett was showing no poor advantage on the green. Miss Orcutt won the tenth also, getting on in 3 and sinking her putt, while Miss Collett had to explode on to the green from a trap in which her second shot landed. She made a good putt, but missed and had to use another.

Eleventh Hole Is Halved.

The eleventh hole was halved in one above par 3, Glenna reaching the green but requiring three putts to Maureen's two. The twelfth hole went to Miss Orcutt when, after both being in the rough on their second, they made fair approaches, but again Miss Collett took one more putt than Miss Orcutt.

Up to that time Miss Collett's principal weakness seemed to be her short approaches, as a result of which she nearly always had stiff putts to tackle, but things began to happen at the thirteenth.

Miss Orcutt topped her brassie and fell near a trap. Miss Collett's second shot was far down the fairway and her third landed her high up in the right-hand corner of the green. Miss Orcutt took four to get on and missed her putt. Miss Collett sank her second, winning the hole, 5 to 6, and lowering Miss Orcutt's lead to three holes.

The next hole was uneventful, being halved in five good shots, although Miss Collett landed in a trap on her second. She got out of the trap easily, and her style of play even then showed that a change had taken place.

Miss Collett was on in one at the fifteenth, Miss Orcutt being a bit short, her chip going far past the cup. She took two putts to Miss Collett's one, the hole going to Miss Collett, 3 to 4, reducing Miss Orcutt's lead to two holes.

Miss Collett took the next, the sixteenth, 4 to 5, when Maureen missed a four-footer after getting on in three.

HALEY IS VICTOR IN SHAWNEE GOLF

GRACE TAKES TWO MATCHES

Special to The New York Times.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Pa., July 30.—Despite the fact that Arthur Yates, the medalist, withdrew from the tournament, there was no falling off in the calibre of play in the first and second rounds of the invitation golf tourney at the Shawnee Country Club today. Wayne Haley of Essex County, formerly of Williams College, completed the course in 72 to defeat C. B. Bowles of Baltimore, the erstwhile Yale captain, the match being carried to the home green.

The bright spot of the Haley-Bowles match in the afternoon was an eagle 2 registered at the 451-yard fourteenth by the Essex County golfer.

Although this placed Bowles 2 down, the Baltusrol golfer fought back gamely, winning the next two holes and squaring accounts. He had a 2 at the short sixteenth due to a deadly tee shot. At the seventeenth Haley won with a birdie 4, laying a long spoon shot to the green. Neither could get better than a 4 at the home hole, the half there leaving Haley a winner by 1 up.

The cards:

Haley	5	5	5	4	3	4	5	4	4—39
Bowles	4	4	5	4	3	4	5	5	4—38

JUNIOR POLO TODAY; SCHEDULE CHANGED

Injury to Rodman Wanamaker Jr. Shifts First Meadow Brook Game to Wednesday.

An accident to Rodman Wanamaker Jr., playing back on the Meadow Brook team, has changed the complexion of the junior polo championship which will begin this afternoon at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club, Rye, N. Y. The Meadow Brook team, instead of meeting Bryn Mawr in the opening match this afternoon as originally intended, will not play until Wednesday. The Greenwich team will meet the Bryn Mawr four this afternoon. The contest is scheduled for 3 P. M.

On Wednesday, Meadow Brook, with Wanamaker in the line-up, will ride against the defending champion, the United States Army four. The injury to the Meadow Brook back is not serious and he is expected to be fit for play by Wednesday.

Kaplan Scores Knockout and So Does Shea in Chicago.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 30 (AP).—Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, bantamweight champion, won from Midget Smith, Chicago, on a foul in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout here tonight. Phil Kaplan, New York, won a knockout over Larry Estridge in the third round of another ten-rounder because the former negro middleweight champion refused to fight.

The semi-final ended in a knockout for Eddie Shea, Chicago, who floored Allentown Johnny Leonard ten times before the referee stopped it after Leonard took counts of nine three times in the sixth round. Shea broke both of his hands.

Maturo Wins at 3-Cushions.

R Class Skippers on the Sound Are Up Against a Hard Task

Their Efforts Toward Winning Ladies' Plate Next Week Will Bring Them Into Competition With the Famous Down East Helmsmen in Five Days of Racing.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Kipling to the contrary, nothwithstanding, East meets West in a test of yacht-racing skill during the coming week at Marblehead, Mass., where the championship of the lively R Class is to be decided. The trophy emblematic of the championship is the Eastern Yacht Club Ladies' Plate, a prize donated by women members of the Marblehead organization and placed in competition last year for the first time.

In hopes of winning the R Class title and later bringing back the Manhasset Cup to Long Island Sound, New York yachtsmen are making the most serious invasion of eastern waters that they have ever attempted. Seven of the Long Island Sound R boats are either at Marblehead or on the way there to take part in the races for the Ladies' Plate, beginning Monday, and later the Manhasset Bay Cup, for which six of the Sound yacht clubs have challenged.

Some of the New York R boats may have a preliminary canter in the open regatta of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead, which is to be held this aftegnoon, but it is probable that several of them will be hauled out at a local yard to be groomed for next week's tests.

The invading yachts from the westward looking for high racing honors will be handled by crack skippers of the Long Island Sound fleet, but they will be pitted against the best at Marblehead, and if the New York men win, they will know they have been to the races.

The local Class R sloops that have fared away eastward are the Quiver, owned by Commodore Philip R. Mallory of the American Yacht Club; Ardelle, owned by Donald H. Cowl, Manhasset Bay Yacht Club; Doress, Commodore Robert Law Jr., Indian Harbor Yacht Club; Grayling, Junius Morgan, Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club; Astrild, H. Wilmer Hanan, Larchmont Yacht Club; Bob-Kat, owned by R. B. Meyer, Manhasset Bay and Alarm, owned by Robert Mallory and Hamilton Hitt, Indian Harbor.

Quiver, one of the smartest lightweather performers on the Western Sound, will be sailed by Phil Mallory, who will have with him as first mate his brother, Vice Commodore C. D. Mallory, of the Indian Harbor Club. Ardelle, a new Mower-designed sloop which has raced well on the Sound this season, will be sailed in the Marblehead races by R. P. Alker, one of the best of the Sound helmsmen.

Doress, the Indian Harbor aspirant, also a clever boat in light breezes, will be sailed by the veteran, Burt Hart, which is an assurance that she will be well handled. Bob-Kat, a new boat this year, designed by C. Sherman Hoyt, which has shown ability to travel well in both moderate and strong winds, will be sailed by Captain Hoyt. Grayling will be sailed by Junius Morgan; Astrild by Captain Hanan, and Alarm by Robert Mallory.

Altogether the array of Long Island Sound talent could hardly be better, but they will find the job cut out for them at old Marblehead. The boats and skippers they will be called upon to beat, if possible, will include the Yankee, that swift sloop that carried away the Manhasset Cup last year at Indian Harbor, which will be sailed by her owner, C. A. Welch 2d; the Gossoon, sailed by none other than the renowned Charles Francis Adams, Shah of the Down East skippers; Mary, one of the crack new boats this year, owned by C. H. W. Foster; Ruweida V, owned by Sydney Beggs; Bonnie Kate, Dr. Morton Prince and several others that the Marblehead men say can easily outsail the Western boats.

Racing history should be made next week off the old Eastern seaport. The races for the Ladies' Plate will be held each day from Monday until Friday. The method followed for this trophy is to race the boats in divisions, with three or four in each division, according to the number of entries. The competitors will be drawn by lot and each boat will race against every other boat entered, assuring a thorough test for the title honors. Prizes are given each day to the division winners and the final winner is determined on the total points scored.

Following the races for the Ladies' Plate, the R Class men will rest for two days, and, beginning on Monday, Aug. 9, the series for the Manhasset Cup will start and will be continued on Tuesday and Wednesday.

A fine racing fleet is expected to come out today to sail for the prizes offered by the Stamford Yacht Club in its thirty-fourth annual regatta. All of the regular racing classes of the Long Island Sound fleet will be well represented, and it would not be surprising to see a squadron of eighty boats at the starting line.

J. P. Rockwood is Chairman of the Stamford Race Committee, and he will be assisted in handling the fleet by J. A. B. Smith, H. W. Sturges, A. J. Barzarghi and Everett Dominick.

Races on Long Island Sound today will also include the two final contests in the elimination series to determine the skipper who will sail the defending yacht of the Western Long Island fleet in the coming International Star Class championships. The issue has been close between George Elder, sailing Iscyra; Ernest Ratsey in Irex and B. L. Linkfield in Colleen, and today's races will decide the momentous question.

Frank Colladay, Chairman of the Race Committee of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, has sent out the circulars giving the conditions governing the interclub cruise, which this year again precedes the New York Yacht Club's annual fixture. This year's interclub event is expected to attract an unusually large racing fleet, including, as it does, not only the Indian Harbor and Larchmont squadrons but those of the American and Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Clubs.

According to the circular, the rendezvous of the interclub cruise will be made off the Indian Harbor Yacht Club at 6 P. M. Saturday, Aug. 14. A reception will be held by Commodore Robert Law Jr. for the Captains and their guests at the clubhouse at 9:30 that night, and on the following day the first racing run of the cruise will be made from Greenwich to Port Jefferson for prizes offered by the Indian Harbor Yacht Club.

The second squadron run of the cruise will take place the following day from Port Jefferson to Duck Island Roads, which is just west of Saybrook, Conn. Prizes for this run will be offered by the American Yacht Club. The third run, on Tuesday, Aug. 17, will take the racing squadron from Duck Island Roads to New London in time to join the rendezvous of the New York Yacht Club.

The Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club offers the prizes for the third run, and the Larchmont Yacht Club gives a prize each day for the best corrected time in the schooner division, and a prize for sloops under the same conditions.

19 YACHTS START ON 250-MILE RACE

FINISH EXPECTED SUNDAY

Craft Resort to Gasoline as Wind Dies Down Soon After Gun Sends Them on Way.

With only a light southerly air filling their sails, nineteen yachts drifted slowly over the line last night in Little Neck Bay, at the start of the annual Bayside-Block Island Auxiliary Handicap, under the auspices of the Bayside Yacht Club. As they crossed at 7 o'clock, the schooner Kumalong, owned by J. W. Ripley of the Bayside Yacht Club, was moving along slowly in the lead with the yawl Hutoka and the schooner Sunbeam close astern. The fleet was the largest that ever started in this event, sixteen having taken part last year.

The race is on time allowance and Sunbeam, a schooner 60 feet long over all is the scratch boat, while the yawl Gemsbeck has the highest handicap of 6 hours 45 minutes. The distance of the race, which takes the yacht eastward on Long Island Sound, through the Race, around Block Island and return, is 250 miles and the winning yacht is expected to finish some time Sunday afternoon.

Soon after the fleet got over the starting line the breeze dropped out altogether and most of the yachts turned on their motors. Each boat is allowed to use a certain amount of gasoline, according to its size.

There were six schooners, eight yawls, three sloops and two ketches in the fleet. The schooners that started, with the name of the owner and club represented, follow: Sunbeam, Charles A. Gould 2d, Bayside Yacht Club; Kumalong, J. W. Ripley, Bayside Yacht Club; Sea Lady, Percy Mack, Bayside Yacht Club; Northern Light, George G. Smith Jr., Shelter Island Y. C.; Camilla, Otto Harbeck, Morris Yacht Club; Voyager, W. B. Lockwood, Hingham Yacht Club.

Yawls—Hutoka, George B. Drake, Bayside Yacht Club; Amelita, J. B., Cruising Club of America; Playmate, C. N. Friesch, Bayside Yacht Club; Shearwater, E. R. Downe, Larchmont Yacht Club; Sagola, B. A. Hinman, Horshoe Harbor Yacht Club; Wennonah, W. E. Webb, Larchmont Yacht Club; Docani, H. T. Noble, Bayside Yacht Club, and Gemsbok, Benjamin A. Smith, Bayside Yacht Club.

Kathea's Pilot Says He Will Cover Course Alone—Construction Also Disputed.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 30 (AP).—While judges and club officials argued and debated late tonight, the outcome of this year's George Cup classic for the R class championship among Lake Ontario yachts was undecided.

According to the score that the judges stand by, Kathea II of the Crescent Yacht Club of Watertown and Acadia of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto are tied for first place with seven points each, while Momiji of the Rochester Club is out of the running with four points. Acadia won the first race, in which Kathea was third, while Kathea won both yesterday's and today's races, with Acadia second.

Tonight Commodore Gooderham of the Toronto Club intends that there is no tie. He points out that the judges on Wednesday disqualified Momiji for a breach of rules which gave Kathea two points, only later to reverse their decision, giving Momiji two points and Kathea one.

Such reversal of decision is unfair, he says, and the first decision should stand, thereby giving Kathea a total of eight points. Gooderham says that if the North American Yacht Racing Union finds his objection to Kathea's construction unjustified he is willing to concede the race to the American defender. His boat will not race tomorrow, he says.

J. Wyatt Uhlin, skipper of Kathea, is prepared to go around the course tomorrow, alone if necesary, to show he abides by the judges' ruling. It is the first time a George Cup race ever ended in a dispute.

The Crescent Yacht Club is present owner of the George Cup, having won it from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club at Toronto last year.

MISS WILLS WINS BUT PLAYS WEAKLY

Beats Mrs. Schmitz, 6-2, 6-1, but Makes Many Errors and Misses 2 of 3 Smashes.

MEETS MRS. ROESER TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

EAST HAMPTON, N. Y., July 30.—Miss Mary K. Browne, after a display of brilliant tennis, stands in the final round of the first annual invitation tennis tourney of the club here this evening awaiting the arrival of Miss Helen Wills.

One round behind, the youthful champion plays Mrs. Edna Hauselt Roeser tomorrow afternoon. The final has been put off until Sunday morning as a result of yesterday's rain, which kept the players idle.

Miss Wills today defeated Mrs. Frederick Schmitz of New York, a former indoor champion, in straight sets, at 6—2, 6—1. Miss Browne came through after a sharp, clean-cut battle with Mrs. Molla Mallory, winning at 6—4, 6—4. She was already ahead of the field and her victory placed her in the final round.

The fact that Miss Wills, who was operated on early last month, did not dare to play more than one match a day is stretching out the tourney until Sunday morning. The prospects are that unless she rounds far more rapidly into form than she has done, she will be defeated in this, her first tournament since her illness. For Miss Browne today played brilliant tennis, forced to it by the dash and fire of Mrs. Mallory, who played from start to finish the same sort of tennis which once made her supreme in the women's game in this country and the main world rival of the inimitable Mlle. Lenglen.

Miss Wills Saves Herself.

Miss Wills, on the other hand, clearly showed the effects of her illness and her game was spotty in the extreme. It was obvious that she was saving herself as far as possible, but the fact remains that she made errors of a type that would have been fatal against a player of Miss Browne's calibre this afternoon.

The rain of the previous day had softened up the courts to such an extent that bounds were low and shooting off the slippery turf at a treacherous angle. The wet footing made running dangerous and Miss Wills had more difficulty with her match than the scores indicate.

Mrs. Schmitz is a player of some experience and she mixed up her shots sufficiently today to make it impossible for Miss Wills to cling to her base line in the fashion she did during her opening match in the tournament.

She was forced into the fore court, and up there she was not at all certain of things. Her volleying showed clearly her lack of practice, and had only at times the crisp finality that makes it a real weapon. Overhead she was not well off. She had three full arm smashes to make, and on two of them sent her returns almost a yard beyond the baseline.

Her service was encouraging, however, for she let go with her full power for the first time and seemed to be suffering no ill effects from it. It was well controlled, and though Mrs. Schmitz managed to make returns on most of the shots they were weak enough to be little more than set-ups which the champion quickly finished off.

Miss Wills Improves.

As the match progressed Miss Wills showed signs of improvement, and during the last sets she was, at times, a player of the type she has been during her past two championship years. She ran a string of three games at the start of this set, losing one point in each of the first two and none at all in the third.

Here she let down a bit, and Mrs. Schmitz managed to send two games to deuce. She was unable to win any save the next to last, however, and the champion finished strongly.

Mrs. Mallory played two matches today, making short work of Mrs. Marshall McLean this morning without the loss of a game in two sets, and this afternoon was right at the crest of her game for the match with Miss Browne.

Singles, Third Round—Miss Helen Wills defeated Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Adna Roeser defeated Mrs. Helen G. Lockhorn, 6—1, 6—7, 7—5; Mrs. Molla Mallory defeated Mrs. Marshall McLean, 6—0, 6—0.

Doubles, First Round—Miss Constance and Genevieve Fox won by default from Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Miss Theodora Sohst; Mrs. Philip Hawk and Miss Rosamond Newton defeated Mrs. George Chapman and Mrs. Marshall McLean, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4; Mrs. Roeser and Miss Alice Francis defeated Mrs. Edward Raymond and Mrs. Lockhorn, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2; Mrs. Fullerton Weaver and Mrs. De Forest Candee defeated Mrs. Gilbert Harvey and Miss Katharine Porter, 7—5, 6—0.

Second Round—Miss Browne and Mrs. Mallory defeated Mrs. F. F. Steer and Mrs. Lense Spalding, 6—3, 6—1; Mrs. Hawk and Miss Newton defeated the Misses Fox, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Schmitz and Miss E. Neehau won by default from Mrs. Falk and Mrs. Weeks.

The summaries:

FEEL OWEN D. YOUNG MIGHT AGREE TO RUN

CITE HIS INTEREST IN PARTY

Recent Letter Urged That Upstate Organization Be Rehabilitated—Governor Here for Conferences.

While Owen D. Young, Chairman of the Executive Board of the General Electric Company, has made it plain that he is not a candidate for any office, it is still evident from talk in Democratic circles that if Governor Smith at the last moment decides not to run again, strong pressure will be brought upon Mr. Young to be the party's Gubernatorial candidate this Fall.

A recent letter from Mr. Young to Democratic State Committeeman Cornelius Haley of Herkimer County, where Mr. Young is a voter, has led to a revival of the talk of Mr. Young for Governor or United States Senator. Mr. Young discouraged some months ago any suggestion that he might be a candidate for office. In his letter to Mr. Haley he said nothing to indicate that he had changed his mind. But Democratic leaders, familiar with the contents of the communication, in which Mr. Young urged a rehabilitation of the weak Democratic organizations up-State, say he demonstrated such an interest in the party welfare that they believe he might be persuaded to run.

Smith Is Undecided.

While the prevailing opinion among Democratic leaders is that Governor Smith will not be able to resist the strong pressure that will be brought to bear on the eve of the Democratic State Convention to make him run for Governor for the fifth time, Mr. Smith has told his friends that he has not reached a final decision. All the Governor's personal friends who are politically interested are urging him to retire temporarily from public life, and if the Governor followed his own inclination he would do that.

But others are pleading with Governor Smith that his retirement at this time, which almost inevitably would result in a Republican victory in November, might jeopardize the reorganization of the State administrative departments under the plan adopted by the Legislature this year and thus undo what the Governor has fought to bring about during his three terms. The reorganization plans will go into effect on Jan. 1.

Pleas of that character, according to friends of the Governor, impress him more strongly than do the representations of those who declare that election to the Governorship for the fourth time in the State of New York would make him invincible as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1928. Then the Governor is beginning to feel also that the City of New York in the near future may be dependent in a measure on what aid can be extended by a Democrat in the Governor's office, or in any event, that with a Republican Governor and a Republican Legislature, lacking sympathy or understanding of its problems, the city might suffer.

The Governor thinks very highly of Mr. Young, and if he could feel assured that a man of that type would succeed him he might feel fewer qualms about relinquishing his responsibilities. But in Democratic circles hardly a man can be found who believes that any candidate the party might name, except Governor Smith, could lead a winning fight against the Republicans.

Governor in City.

Governor Smith arrived in the city early last evening to remain for some days. Today and tomorrow he will rest. Some conferences have been scheduled for Monday. On Tuesday he will visit the Boy Scout camp at Bear Mountain and on Wednesday will review the National Guard forces at Camp Smith, near Peekskill.

Some progress was made yesterday toward arriving at a Democratic-Republican modus vivendi in connection with the broadcasting by the Radio Corporation of America of salient features of the two State conventions, which will be held simultaneously on Sept. 27 and 28, the Democratic at Syracuse, the Republican at Madison Square Garden. Under a partial and tentative agreement reached yesterday when Secretary Robert J. Powers of the Democratic State Committee and Gordon Gleason, representing the Republican State Committee, met at the office of Mrs. Henry Moskowitz in the Prudence Building, the Republican keynote speech will be delivered soon after the convention is called to order at 12:30 P. M. on Sept. 27. The Democratic keynote speech will be delivered soon after the adjournment of the opening session of the Republican convention, or about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Under the "stagger" plan the Republicans will attempt to rush through the adoption of their platform at an afternoon session on the first day and get down to nomination of Governor and other Statae officers at a night session.

COLUMBIA PROPOSES CRIME NEWS STUDY

An additional income of $25,000 a year would be welcomed by the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University for advanced teaching and research, Professor R. C. E. Brown, acting director, said in his annual report to President Nicholas Murray Butler, made public yesterday.

Professor Brown said that a public organization had suggested that the school undertake a study of crime news and the possible effect of different ways of publishing it in stimulating criminal activities. The additional funds were required for this and similar purposes, the report declared.

The earnings of graduates of the institution have risen markedly since 1912, when the school was founded under the will of Joseph Pulitzer, Professor Brown revealed.

"Among men," the report said, "the reporting graduates of the class of 1913 earned a beginning salary of $1,067, which rose until the graduates of 1921 made in their first year an average of $2,002. Those of the next three classes earned over $1,900, while the earnings of the class of 1925 averaged $1,476. The intial salary of the first woman graduates in 1916 was $910, while in 1919 it was slightly over $2,000, and in 1925, $1,410.

"While these figures are based on too small a number of cases to warrant any sweeping conclusions," Professor Brown continued, "it is apparent that journalistic salaries have shared in the general advance in wages since the beginning of the war. The reports show that the present average earnings of men in pure journalism who have been graduated ten years or more are $6,016; while in semi-journalistic work, that is advertising, publicity, &c., they are $10,330, and in non-journalistic work, $16,019."

The significance of the last figure, Professor Brown declared, was qualified by the fact that it was swollen by the earnings of a few unusually successful business men.

"No women have been graduated for ten years," the report continued. "The average earnings reported for women who have been out five years or more are: In pure journalism, $2,869; in semi-journalistic work, $3,476, and in non-journalistic work, $4,071.

"The door of reporting on the great metropolitan newspapers, which is a favorite way for men to enter journalism, opens grudgingly for women and their opportunity is best to be found in specialized lines of work, in the magazine, trade paper and house-organ field, and in the small country journals, which offer useful and profitable careers to independent and competent men and women."

Urging the upbuilding of a strong and independent rural and small town press, Professor Brown expressed the opinion that the country was swayed too much by what he termed the "great standardized journals dealing with things from the point of view of mass circulation."

FOREIGN AFFAIRS OCCUPY COOLIDGE

NO DEBT MOVE BY MELLON

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 30.—When Secretary Kellogg comes here for a stay early next month he is expected to present pending foreign questions to President Coolidge, such as the result of the Geneva conference on the further limitation of armament and the developments in Tacna Arica and Mexico. President Coolidge has not had any report as yet from the State Department on the trend of the Geneva conference.

Foreign affairs still hold the attention of Mr. Coolidge more than domestic politics, although recent conferences he has had have dealt largely with American business and political reactions. He let it be known today that, despite reports that Secretary Mellon might see several statesmen while abroad, he had gone solely for a vacation and had no authority to act on debt matters and would not see foreign statesmen as an official of this Government.

It was pointed out that Mr. Mellon does not possess any powers to negotiate modification of the debt terms. As Chairman of the American Debt Commission the powers delegated to him by Congress expired when Congress ratified the debt settlements. The only way the debt terms can be changed is by an act of Congress. Only three debtor nations have not made terms for settlement, and Mr. Mellon and the commission can deal only with these.

Interested in Commercial Aviation.

President Coolidge expressed today his interest in commercial aviation. The situation in this country, it was said, had been thoroughly explained by Edsel Ford, and there was nothing the President could add to the discussion. The experience of the Ford concern, Mr. Coolidge thought, seemed to indicate that there was going to be a wonderful development in commercial aviation in the United States, and that in due time passengers and freight could be transported on a profitable basis.

The President believes that aviation will be too expensive to use as a general transportation facility, and that bulky freight always will be carried by the railroads. He pointed out that the Government in the Air Mail Service had reached a point where half the actual cost of operation, exclusive of first costs of machines, was being met by the returns. This was much more than the Postoffice Department had expected.

While looking ahead for great aviation progress, President Coolidge holds that it is not possible to make any estimate as to the advance aviation will make in the next few years. So much depends on the development of engines and other costs, in his opinion, as to defy prophecy. He recalled that no one could have foretold when the telegraph and telephone were invented that they were going to play such an important part in commerce.

Plymouth Trip Date Uncertain.

Plans for the President and Mrs. Coolidge's trip to Plymouth have not been decided upon, although it was indicated that they may go sometime next week and remain there for not more than a week.

Senator Cameron of Arizona, who is a candidate for re-election and will face a hard fight, will be a guest at White Pine Camp tomorrow.

15 MINUTES WITHOUT RADIO.

Ship Out of Touch With Land Each Trip for Brief Time Only.

A test to ascertain how long the radio receiving apparatus of the United States liner George Washington is out of touch with broadcasting stations on either side of the ocean in the course of a transatlantic crossing was made on the eastbound trip of that vessel by Emil Eisemann, a radio expert. The George Washington docked yesterday.

The liner left Cherbourg on July 22 and for three days was able to hear continental stations. The large 25-kilowatt British stations were the last heard. On the fourth day, after an interval of silence in midocean of only fifteen minutes, WJZ was picked up and within that day all the large Eastern stations.

The test was made in the presence of Captain Cunninghame of the liner, Chief Purser Santman, Dr. Richard Hoffman, Emil Eisemann, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Eisemann and Mr. Arnott, a British radio man.

WJBV LICENSED BY HOOVER.

Long Island Station Gets Permit—WBNY on New Wave Length.

Arthur Batcheller, radio supervisor for the Second District, which includes New York City, confirmed rumors yesterday that the Union Course Laboratories, 924 Seventy-eighth Street, Woodhaven, L. I., had received a broadcasting license from the Department of Commerce.

The license is one of the first to be issued in this district since the decision of Attorney General Sargent that any person who had the proper equipment could get a broadcasting license from Secretary Hoover. The station will operate under the call letters WJBV on 469.9 meters, using 100 watts power.

Official permission was granted yesterday to station WBNY, operating on 219.8 meters and owned by the Baruchrome Corporation, to change to 322.4 meters.

"The new license was signed by Secretary Hoover," said Dr. S. N. Baruch, director. "This eliminates us from being classified as a 'pirate' station. We will increase our power from 500 to 1,000 watts immediately."

the Senate in which he will be seated will not be convened until December, 1927.

Governor's Action Problematical.

A vacancy in the representation of Iowa will exist in the short session of the Sixty-ninth Congress, which convenes in December of this year. It is this vacancy which Governor John Hammill will fill by appointment. The Senator appointed will hold office until March 3, 1927, when the unexpired term of Senator Cummins would have ended.

What Governor Hammill will do under the circumstances is purely speculative, because, if he were here, respect for the memory of Senator Cummings would forbid his thought of immediate appointment of a successor and the Governor is on the way to California after attending the Governors' Conference at Cheyenne, Wyo.

If Governor Hammill should follow the decision of the June Senatorial primary, being a Republican Governor in a Republican State, he would appoint the Republican nominee, who happens to be Smith W. Brookhart. The Iowa law makes the appointment of a Senator mandatory upon the Governor. There is no provision calling for a special election to fill vacancies in the State.

Governor Hammill, however, may wish to await the outcome of the November election, as he will have ample time to appoint a successor to Senator Cummins between Nov. 2 and the reopening of Congress. He may follow the course adopted by former Governor Kendall when Senator William S. Kenyon resigned from the Senate in 1921. Governor Kendall appointed Charles A. Rawson with the understanding that he would not be a candidate for the Republican nomination in the 1922 primary, in which Colonel Brookhart won his first Senatorial nomination.

Tributes by His Opponents.

The death of Senator Cummins brought expressions of deep sorrow from even his bitterest political opponents. Smith W. Brookhart, the Republican insurgent who defeated Mr. Cummins for renomination in the primaries last month and whom Mr. Cummins ignored when Mr. Brookhart visited the Senate after his nomination, was among the first to express his admiration for the Senator who had come to be known as Iowa's Grand Old Man.

"The greater part of my political life was spent fighting side by side with Senator Cummins," Mr. Brookhart said, "and the later disagreement between us will never wipe out the memory of those days. His picture hangs by the picture of Lincoln in my office today, where it has hung since the beginning of our acquaintance."

Daniel F. Steck, the State's first Democratic Senator in fifty years, was also among those who paid tribute to Senator Cummins.

"The death of Senator Cummins is a serious loss to Iowa and to the nation," said Senator Steck. "He had unquestioned recognition as a leader of the Senate, both in ability and experience, as he has been the outstanding leader in Iowa for the last quarter of a century."

CUMMINS'S LIFE ONE OF BATTLE.

Albert Baird Cummins, senior United States Senator from Iowa, Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and former Chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, was a hard worker for sixty-six of the seventy-six years of his life.

His first appearance in the United States Senate in 1908 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator W. B. Allison was as a Progressive; in fact, many of his opponents then and some of his colleagues looked upon him as a radical. His career ended with him as one of his stanchest supporters of the Coolidge Administration and one of the solid bulwarks of the Republican Party.

His present term in the Senate probably would have been his last, under any circumstances. He was defeated last Spring for renomination in the Republican primaries by Smith W. Brookhart, who for a short time in 1924 held a seat in the Senate, but was unseated by the Committee on Elections and Privileges.

A Native of Pennsylvania.

Senator Cummins was born near Carmichaels, Pa., on Feb. 15, 1850. He was educated at Waynesburg College and was admitted to the bar in Illinois in 1875. He practiced law in Chicago for three years and then moved to Des Moines, Iowa. In 1888 he was elected to the State Assembly, and from then on held many important public offices, being Governor for three terms, Republican National Committeeman, President of the Senate and Chairman of important Senate committees.

Before he studied law he took up civil engineering and railroading, and in later years was one of the bitterest opponents of the railroad companies, being the co-author, with Representative John J. Esch of Washington, of the Esch-Cummins law, regulating the entire scheme of rail and water transportation throughout the country. In later years Senator Cummins was looked upon by many as being one of the best versed men in the United States on railroad problems, and his knowledge of the operation of the larger railroad companies was considered greater than that of many of the Presidents of the companies.

In his younger days Senator Cummins was filled with the desire to study law, but he lacked the necessary funds to pursue his studies and was compelled to accept other employment. At one time he received an offer to go to Denver for a railroad company and accepted the offer on account of the remuneration. He was at the station waiting for the train that was to carry him to his new post when a friend of his father happened along and expressed surprise that he had given up his ambition of becoming a lawyer. Cummins thereupon wired the railroad company that he could not accept the position, and a few days later went to work in the law office of McClellan & Hodges. In 1878, after he had received his degree and been admitted to the Illinois bar, he moved to Iowa, and soon became one of the leaders of his profession in that State.

He was selected as counsel of an organization formed to fight the barbed-wire combine, and for several years fought case after case through various courts, winning all of them. This was the first signal victory of any organization against a combination in restraint of trade, and young Cummins's reputation was greatly increased thereby.

Opposed State Prohibition.

The prohibition question became one of the vital issues in Iowa politics. Cummins opposed prohibition, contending that it would spell the ruin of the Republican Party in the State. Iowa went Democratic, and Cummins was elected to the Legislature as an independent with Democratic endorsement. He helped pave the way for legislation that took the State out of the prohibition list and brought it back into the Republican fold.

He was a Presidential Elector-at-Large in 1892. In 1894 and again six years later he was an unsuccessful candidate for the United States Senate. His defeat was attributed to the hostility of the railroad interests, for, as a member of the State Legislature, Cummins strongly supported a measure to prevent railroads from escaping liability for injuries to employes.

Just as it was thought he had disappeared below the political horizon, in 1901, after his second defeat for the Senate, he announced himself as candidate for Governor. It was Cummins against the rest, and the rest included railroads, Federal office-holders, newspapers and Senators and Representatives in Congress. His friends rallied to his support and he won the fight. Twice afterward in succession he was re-elected Governor, and when Senator Allison died in 1908 it was Albert Baird Cummins who became United States Senator from Iowa. The following year he was elected to succeed himself for the full six-year term, and again in 1914 and 1920 he was re-elected. His term would have expired on March 3 of next year.

During his term in the Senate Mr. Cummins came to be recognized as one of its most able and conspicuous members. While Governor he had made a thorough study of matters relating to the regulation of railroads and other corporations, and to him was largely due the passage by the Senate of various important measures relating to trusts and railroads.

Mentioned for President.

Although not actively affiliated with the Progressive Party in 1912, when Colonel Roosevelt organized his revolt, he was in favor of many of the principles advocated by that leader. At the Republican convention in 1912, where he had been mentioned for the Presidential nomination, Mr. Cummins denounced the action of the majority of the delegates in renominating President Taft and declared that he would not vote for Taft because of the means used to assure his nomination.

On the death of President Harding in August, 1923, when Vice President Coolidge became President, Senator Cummins became President of the Senate and held that office until the election of Vice President Dawes.

His defeat in the primary last Spring, along with the defeat of McKinley in Illinois, Pepper in Pennsylvania and Stanfield in Oregon, all administration supporters, was looked upon with considerable apprehension in Republican circles.

The three-cornered fight that took place before the Iowa primaries among Cummins, Brookhart and Howard J. Clark, was bitter, and it was charged by his opponents that Senator Cummins spent as much as $500,000 in his unsuccessful attempt at renomination.

In the final hours of the campaign the Brookhart forces are said to have circulated a report, purporting to come from reliable sources at Washington, that victory for their leader would mean farm relief legislation at the current session of Congress, while a Cummins triumph would mean the indefinite shelving of all such legislation. Senator Cummins stood squarely on his record as endorsing every policy of the National Administration, excepting its attitude in the matter of farm relief. He proclaimed himself a stanch supporter of the $375,000,000 McNary-Haugen Farm Relief bill.

In his campaign Senator Cummins made not even a remote reference by name to the Administration or the things it stood for, yet the question before the voters was clean cut as to whether the rock-ribbed Republican State of Iowa would endorse the policies of the Republican Administration by the renomination of Senator Cummins, or by nominating Smith W. Brookhart for the Senate, render a verdict which could be interpreted in only one way—that of out-and-out repudiation of the Administration, Brookhart was nominated.

Two weeks ago, on his return to Des Moines, Senator Cummins occasioned surprise when he predicted that President Coolidge would not run for a third term.

"I think he will have had enough of it by 1928," he said. "The Presidency is an immense task, and very few men last through it."

Coolidge Learns of Cummins's Death.

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 30 (AP).—Word of the death of Senator Cummins of Iowa was received with expressions of sorrow at the Summer White House. President Coolidge was notified soon after he reached White Pine Camp from the executive offices late in the day, but made no formal comment. Only a few minutes before word was received of the death a telegram had been sent from the executive offices addressed to Mr. Cummins on an executive matter.

'CHEERIO, SECOND' A BRIGHT REVUE

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., July 30.—"Cheerio 2d," the amateur revue for the benefit of the Southampton Hospital, had its première tonight before a large gathering of Summer residents. The performance ran smoothly from start to finish, with many clever song and dance interpretations and several magnificent spectacular effects.

One of the hits of the evening was "Little Red Ridinghood," sung by Miss Sophie Gay, attractively dressed for the rôle. Other Red Ridinghoods were the Misses Genevieve Fox, Jean Olcott, Betty Shevlin, Constance Fox, Barbara Wright, Peggy Dunne, Mildred Vanderpoel, Polly Potter and Dorothea Gay. They danced in front of Grandmother's cottage, eluded the wolves, represented by Andrew C. Whitfield, Warren Blossom, Lyttleton Fox Jr., Lyman Wright, Basil Ryan, Irwin A. Powell, Nicholas Niles, Daniel M. McKeon, William Otis Fay and J. Clarkson Potter.

J. Couper Lord wrote the lyrics for the prologue. "We Can't Raise That Sum" was sung by Kathryn Wylie, assisted by the Misses Sally Jost, Theodora Barstow, Rachel Lambert and Lulie Simmons. The song was from Victor Herbert's "I Can't Do That Sum," from "Babes in Toyland," with the words appropriate to the occasion of raising money for the hospital.

Mrs. Orson D. Munn, Miss Martha Kountze and Lawrence McKeever Miller made announcements and gave explanations of the acts.

Opens With a Greek Dance.

The opening number was a Greek dance by sixteen little girls, Lucille Brokaw, Audrey Jaeckel, Rosanne Hoar, Mary Mellon, Helen de Peyster, Helena McCann, Constance Torney, Rosamond Lee, Mollie Flagg, Dolly De Milhau, Jane Mellon, Beatrice Breese, Priscilla Poor, Georgie Simmons, Rosanne Wigham and Nora Potter. Their dainty costumes in pastel shades were trimmed with garlands of rosebuds, and they tossed about bright-colored balloons almost as big as themselves.

The scene of an amusing skit, "Seeing Yourself as Others See You," was laid in a Roman village, 200 B. C. Each of the characters represented by Mr. and Mrs. Ira Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kirkpatrick and Ralph Baldwin described what he or she saw in looking at a supposed picture which Octavius found in the street, and which proved to be a mirror.

A song and dance were given by three sailor boys, Robert Pope and Russell and Jack Burke. Miss Mary Davis Landstreet, as Fifi from Paris, gave an intricate toe dance.

Gypsy Life Depicted.

The first part of the program closed with an elaborate act, "In Romany Land." Mrs. Edwin Skinner, as the gypsy queen, sang of gypsy life, supported by an excellent chorus, including Mrs. Andrews Strong and the Misses Elizabeth White, Helen Schwenk, Lucene Tindall, Phyllis Hiscock, Lilly Petersen, Joanna Ruland, Mildred McAllister, Mary Ledgerwood, Bessie Miller and Marjorie Pearson; also Albert Jagger, William Dunwell, James Robinson, David Baird, George Burnett, Henry Burnett, Abner Bennett, Elbert Robinson, Robert Miller and Richard Foster.

Mrs. Marcus Daly, as the queen of the fête, wore an elaborate costume of white Spanish lace, with high lace headdress. Her escort was the matador, Charles E. Miller, and her attendants were Mrs. H. Denny Pierce, Mrs. Orson D. Munn, Mrs. Fenton Taylor, Mrs. T. Gaillard Thomas 2d, Mrs. Harold M. Wall, Mrs. Harvey Shaffer, Mrs. William Fleitmann Jr. and the Misses Rhoda Drew, Wilma Trabold, Jeanne Leonard, and Judy Hamlin, all wearing Spanish shawls. Mrs. Charles H. Higgins, as a singer from Madrid, entertained the assembled company. Then came a Hungarian gypsy dance by the Misses Barbara and Gertrude Vanderpoel, Theodore and Lois Barstow, Gladys Graham, Estelle Minis, Louise Vietor, Alison Morice, Virginia Thaw, Evelyn Dows, Frances Robbins, Mary Alice Waller, Ruth Poor and Primrose Whitfield, and by William E. Richardson, Andrew C. Whitfield, James P. Lee Jr. and Halstead B. Vanderpoel. Miss Virginia Simons tangoed with Kirk Prince. Theirs was one of the most graceful dances of the evening.

"That School Girl Complexion" was advertised for a soap company by Miss Rhoda Drew as the golfer, Miss Constance Fox as the tennis girl, Miss Theodora Barstow as the riding girl, Miss Louise Vietor as the swimmer, Miss Louise Whitfield as the huntress and Miss Beatrice Patterson as the dancing girl.

Another living advertisement was Miss Eleanor Hutton, who posed as the emblem of a motor car.

The Charleston Is Given.

"The Blues," a group of Charleston dancers, the Misses Betty Berry, Priscilla Godwin, Helen Kountze, Alice de Peyster, Norma Crandall, Lulie Simmons, Caroline Ryan, Mildred Lee, Shirley Myrick, Barbara Van Rensselaer, Fonanda Sheesley, Mollie Wood, Cathleen Fox, Charlotte Littlejohn, Audrey Davies, Ann Nicholas, Elizabeth Fleming and Nancy Gallatin, stood by while Miss Eileen Wood did a solo dance with the grace of a professional. "The Blues" then had the floor with the Charleston, after which Miss Genevieve Fox and Kirk Prince danced to a waltz written for Miss Fox by George Dyer Jr. The tango was danced by Miss Sophie Gay and Ralph Sturgis and the fox trot by Miss Mary Arden Schroeder and John Sturgis.

The latter part of the program was devoted to "Weddings of the World." In one of 1880 the wedding party were all in grotesque costumes. The photographer was present in the person of Henry H. Rogers Jr., posing the bride, Miss Priscilla Dodge, with her ubiquitous train in awkward positions. The bridegroom, Miss Peggy Perkins, was uncomfortable in an ill-fitting uniform.

The wedding guests and entertainers were the Misses Martha Kountze, Margaret Tucker, Barbara Brokaw, Sarah Mellon, Constance McCann and Rosabe Coe and Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, Mrs. Casimir de Rham, Mrs. Adee Bradley and Mrs. Harold M. Wall.

Hindu Wedding.

In a Hindu wedding the bride and bridegroom were Mrs. Ralph L. Baldwin and Mr. Baldwin. The bride's father and a friend were Ira Warner and Robert H. Brush. The singer, Sarat Lahiri, and the water carrier, Mlle. Lucille de Lota, were dressed in authentic Hindu costumes, and the former played throughout the ceremony on a Hindu guitar, given to him by Rabindranath Tagore. Others taking part were Mrs. Ira Warner as a nautch dancer, Miss Edna Redmond as a singer, Mrs. Thomas Kirkpatrick as the bride's sister, and Frederick de Peyster as the bridegroom's brother.

A dance of the bride's attendants was given by the Misses Marjorie Koster, Helen Greeff, Florence Read, Sally Jost, Kathryn Wylie, Barlow Humphreys, Casilda Clark, Emily Turner, Beatrice Turner, Julia Stebbins, Marjorie Fitch and Natalie Follmer, all in Oriental costume.

The most spectacular wedding was one of the eighteenth century. Edward P. Mellon as Louis XV and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton as Marie Leszczynska. The leading characters were resplendent in court costumes.

Edward Van Ingen 2d was the Duke of Orleans and Lawrence McK. Miller the Duke of Bourbon. The Misses Adelaide and Eleanor Hutton were a duchess and a countess. Albert Jagger was a troubadour, who entertained the court. The Misses Ruth Poor, Enid Connfelt and Elinor Ladd were pages.

The cavaliers were represented by Mrs. James P. Vogel and the Misses Beatrice Patterson, Carola Kip and Betty Condon, and the ladies-in-waiting by Mrs. Austin L. Sands, Mrs. Robert Powell, Miss Virginia Simmons and Miss Alixe Walker. The ladies of the court were represented by Mrs. Reginald Wigham, Mrs. John W. Kiser, Mrs. J. Robinson Duff, Mrs. Charles E. Van Vleck Jr. and the Misses Florence Weicker and Mimi Brokaw.

Simple Wedding of Today.

In marked contrast with the eighteenth century costumes were the simples ones of the present day in a Charleston wedding, with which the program closed. This event was a contest. Warren Blossom, George Corning and Morgan Laimbeer, the judges, chose Mrs. David Dows as the bride. The contestants included Misses Sophie Gay, Polly Potter and Natice de Acosta. The ribbon bearers were the Misses Gertrude and Barbara Vanderpoel, Gladys Graham and Lois Barstow. THE WAR DEBTS AND DRINK.

Viewing the debts owed us in Europe as good bargaining material, many have made suggestions regarding the best use to which they could be put. Some have said, in general terms, that we might trade the loans for politics. What was meant is, presumably, that some kind of commercial or tariff arrangements could be got in exchange for a partial remission of the debts, or that all Europe would agree to disarm if the United States would cancel the obligation which European nations gave to us. All these proposals, however, are left far in the rear by the one just put forward gravely by the Methodist Board of Prohibition and Public Morals. As if completely satisfied with the glorious success of prohibition in this country, and sighing for other worlds to conquer, it makes the novel and ingenious offer to forgive the war debts entire if Europe will leave off drinking.

The thing is not put in precisely such words, but that is what it amounts to. The Methodist Board seeks to show that England and France spend enormous sums on liquor every year, all of which could be "saved" and applied to the payment of their debts to the American Treasury. Doing a neat little sum in arithmetic, the Methodist Board figures it out that "seven countries of Europe," having a total population of 168,000,000, "support a drink expenditure of approximately $4,180,000,000." Then the argument is clinched as follows:

> It may be said calmly and in a spirit of the deepest sympathy with the troubles of Europe that the Government of the United States has no moral right to subsidize European taxpayers with money taken from the pockets of Americans so long as Europeans are spending for drink sums which in a few years would discharge the American debt.

It may seem audacious to question the findings of so high an authority, but the Methodist Board seems to have overlooked certain factors. One of them is that interference with the personal habits of Europeans would surely be resented much more bitterly than would be even meddling with their internal politics. Another consideration is that all the Governments referred to derive a very large revenue from excise taxes on the manufacture, sale and consumption of liquor. In effect, therefore, this Methodist plan would be to cut down largely the income of those Governments, then severely demand that they compel their citizens to give up drinking altogether, on pain of being forced to pay us all that they owe. This would be a delightful way of promoting that international good-will and spirit of universal brotherhood for which the Methodist Church professes to stand.

This touch of midsummer madness about the war debts comes at a time when the bad feeling about them on both sides of the Atlantic is visibly dying out. The French have decided to adjourn the discussion, meanwhile putting a muzzle upon their own excited Chauvinists. In England all hands are getting a little ashamed of the recent angry disputes and squabbles about the debts. WINSTON CHURCHILL'S challenge to Secretary MELLON and to Senator BORAH is regarded as in very bad form. The predominant sentiment in England seems to be that the only thing to do is to pay and stop whining. Of course, this does not imply acceptance of the debt settlements as something just and fixed securely for the next sixty-two years. Everybody expects that the whole matter will before long have to be taken up again and readjusted.

Meanwhile, the conviction is that, as nothing can be done at present, it is better not to indulge in futile and provocative talk. But not to be allowed to indulge in a drink, in order to drown their financial sorrows, is something to which Europeans would not submit even if demanded of them by our Methodist Board of Public Morals.

THE MEXICAN EMBARGO.

The embargo upon the shipment of war munitions into Mexico proclaimed by President COOLIDGE in 1924 was almost synchronous with the sale by the United States of rifles, machine guns, ammunition and airplanes to the Obregon Government, which was then engaged in putting down the de la Huerta insurrection. The embargo was not lifted when General CALLES succeeded to the Presidency. Its continuance may be regarded as a friendly act. Under international law dealers in munitions may sell them in a country where there is a revolt against its Government, but a neutral State itself may not do so. However, there is a tendency to qualify the right claimed by munitions dealers. What the neutral State cannot do, its subjects may be stopped from doing. The objection is that a revolution may be justified, and that people asserting their right to have their own Government should be permitted to buy arms from dealers in other countries. Doubtless, the pressure brought upon the Coolidge Administration to raise the embargo upon shipment of munitions to Mexico comes from opponents of the Calles Government.

The effect of allowing munitions to pass into Mexico at this time would be to encourage factions designing to overthrow the Government. The raising of the embargo just now would be construed as an unfriendly act. Insurgent leaders on both sides of the border would proclaim it to be an expression of sympathy with their cause. Hence the maintenance of the embargo is well considered. It could not be removed now without putting our own Government in an embarrassing position. Only if the Calles Government were to forfeit the goodwill of the United States by acts that could not be defended or condoned would a change in our policy be warranted.

ALIBI BY REFERENDUM.

Corporation Counsel NICHOLSON has decided, presumably on good legal grounds, that submission of the 5-cent fare bill to a popular vote is mandatory. Next November the people of New York will be asked to say Yes or No to the proposition that no increase in fares shall be effective without approval by the voters. Even without the backing of Mayor WALKER and the expressed intention of Tammany to work for the bill, it needs no seventh son of a seventh son to predict its adoption by a great majority. It would probably be even larger if approval were sought for a 4-cent fare, still larger for a 3-cent fare, and perfectly tremendous for an almost invisible fare. The slight matter of operating on an impossible fare will not be allowed to stand in the way of affirming a general and generous principle.

Quite aside from Mayor WALKER'S statement that he already stands pledged to the 5-cent fare, it is not difficult to see why the City Administration and Tammany should favor the entrenchment of the 5-cent fare behind a popular referendum. This is coming to be a favorite device for taking issues out of politics, as the phrase goes. Another way of putting it would be to say that the referendum is an excellent method of sidestepping responsibility. If the Board of Estimate is henceforth compelled, as seems most likely, to go on boosting taxes in order to make up transit deficits out of public revenue, it has a perfect alibi. The people have insisted on a 5-cent fare. Therefore they insist on all the logical consequences—higher taxes, deferred public improvements, double fares for a considerable portion of the traveling public. It is a case in which the Administration is not at all unhappy to have its hands tied.

Possibly the predicted majority for the referendum bill would not be so large if it were submitted to the voters in less technical and more realistic form than the one drafted by Mr. NICHOLSON. A truly adequate statement of the issue would inquire of the people of New York whether they favor the tying up of nearly $300,000,000 of the city's credit in unremunerative subway bonds; whether they favor the payment by the city of something like $14,000,000 in carrying charges on such bonds; and whether, in general, they favor the policy of subway travelers being carried at the expense of the City Treasury. There might be hardy spirits to maintain that travel on the rapid transit lines should be as free as travel through the streets and on the bridges or service rendered by the schools and the Police and Fire Departments. But the consequence of such a policy—payment by the public in the form of taxes—is not clearly formulated in the proposed bill.

Whether the referendum will really effect a change in the basic situation may be doubted. If unanswerable necessity demands a revision of the 5-cent principle, the Administration and Tammany will probably be able to sway a popular majority for the change. Mr. HYLAN, twice overwhelmingly elected, was just as overwhelmingly beaten. He was beaten because the city came to perceive that he was an obstructionist. If it comes to realize that it is sheer obstruction to exalt the 5-cent principle without a serious attempt to face realities, the fact that the 5-cent fare is anchored in the popular referendum will not be allowed to stand in the way. But in the meantime it is "good politics."

SUBSTITUTES AND SALARIES.

While the Mayor is selecting his committee to examine teachers' salaries, as was promised when the Governor vetoed the salary increases proposed in the bill passed by the Legislature, there is a basic bit of information that ought to get into the public consciousness. It comes from Dr. VAN DENBERG, a member of the Board of Examiners, who states that more than a thousand substitutes will be employed in the schools of the city next year. If these were of fitness equal to that of the fully licensed teachers, the substitution would not be serious; but, as Dr. VAN DENBERG points out, the need of substitutes is due in the main to "the "shortage of men and women duly "qualified for the job." The standard for a substitute's license is lower than that for the regular teacher, as is manifest from the fact that "many "of the substitutes are teaching in "the very subjects in which they "failed to pass." A contributor to School and Society has interpreted this to mean that one who is not fit to become a "regular appointed teacher" may have a substitute's license and teach, "the difference "being in the salary received and the "harm done."

At the bottom of the shortage of teachers is inadequate compensation. But the city pays for this in the end more than would be required to secure a full complement of teachers able to meet the higher requirements—pays it in the added expense of instructing again and again pupils who fail to pass, but who would doubtless go forward under proper instruction; for the percentage of failure is high, absolutely and relatively, and correspondingly expensive. The estimated cost of failures runs into millions, not all of which could be eliminated, of course, but much of which would be, under competent teachers.

Even more ominous, however, than the employment of substitutes who do not measure up to the requirements of regular teachers is the further statement of Dr. VAN DENBERG that there "is a steady decline in "quality of candidates entering the "system." Both the professional and cultural qualifications of those entering the system ten years ago were higher than the average today, according to his estimate. There is confirmation of this judgment in the announcement of last year that there has been a lowering of the passing mark in order to secure adequate numbers for certain positions. Other cities, as Chicago and Cincinnati, are meeting like tendencies by revising their salary schedules. New York cannot further postpone serious consideration of this critical situation without harm to our schools and a greater loss than any saving effected through the employment of substitute teachers.

"THE" M'MANUS.

Numbers of Assembly districts change. We choose to remember the Eleventh of years ago as the political site of THOMAS J. MCMANUS, first "TOM" or "TOMMY" to everybody, and then "The," to mark him as the head of the clan. To his mother, who had six other sons who never took a drink, he was "TOMMY." How the independents and the reformers use to fall on "TOMMY"; yet he was an independent, too, and "revolted" against Tammany or its then bosses. "It's a "good son who will make a good As-"semblyman," said Mrs. MCMANUS. "I did not wish the old lady to bother about my election," said the then Fusion candidate, "but she would have her way." A pleasant face she had. A pleasant, albeit a strict, way she must have had.

"The" was a New York boy, a phrase one recalls as specially dear to certain wards. Here is a pretty bit of domestic genre from the then hammer of Tammany:

> I have six brothers, and we all live under the same roof. When we sit down to our meals, mother does the carving. Mother is sure of my election. She has visited nearly every tenement house in the district.

Returned to the fold, "The" did considerable carving himself; and the reformers were always trying to stick knives into him. His official career, including his memorable triumph over GEORGE WASHINGTON PLUNKITT, that sedentary statesman planted tenaciously so long in front of the County Court House, belongs to his obituary. It is as a district leader of the old type, surviving in all that was best of it, that he is of interest. He used to know everybody in his district. He worked hard all day as an employment agent, an overseer of the poor, a helper of dispossessed tenants, a counselor of prisoners and of people in trouble of any sort, a general adviser and friend. Night found him at the clubrooms of the Thomas J. McManus Association, doing the same sort of thing by telephone or interview.

The amount of personal gratitude and loyalty that such a man gets among his people is not to be wondered at. Reformers and most Republicans work from the outside. Tammany is always on the inside, deep in the business and bosom of its constituency. Years ago—is it so still?—some ten blocks, from Eighth Avenue to the Hudson, used to know one great day and night, the annual "outing" of the Thomas J. McManus Association. The houses are hung with flags. At night, when the army of the faithful, victorious over clams and beer, comes marching home again, Chinese lanterns from rows of balconies and windows welcome them. Whatever sociologists and "social surveyors" may think, somehow life looks, and not on outing days alone, much more cheerful and alive among the tenements than among the instructed and instructive "silk stockings."

DETROIT'S EXAMPLE.

For many large cities in this country beset with problems of traffic congestion there should be inspiration in the work courageously undertaken by Detroit. It had a population of 285,000 in 1900 and 1,242,000 in 1925. The resident of Detroit will tell you that his city is growing at the rate of 100,000 a year, and that there is one motor car for every three inhabitants. But Detroit is planning for the future. In the past few years many millions have been spent to facilitate street traffic, but they are as nothing compared with the plans which the voters of the city have recently approved. These call for the expenditure of more than one hundred millions.

The major project, which includes the condemnation of property adjacent to Woodward Avenue, the city's main artery, involves demolition of a score of skyscrapers. The cost is estimated at about $73,000,000. This will create an avenue eight miles in length and 120 feet in width, leading from the centre of the city. Other important streets, affecting the downtown section, are to be widened at a cost of $40,000,000. A street running straight across the city was recently condemned for the purpose of making it 80 feet in width, but before the work was begun the plan was changed and it is to be 120 feet wide.

Thus Detroit is setting an example which other cities are bound to follow. Streets capable of accommodating ten or twelve lines of motor cars, with frequent tunnels for pedestrians under them, are certain to come. They will be good investments for the cities. New York City has the wealth to imitate Detroit, and certainly it has no lack of reasons for doing it.

MISSION DIFFICULTIES IN CHINA.

Recent copies of The Peking and Tientsin Times contain full accounts of the outrages and indignities attending the forced closing of the Stout Memorial Hospital in Wuchow. Following closely upon the closing of the Canton Hospital, the oldest American medical mission in China, it cannot but cause disquiet among those friends of China who have for so many years made sacrifices in order to give the Chinese people the benefits of modern medical knowledge and education. In the case of the Canton Hospital the Chinese authorities went so far as to cut off the water and food supply, thus bringing severe suffering on the Chinese patients. At Wuchow, although the patients were all evacuated when the hospital directors refused to submit to demands of the Chinese, which had as their objective the seizure of the hospital by the local military organization, the American missionaries and nurses were exposed to personal insult and even to actual violence. In one respect the members of the foreign staff of the Stout Memorial Hospital in Wuchow were more fortunate than those of the Canton Hospital, as they were not blockaded. In both places the hospitals were surrounded by pickets, but in Canton efforts were made to prevent food and water from reaching the Americans even after the patients had been removed. In Wuchow the principal problem for the foreign staff was to move away, together with their belongings. According to the superintendent, Dr. G. W. LEAVELL:

> We were isolated, disgraced, insulted and embarrassed. Seeing that the only way to get our trunks off the compound was to remove them ourselves, the four American men on the mission staff undertook, with great difficulty, the task. As we went down the streets we were surrounded by an angry mob, howling threats and insults at us as we carried our heavy load. * * *

Fortunately, the American Consul General in Canton, fully alive to the dangers in which American missionaries were exposed in South China, arranged to have the gunboat Pampanga go to Wuchow. Dr. LEAVELL wrote of this:

> We are quite frank to say, with all possible emphasis, that without the American gunboat and the assistance of the officers and men we would in all probability have been forced to evacuate without any of our effects or hospital equipment, and leave the hospital, kindergarten, girls' school and the five mission residences at the mercy of the rabble to be looted. * * * We feel that our experience during these trying days calls for better protection of the lives of the foreigners and foreign property and a fuller enforcement of existing treaties.

In spite of the fact that seals of the American Government were put on the buildings there, and a special police detachment from Wuchow was employed to guard them, the compound was broken into and much valuable property stolen.

Although it is easy to say that the Chinese people must not be held to blame for these lawless acts, the fact remains that they were sanctioned by the existing Governments in Wuchow and Canton. The Chinese authorities do not seem to have realized that these hospitals were being run at considerable expense and personal sacrifice by foreigners for the benefit of indigent Chinese. To ask gratitude for this generous missionary work would be out of place. The money and service have always been given ungrudgingly and without expectation of reward. But the least that can be expected of the Chinese is that they have the good grace to accept this help, which in the case of the Canton Hospital they have been receiving for ninety years, without subjecting the ministering foreigners to personal insult and danger. Even if the inspiration for this sort of hoodlumism comes from Bolshevist sources, the fact that no efforts were made to check it reflects grave discredit on the local Chinese authorities.

RAILWAY PROFITS GROWING.

On the basis of the first seventy-one reports of railways in June it appears that their net earnings are increasing faster than their gross. Both are a record maximum for the month. For the half year there was an increase in gross of three billions over the record year 1923. The net thus far reported justifies an estimate of a total net increase of 15 per cent. for June over 1925, and of $491,500,000 for six months, compared with $446,637,000 for the record year 1923. This is all the more encouraging because the betterment is under conditions some of which are adverse.

When we entered the war, President WILSON made a special appeal to the farmers to feed our partners in the enterprise as the supreme need. "Without abundant food, alike for the "armies and peoples now at war, the "whole great enterprise upon which "we have embarked will break down "and fail." Comparing 1919 with 1909, 45,000,000 more acres were cropped, and the farmers profited. But in the past five years 19,000,000 acres have ceased to be cropped, the first reduction of crop area in the nation's history. Moreover, the railways serving the most depressed agricultural area have seen millions of tons of traffic diverted to waterways and highways. Nevertheless, even this section is reviving, and the railways with them. The St. Paul alone contributed $1,489,760 to the total June net increase. Less than half its net increase came from its gross. Profits were enlarged by economies and efficiencies. That is true of the railways as a whole. Railway traffic is among the best signs of the country's condition.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Weather Can Be Too Good.

That the patronage of the theatres is affected by the weather is taken for granted by everybody, but how many would have said that it is good weather, not bad, that the manager and backer of plays has to fear? Yet that statement was made in an article printed in THE TIMES yesterday, in the course of a discussion of the business done by the Shubert theatres. There was such a thing as too good weather for the exploiters of the drama, it was said, for then people were out in the country or at the seaside, and thinking of other things than plays.

It is obvious that the statement was true of prolonged periods of weather rather than about what usually is meant by it—the weather of a single day or evening. Certainly a driving storm of rain or snow would cut down the receipts of any one night. What the theatres want, therefore, must be weather neither too good nor too bad.

By the way, how many people know that a rainy Sunday appreciably increases newspaper sales on that day? With the regular subscribers meteorological changes makes little or no difference, but for others they make a large one. Besides, on a rainy Sunday more people buy several papers, instead of the one they find enough when the day is fine for out of doors and far away.

It is not only theatres and newspapers that are more or less at the weather's mercy. The fundamental industry, agriculture, is its absolute slave, and all others are in some degree subservient. No wonder we all talk about the weather so much. Really it is the most important of subjects.

They Are on the Right Track.

It is a mark of real intelligence on the part of our police that, as soon as they had succeeded in capturing the members of the Oberst gang of bandits, an effort was made to find out the sort of families to which the young men belonged and what had been the conditions in which their early boyhood was passed.

Like all the rest of us, such "bandits" are the products of heredity and environment. The old penology thought only of punishing the criminal, but the new one has wiser intentions, and those moved the detectives to visit the parents and relatives of all the young gangsters and to hunt up their records.

What they learned throws little or no light on the question why these particular boys chose to be actual robbers and at least potential murderers. Their lineage did not lead into either the criminal class or into the depths of poverty. In every instance the report is that the families of these men are "decent people," honest and industrious, indistinguishable from innumerable other families of working folk.

This proves, however, not that such inquisitions are useless, but that this particular inquisition did not go deep enough, and that it was not made by men with special training as psychologists. Properly made, the results unquestionably would be valuable, and, done often enough, at last the road to real prevention of criminality would be opened through what now is a dense jungle of uncertainty.

Mistaken as to This Law.

One of THE TIMES'S correspondents yesterday, in commending AARON RODACK, the "fighting jeweler," wanted to know how the honest citizen, forbidden by the Sullivan law to have a pistol, could contend with armed brigands on any except hopeless terms. "For the authorities," wrote the author of the letter, "have specially and definitely arranged it that only the thugs shall bear arms."

This shows a complete misunderstanding of what the Sullivan law is and does. As a matter of fact, it does not prevent the honest citizen from having a pistol. It only says that he shall apply to the proper authority for permission to have one. If he can prove his good character and give a colorable excuse for needing a weapon, he will get his permit.

Of how much value the weapon will be to him after he obtains it—that is debatable. The police say that the value is next to nothing. That, however, is not the fault of the Sullivan law, which at least was well intentioned.

Probably it is impossible completely to prevent the criminal classes from securing deadly weapons, but something could be accomplished in that direction if all the States would take similar action. It is not true, however, that the honest citizen has been deprived of the means of self-defense. He can get weapons and can learn how to use them if he will.

A Release Will Come Later.

Though the French military authorities in Syria have confirmed the sentence to eight years' hard labor passed on young DOTT as penalty for the crime of desertion in the face of the enemy, the chances are that before long his punishment will be shortened by executive clemency.

Nobody accuses DOTT of cowardice; his offense was rather lack of discipline in an extreme degree, and that, though bad enough, is somehow different. The French recognized that when they did not shoot him, as, under all military law, they had a right to do. But eight years in a disciplinary regiment in North Africa is so little less than a sentence to death that it hardly will be carried out in a case that has attracted so much attention.

THE REAL TRAVELER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I, as an Englishman at present visiting America, make a rejoinder to your editorial "Magnanimitas" in today's issue?

Having traveled all over the world, I have heard in many countries the statement, repeated ad nauseam, "Americans do not know how to travel." Is the easy acceptance of this statement by alien peoples at the bottom of all disturbances which seem to centre around Americans abroad? And the harshest critics of Americans abroad are Americans themselves.

In your article you advise the exercise of magnanimitas by all Americans traveling in Europe. It seems to an impartial observer rather weak advice when read in conjunction with your news pages. It does not demand magnanimity to refrain from saying to a Frenchman, "And how much is that in real money?" The possession of common decency should be sufficient restraint. Such a remark from a citizen of a richer country is "kicking a man when he's down." I know it is a common term in America, but in Europe it is merely misunderstood.

The object of travel is twofold: First, recreation; second, education. The real traveler is inconspicuous in a foreign land. He prepares himself beforehand, learning in theory what he is about to test in practice. So far from insisting on his individuality, he identifies himself as closely as possible with the people among whom he is destined to spend some length of time. He is never blatant or irritating; if he has the superiority complex he studiously avoids showing it.

The result is that he not only has a beneficial vacation but learns a great deal in the pleasantest possible way. The man who goes abroad merely to display vulgarly his wealth, national pride or bad manners returns to his own country more ignorant than before. In Europe, where international travel is a daily affair, it is no uncommon advice to "learn a little of the language, watch the people, try to think and behave as they do, efface yourself; and you will avoid hurting sensitive feelings; you will gain everything and lose nothing."

NEVILLE WHYMANT.

AT MIDYEAR.

See how they stand
Like matrons now, serene
And decorous,
Garbed in dull gowns of green,
Divested, all, of their bright coloring!
Have they forgot the sweet, mad rioting
Of bloom and perfume
That so lately shook
Their hearts?
Do they recall no more the look
Bent on them by their lord and lover, Spring?

Nay, I am sure that they remember still
That perfumed and Beflowered yesterday;
I know that they recall
The flush of May

Yes, that the trees remember Spring, I know,
I, who at midyear, so sedately go!

THE STADIUM CONCERTS.

Device for Throwing More Sound Toward Flanks Suggested.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The superb accomplishments of the Lewisohn Stadium have so little publicity in proportion to their deserts that what seems to have attained the proportions of a controversy in your columns can only be advantageous to their management.

I have so far noted but one constructive suggestion: This refers to the form of the music stand sounding board. Being a surface with but two linear directrices, this cannot throw sound toward the flanks.

In the matter of "side issues" that always appeal to the village cut-up type, surely we need not attend these concerts to determine that skirts, now short, are growing shorter.

It is well, indeed, that they are. The more complete our familiarity with their disclosures, the less occasion we will have to renew our assurances of most distinguished consideration in that regard, and we will be freer to reflect upon woman's finer if less obvious qualities of heart and mind that make her so warmly appreciative of good music.

Lighting System Satisfactory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following is a copy of a letter addressed to me by Dr. Thomas A. Storey, Professor of Hygiene and Director of the Department of Hygiene of the College of the City of New York:

Department of Hygiene.
July 23, 1926.

My Dear Mr. Lewisohn:

I am writing this letter to tell you that the Cahill lighting system that has been placed in the City College stadium has proved itself to be satisfactory in every detail so far as we can discover in the various tests that have been made since its installation.

I am convinced that this illumination will prove to be of very great benefit to the college and to the community. You are entitled to a great deal of satisfaction in the realization that a great many people for a great many years will profit by your far-sighted generosity.

Sincerely yours,
THOMAS A. STOREY, M. D.

This letter, I thought, would be of interest to your readers.

The Musical Cubist.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a great lover of paintings and music, but I cannot appreciate the paintings of the cubist, neither can I appreciate the music of the musical cubist. So I am obliged to stay away from the Stadium concerts.

GEORGE S. SMITH.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To say that I was amazed would be a weak way of describing my feelings on reading the "criticisms" of the Stadium concerts. Readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES are expected to know better than to want musical comedy tunes at a Philharmonic concert. It is my opinion, from sitting at the extreme left at Stadium concerts, that the writer who could hear only "once in a while" needs to have his ears attended to.

PAY-AS-YOU-ENTER REVOLT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While we were in the throes of the subway strike, you published several letters pro and con regarding the pay-as-you-enter plan adopted by the Fifth Avenue Bus Company.

At the time, the plan was thoroughly justified and undoubtedly helped a lot to simplify the work of conductors, who could not readily collect fares in buses when people were standing. It seems now, however, that conditions are again normal and that a continuance of the pay-as-you-enter plan is an imposition. Today I saw five persons on the back of a bus—with many seats inside and on top—waiting either for change or to put their dimes into the box.

People generally are not riled for any length of time at any innovation that works out for the general good of the public, but they resent a continuance of a practice that has ceased to be of benefit to them and can be construed only as an effort to put something over.

Street Cars Benefit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The joke is—as usual—on us. At the time of the subway strike, there were plenty to scorn any one who objected to the pay-as-you-enter policy immediately adopted by the Fifth Avenue Bus Company.

Now the joke is on the optimists—but, alas, on the skeptical as well! For, after elaborately thanking the public for being so considerate during the "emergency," the bus company announces a reversion to its policy of "a seat for every passenger" (which really means a passenger for every seat—quite a different thing), but leaves up the pay-as-you-enter signs!

However, whatever the uptown traffic at 5, and after, the company has already lost many a dime on the Washington Square-bound buses in the evening. The street cars are picking up the nickels instead.

ANTI-BUS.

Why Call It a "Third Term"?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has puzzled me to note recently such frequent reference to a "third term" for President Coolidge when 1928 is being spoken of. The President is now only in the middle of his first term. President Harding's term which Mr. Coolidge finished out cannot be called a term for President Coolidge. It appears to me the psychological effect of the words "third term" is detrimental in view of the rather popular opinion against a "third term" for any President. Why not refer to 1928 as a possible second term, which it properly would be?

SKYSCRAPER PROBLEMS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I believe in skyscrapers, but not in a city of skyscrapers.

Limiting the height of buildings was written into our zoning law to meet two demands—more sunshine, less congestion. In obtaining more sunshine the law was a success; in bringing about less congestion it was a total failure.

This is not remarkable when the new law permitted on lower Broadway, for example, buildings of bulk three to four times greater than the then existing average.

The argument at that time was that in case of panic or general conflagration the people pouring from the buildings would have to be superimposed three or four deep to get out into the streets; that the subways would soon be unable to carry the crowds; that eyesight and general health were menaced by lack of natural light and ventilation.

No one foresaw that automobile traffic would increase tenfold in ten years, and that in 1925 alone 932 persons would be killed in the streets of New York by automobiles and at least 4,000 crippled for life or maimed. No one foresaw that the streets would become almost impassable at times and that the lines of traffic at the most important centres woud eventually be well-nigh deadlocked.

It is futile to talk about more subways and tunnels, double-decking the streets, staggering the business hours, &c. The new vehicular tunnel, completed at a cost of millions of dollars, far from being any relief to traffic, is going to pour thousands more automobiles into our city. In anticipation of a new subway on Eighth Avenue, huge new buildings are being projected along that thoroughfare. Every new transit facility is simply an additional sluiceway to pour in additional hordes of people. Conditions are fast becoming impossible. Not only are our citizens being killed and injured by thousands, but even business is slowly strangling itself to death. Why? Just because we go on providing enormous buildings for offices and factories at the centres.

It is high time to stop what some one calls the court-plaster treatment and attack the source of the disease—the multiplication of skyscrapers.

That a limited number of towers in New York City is an asset no one can doubt. Their wonderful beauty in the sunshine, their mysterious black bulk at night, their commanding view, their ample light and air, and, withal, their appeal to civic pride lend to our great New York something of its wonderful charm.

The trouble is not in the skyscraper per se, but in the huddling of skyscrapers into compact groups. If we could cut off this mass of steel and masonry now raising itself to gigantic proportion along the centre line of our island and distribute it over the rest of the city the evils we complain of would disappear. We need decentralization.

To bring this about I suggest that we simply make the entire city a "one-time" zone. It is well known that we now have one-time zones, one-and-one-half-time zones, two-time zones and two-and-one-half-time zones. "One-time" zone simply means that in that zone buildings may rise to a vertical height "one time" the width of the street. There are then allowed a few set-back stories and in addition towers of indefinite height, covering not more than one-quarter of the lot.

It may be objected that this will lead to collecting large plots of land which even under this suggested amendment to the law would permit of high structures. Since then, it is not the height but the bulk of buildings that is causing most of our woes, I would further suggest that the total volume of a building shall not exceed 125 per cent. of the volume obtainable by the present restrictions, exclusive of the now permissible tower volume.

These two governing conditions not only strike at the roots of congestion, but tend to preserve and probably accentuate those architectural features of which we should be very jealous. The "one-time" zone restriction will produce a generally uniform cornice line at a height equal to the width of the street, which I believe is highly desirable, otherwise each of the several owners of a block front without restriction is apt to express his individual taste in the height of his façade, with a result that is not unlike the quite familiar but rather depressing appearance of a paling fence with every paling sawed to a different length. The volume restriction will prevent undue bulk and yet give latitude in design above the cornice line for towers and setbacks of varying proportion and mass.

On our crosstown streets, which are generally 60 feet wide, the general result will be buildings five stories to the cornice line, two or three set-back stories and occasional towers one-quarter as large as the lot in area and six or seven stories high.

On our avenues, which are usually 100 feet wide, the buildings will rise eight or nine stories to the cornice line, have two or three set-back stories and occasional towers covering one-quarter of the lot and eight or nine stories high.

If, however, an owner wants a higher tower, he may get it by curtailing his set-back stories or other parts of his buildings.

The Mayor is to be congratulated on the appointment of his committee to deal with this pressing question, and although the fearful damage that has already been done under a law, unfortunately lenient, can never be repaired, yet a repetition of our past mistakes can at least be avoided.

The Subcommittee on Zoning and Height Limitation will undoubtedly recognize the insistent demand that this killing and congestion be stopped by going to the very heart of the matter and stopping the multiplication of skyscrapers.

BRITAIN REPRIEVES PIGEONS

Halts Execution Planned by London, but Respite May Be Brief.

LONDON, July 30.—London's pigeons, doomed to reduction by the London County Council, have been reprieved by the British Government. But the respite granted the birds is likely to prove only temporary, for its mighty legislative engines will be set in motion against the pigeons by the London County Council at its next session.

A private bill will be introduced to enable the City Corporation and Borough Councils to reduce the number of pigeons where they are a nuisance or cause damage. Until the bill passes, however, they will be safe, and it is not altogether certain that it will pass.

During a brief discussion on the subject in the House of Commons yesterday the pigeons found champions among all three parties. After the Home Secretary had told Commander Kenworthy that the Government intended to take no action against the birds and would reserve its decision regarding the merits of the private bill until it saw what the bill was like, Mr. Thurtle, Labor, asked why the man of war was specially concerned in the destruction of a few pigeons.

Commander Kenworthy then explained that he was opposed to and not in favor of the proposal. Sir Harry Brittain, Conservative, said that the pigeons were a great attraction in London, and he thought the Home Secretary could better devote time to the reduction of cats.

BERLIN TO RACE PIGEONS.

BERLIN, July 30.—Five thousand Berlin pigeons will compete in a twenty-five-mile race Sunday, flying from Wustermark. In preparation for the event fanciers are trying out their birds and great flocks can be seen at all hours of the day over the capital. Sunday's races will revive the pre-war custom which during the past twelve years was not practiced, and it was a great surprise that this large number was entered for the contest.

While the fanciers here are rejoicing at the thriving population of their feathered friends, the Province of Schleswig-Holstein is mourning the fact that the stork population is reduced to one-third of that of a few years ago. These practically domesticated birds are protected by law, but nevertheless their numbers are decreasing.

Draining a number of swamps in this region, thus diminishing the frog supply, which is the stork's favorite food, is given as one of the reasons. Many crude nests atop houses and barns are uninhabited this year. Again it is charged that large numbers were killed when a migratory flock was forced to land in the Bavarian Valley during a night flight where they were killed wholesale by peasants ignorant of their identity.

DETROIT, July 30.—Henry Ford today on his 63d birthday showed visitors his latest product, turning the motor himself, of an "air flivver" which is a tiny monoplane that has been successfully tested at the Ford airport. Otherwise, there was no observance of his birthday.

The plane's wing spread of 22 feet and and its fuselage length of 15 feet makes it one of the smallest single-seaters ever flown. Equipped with a three-cylinder Anzani air-cooled motor, of French make, it weighs only 350 pounds. A two-cylinder Ford-built motor, which will replace the present 125 pound power plant, will reduce the weight to about 310 pounds.

"I see a great field for this type of airplane," said Mr. Ford. "I am not in any sense ready to announce to the world at large that we are immediately going to produce these in quantity, but they can be produced in great numbers and cheaply. We are going to work more with this one before we consider production."

Otto Koppen, designer of the flivver, is 26 years old. He studied at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and was born in New York City.

As to his sixty-third birthday, Mr. Ford said:

"But I'm used to being called an old man and I don't object to it. The first time I heard myself referred to as an old man I was just 30 years old. That was when I worked for the Detroit Edison Company."

Another million in Ford production was passed on July 21, when motor No. 14,000,000 came off the assembly line at the Fordson plant of the Ford Motor Company.

It was only a little more than two years ago that the famous Ford No. 10,000,000 was produced, an event celebrated by driving the car from New York to San Francisco.

The first model T Ford car was turned out on Oct. 1, 1908, and it was not until seven years later that the first million was reached.

COL. J. J. JANEWAY DIES AT 86 YEARS

A VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR

Following the war he entered the wall paper business, forming a partnership with the late Charles J. Carpenter and establishing the firm of Janeway & Carpenter. SAY FAME AND PRICE OF PAINTINGS COUNT

LONDON, July 30.—Art dealers and connoisseurs in painting generally were discussing today the reason why Romney's portrait of Mrs. Davenport should fetch £60,900 a few days ago and the same artist's picture of John Wesley only six guineas.

"Human nature being what it is," was one dealer's explanation. "The demand for paintings of beautiful women," he said, "is greater than for religious leaders, and we dealers have to recognize the fact. Of all pictures, a portrait of a pretty woman by an old master is the easiest to sell."

Another dealer's explanation was that the Davenport portrait was a world-famous picture, whose career could be traced from the time it was painted until the present day, while the John Wesley work was less well known.

"Pedigree is of vital importance," he said, "where Americans are concerned. When they buy an old master they absolutely demand to know its full pedigree."

"Every one in the civilized world," declared a third dealer, "knows the sum paid for the portrait of Mrs. Davenport, and all the rich Americans interested in art will vie with each other to obtain the world's most expensive picture, but they wouldn't give a dollar for John Wesley, because his highest bid was only six guineas. At every big sale, in fact, works by Reynolds, Gainsborough and a majority of the other famous artists can be picked up for a guinea or two."

THE M'MANUS DIES; A TAMMANY LEADER

Thomas J. McManus, better known as The McManus, head of the family of that name, former State Senator and Tammany leader of the Fifth Assembly District, Middle, died yesterday at his home, 452 West Forty-ninth Street. He was 64 years old and for twenty-five years had been the absolute political ruler of the midtown section of Manhattan west of Broadway.

Death was attributed to high blood pressure. He was taken ill just before midnight on Thursday while presiding at a meeting of the Thomas J. McManus Association, the Tammany organization of the district, at 728 Ninth Avenue. He literally died in harness, as he would have wished, for he had attended a meeting of the Tammany executive committee but a few hours before, at which he participated in the discussion which led to the selection of two candidates for City Court Judge.

Mr. McManus was the third of eight brothers, four of whom survive. These were all with him at his death. They are Charles A. McManus, Vice Chairman of the Board of Aldermen; John J., James L. and William. Mr. McManus was a bachelor, and after the death of his parents many years ago continued to live in the family residence in West Forty-ninth Street.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 9 A. M. in the Church of the Sacred Heart, 457 West Fifty-first Street. Mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Daniel A. Quinn, a friend of the dead leader. George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, the members of the Tammany Executive Committee, and the members of the Democratic County Committee of the Fifth Assembly District will join in the cortège from the McManus home to the church.

The death of Senator McManus removes another of the group of old-time Tammany leaders, diminished last year by the deaths of Thomas F. Foley and Frank J. Goodwin. The son of Owen and Mary Quinn McManus, Senator McManus came of fighting Irish stock and, aided always by the loyal support of his brothers, made himself a factor in the politics of Manhattan's West Side soon after reaching voting age.

Fought Tammany at First.

As in the cases of many other Tammany chieftains, his first victory was won against the Tammany organization. In 1891 he was elected to the Assembly as an independent Democrat, running under the emblem of a Tenth Avenue horse car, defeating both the Republican candidate and the candidate supported by the late Senator George W. Plunkitt, from whom later he was to wrest the Tammany leadership of the district.

At this time Senator McManus was a power in the district. He had formed the McManus Association, a thorn in the side of Senator Plunkitt, and was a successful contractor. The next year he was accepted as the Assembly candidate by the Tammany organization and re-elected, but the feud between him and Senator Plunkitt burst forth anew in 1905.

The primary fight between McManus and Plunkitt that year made Tammany history, ranking with that between Thomas F. Foley and Patrick J. Divver and the one between Frank J. Goodwin and William J. Devery. There was a third contestant, John J. Dordan, but the fight was between Plunkitt, backed by the late Charles F. Murphy, tnen leader of Tammany Hall, and McManus, backed more or less openly by the late Senator Timothy D. Sullivan.

The streets in the West Forties and Fifties were so placarded that the contest became known as the "battle of the banners." Senator McManus won by a clear majority over both opponents. The gathering at the McManus clubhouse that night is said by those who witnessed it to have been one of the most enthusiastic political meetings ever held in New York, and the McManus adherents carried a coffin, typifying the political death of Senator Plunkitt, through the streets.

Sullivan Block Annoyed Murphy.

The election of Senator McManus as a Tammany district leader gave the Sullivans control of eleven of the thirty-five Assembly Districts in New York County, as then constituted. Although it was not a majority, this Sullivan block caused Mr. Murphy considerable embarrassment during the early years of his leadership, and Senator McManus failed to receive the full favor of the head of Tammany until several years after "Big Tim" Sullivan's death.

In 1906 Mr. McManus completed his triumph over Senator Plunkitt by having himself elected to the State Senate to succeed his rival. He served there until the end of 1910. During his service in the Legislature Senator McManus always was a "regular."

After his retirement from the Senate, Senator McManus devoted himself to his leadership and his contracting business. According to the custom of the successful old-time Tammany leaders, he kept regular hours at his clubhouse, where his constituents could see him and where he dispensed money and advice, procured jobs, arranged for bail, or dropped a confidential word through political channels, as the case might demand. In return, he had the unswerving loyalty of the men and women of his district.

Senator McManus was a striking figure, more than six feet in height and of erect carriage. He was always well but modestly dressed and wore a Van Dyke beard. He was frank in speech, and the strength of his grip, frequently displayed in making an acquaintance, was only equaled in Tammany circles by that of James J. Hagan, Tammany leader of a district a little further north.

Tribute From Mayor Walker.

Mayor Walker was departing on his vacation as he heard of Senator McManus's death. He made this comment:

"As I leave town to fulfill some commitments heretofore made, I learn with the deepest regret of the death of one of my oldest friends, Thomas J. McManus. I can recall him back in the days of 1891 and 1892, when he was a colleague of my own father in the New York State Legislature. He was a fine, strong character, true to the principles of democracy, and a genuine public servant in that he had a real love for all people. The City of New York is much poorer in his loss."

Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee, who will be acting Mayor in Mr. Walker's absence, requested all the members of the Board of Aldermen to attend the funeral. The delegation will be headed by Judge McKee and Frank A. Cunningham, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the board.

THOMPSON VISITS BATANGAS PROVINCE

LOADED WITH HOSPITALITY

By RUSSELL B. PORTER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANILA, July 30—Col. Carmi Thompson, President Coolidge's personal representatives in the Philippines, yesterday made a fifteen-hour motor trip of two hundred fifty miles through the Province of Batangas, which gets its name from the Tagalog dialect word for bamboo outriggers, which keep the bancas, the native canoes, from tipping over. He found the Province of South Manila the most fertile, prosperous and advanced yet visited.

The Colonel and his companions rode through a picturesque countryside over good roads line d with spreading banana palms and shady mango trees between fields of wavy sugar cane and green rice paddies. They passed through neat barrios, or native villages, the people living by the roadside in tiny huts made of nipa, palm leaves and bamboo wood open on all sides because of the heat. Sometimes the natives use shell windows, which typhoons can't break. The floors are raised several feet on poles to keep out dampness and insects and provide room for the pigs, chickens, dogs and farm implements. The simple taos, or peasants, wives go barefooted, wearing gay colored calico. The children go naked except for a single short garment. They waved a welcome to the Americanos at every barrior.

Between barrios the motorists passed the extremes of modern and primitive methods of transportation. American automobiles driven by natty young Filipinos carrying goods contrasted with barefooted peddlers in white undershirts and red knee pants and wearing wide-brimmed cone-shaped hats made of palangut or water foot and carrying bamboo baskets of fowl, fish and vegetables slung on long bamboo poles over their shoulders. There were barefooted women peddlers wearing red or blue calico petticoats and bodices carrying baskets on their heads and under huge hats made of palm leaves to serve as sunshades or umbrellas for protection against the blazing sun and the driving rain, which alternates during the rainy season.

Stops at Large Towns.

The party stopped at Batangas, the capital of the province, and other large towns, where they found modern administration buildings and schools and the residences of the Spanish mestizos. Colonel Thompson talked with the Provincial Governor, Presidentes or Mayors of towns and rich planters, who were well dressed in white clothes in the European fashion and who live in luxurious homes with gardens in the Spanish style.

The Americans visited the sugar central of the famous Roxas hacienda, or estate, a 70,000-acre grant from the old Spanish Crown. The cane is raised by tenant farmers on small areas, who send all the crop to the central and get paid for half. This, called the Aparcero scheme, is widely used in sugar growing.

The motorists stopped in Barrio Taal, famous for its production of Philippine embroidery, popular in the United States. The embroidery is done by women and children who are paid a few cents a day for their hand work, the cloth being imported from the United States. The Taal women make the marvelously delicate fine piña—pronounced peenya—embroidery from pineapple fiber, but it is so expensive it is rarely seen in the United States.

The visitors saw the Taal volcano, which was believed to be extinct, but which caused several thousand deaths in the eruption of 1911 and many deaths in the old Spanish times. Lago de Bonbon, or Sandy Lake, at the foot of Mount Taal is one of the beauty spots of the Philippines and provides great fishing. Barrio Taal is the home of "Miss Philippines," who won the Archipelago beauty contest this year. The Thompson party had merienda, or luncheon, at the home of her uncle, who proudly exhibited photographs of the beauty.

Six Feasts in Four Hours.

Meriendas were offered to the party at every halt, an example of Filipino hospitality under Spanish influence. This is a custom of the country and it would have been regarded as discourteous to refuse meriendas and the party ate six meriendas in four hours, all accompanied with the beverages of the country. The most interesting entertainment was offered at the Governor's home. A course banquet was served, including delicious Filipino fruit and especially candied bucko, or green lemon, served by brown-skinned boys wearing transparent barongs, tagalog native shirts made of silk and hemp or camesa de chino, the Chinese shirts being beautifully embroidered with figures of birds, butterflies and flowers. Fly chasers made of long strips of Japanese paper and fastened to bamboo poles were swept back and forth over the table by the boys.

This is all historic country, the province being among the last of Aguinaldo's insurrectos to surrender to the cavalry, Governor General Wood's Americans. Colonel Langhorne of the commercial adviser, who fought in Batangas in 1900, accompanied Colonel Thompson, renewed the acquaintance of old foes and visited houses he occupied in wartime.

The Philippine Senate was represented by Manuel Quezon, who accompanied Colonel Thompson on the trip. There were no independence banners nor speeches, in contrast with the recent trip to the islands of Mandora, Palawan, Culion and Cuyo. Now the placards in Batangas told about the products of the province. One said: "We need more funds to develop our agricultural resources, mother of all industries and of success and wealth." Batangas is trying to redevelop the coffee industry, which was destroyed by blight some years ago. The province was once a great coffee producer. Colonel Thompson was much interested, as Americans pay more for their automobile tires and breakfast coffee because of the British-Dutch control of rubber and the Brazilians of coffee. Other tropical raw materials controlled by other Governments which could be grown here are the camphor of Japan, the sisal of Mexico and the cacao of the British possessions, according to American Government experts.

Montalban Reservoir Inspected.

After a night's rest on his return from Batangas Province Colonel Thompson today visited the Montalban Reservoir, the source of the water supply of a majority of the Filipinos of Manila, although the Americans drink artesian and distilled water. The Montalban Reservoir is inadequate for an entire year's supply, and the Filipinos are now building a new reservoir with a six-foot concrete aqueduct from Novaliches to carry water six kilometers to Manila.

According to the American officials, the experience of the Filipinos in building the new reservoir indicates their unfitness for self-government at the present stage of their development. Two American contractors are doing the job, but were handicapped for a time by malaria, which caused twenty-five deaths and fifty new cases weekly. The contractors are said to have applied in vain to the Philippine health office for assistance. They finally brought out a young American physician, who built a hospital and applied modern sanitation methods and gradually reduced the new cases to zero. The work is now progressing without interference from the disease. Laborers who were frightened away by the malaria deaths are returning to the job.

P. W. Mack, the New York engineer who helped to build the Catskill Aqueduct, is in charge of the engineering work, using the same methods at Novaliches as in New York.

A. C. GURNEE'S WILL BENEFITS HARVARD

University to Get Residuary Estate —$300,000 and $20,000 Annuity for Secretary.

Bequeathing $300,000 in bonds and a $20,000 annuity to his secretary, giving his residuary estate to Harvard University, and providing for nearly $4,000,000 in specific bequests to relatives and charities, the will of Augustus Coe Gurnee, son of the late Walter S. Gurnee, capitalist and a pioneer of Chicago, was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday. The value of the estate or of the legacy to Harvard University could not be learned yesterday.

Mr. Gurnee, who maintained homes in Bar Harbor and Paris, died at Baden Baden, Germany, on July 5, last.

The will leaves $25,000 each to the Presbyterian Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital, the Nursery and Child's Hospital, and the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, all of this city. The Bar Harbor Hospital gets a like amount, and the Children's Aid Society of New York receives $20,000. Legacies of $10,000 are given to the New York City Mission Society and the University Settlement, both of New York, and the Y. M. C. A. of Bar Harbor.

Mr. Gurnee gave $10,000 to the Town of Bar Harbor to be used for the education and college expenses of a student of the Bar Harbor High School, providing that preference shall be given to the student standing highest in scholarship.

Eight trust funds of $200,000 each to nieces and nephews are established for the following: Bell B. Gurnee of 1,088 Park Avenue, Mary L. Hoppin of 777 Madison Avenue, Walter S. Gurnee of 116 East Fifty-third Street, Lucy B. Thorndyke of 175 Mariborough Street, Boston, Mass.; Evelyn Scott Chapman of 320 Park Avenue, Grace G. Dyer of Brookville, L. I.; E. Norman Scott of Greenwich, Conn., and Mary Evelyn Scott of 141 East Seventy-second Street. Mr. Gurnee's secretary, Gunnar Frederich Dutschke, whose address is given as 17 Avenue D'Iena, Paris, inherits $300,000 in 3½ per cent. Liberty bonds, and receives $20,000 a year from the residuary estate.

Trust funds of $50,000 each are provided for the following grandnieces and grandnephews: Walter S. Gurnee of Dansville, N. Y.; Lucy Lalham and Rita Cordelia Gurnee, both of 116 East Fifty-third Street, children of Walter S. Gurnee; Walter Gurnee Dyer, Elisha Dyer and George Dyer Jr., children of Grace G. Dyer of 17 Marlborough Street, Boston; E. Norman Scott Jr., Delia Gurnee Scott and Ellen Bennett Scott, children of E. Norman Scott of Greenwich, Conn.

Legacies of $25,000 each are given to Mrs. Rita B. Gurnee, wife of a nephew, Walter S. Gurnee; Florence Scott, wife of E. Norman Scott, and Minnie S. Hagemeyer, mother of a grandniece, Mary E. Scott, of 141 East Seventy-second Street. Jeanne Baumgartner of Paris, a former companion of a deceased sister of the testator, inherits $2,500.

The document directs that the estate at Bar Harbor, known as Beaudisoit, shall be sold and the proceeds shall become part of the residuary estate. The furnishings of the estate, including personal effects, are given to E. Norman Scott. The will also gives a sum of money to the Village Improvement Society of Bar Harbor, Me., to be used to maintain a triangular lot of ground which the testator had deeded to the association and on which stands a memorial to Charles T. How, a friend of the testator.

The following friends each inherit $10,000: F. Delano Weeks of Oyster Bay, L. I.; Inman Barnard of Paris, Fannie and Elizabeth Sinclair Lyon, both of Chappaqua, N. Y.; Mrs. Maud P. Elliot, wife of John Elliot of Newport, R. I., and Margaret B. Damrosch, wife of Walter Damrosch, of 146 East Sixty-first Street.

REPORTS BORIS ENGAGED.

Geneva Dispatch Says Bulgarian King Will Wed Italian Princess.

LONDON, July 30 (AP).—Reuter's Geneva correspondent says he learns from Sofia that the betrothal of King Boris of Bulgaria to Princess Giovanna, third daughter of the Italian sovereigns, is "considered an accomplished fact."

King Boris, the only bachelor sovereign in Europe, left Bulgaria early this month ostensibly for a holiday, but it was later intimated by Premier Liaptcheff that he was seeking a bride. He is 32 years old.

There have been insistent rumors that Boris would seek an alliance with Princess Giovanna, who is in her nineteenth year, notwithstanding the difference in their religion. The Princess is a Catholic, while Boris is of the Orthodox faith.

Boris is at present in Switzerland.

CENSURE OF LEADERS FAILS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 30.—The Delegates' Conference of the coal miners decided here today to refer to the districts for ratification of the proposals for the settlement of the coal dispute which were recently submitted on behalf of the Miners' Executive to the Government through the mediation of the Industrial Christian Fellowship.

The miners themselves will now ballot on the plan and their vote, which will be final, must be completed by Aug. 7.

The delegates' decision was not reached until after long and heated discussions, in the course of which a vote of censure on the Executive for adopting the proposals was moved but defeated.

The points of the memorandum on which the District Miners' Associations will now vote were:

1. The immediate resumption of work with hours and wages as before stoppage.

2. A national settlement within four months and a subsidy during this period.

3. The reorganization scheme and wages to be worked out in detail by the Coal Commission and to be incorporated in legislation, the four parts of the reorganization scheme capable of early application to be put immediately into operation.

5. Matters still in disagreement after four months to be settled by a joint board with an independent chairman, whose award is to be accepted by both parties.

Eight-Hour Day Plan Left Out.

Emphatic assurance was given to the delegates that among the matters to be arbitrated would not be the owners' eight-hour day proposal.

The delegates from Durham and South Wales moved the vote of censure of the executive because it had made no provision in the proposals for a national minimum wage and had committed the men to the acceptance of the findings of an arbitrator.

Both Hebert Smith, the President, and A. J. Cook, the Secretary, of the Miners' Federation, urged the delegates, however, to recognize that the time had come when they must put forward proposals of their own and contended that the executive had obtained valuable support through the advocacy of the memorandum by the members of the Industrial Christian Fellowship. These representations had their effect and the executive was sustained by a large majority.

It proposed, if the terms of the memorandum are endorsed by the districts that the executive will not approach either the Government or the mine owners, but will appeal again to the Industrial Christian Fellowship to prepare the way for negotiations. The executive attaches great importance to the effect on public opinion of its association with the religious organizations.

Even if the proposals are endorsed by the mining districts, they may bring peace no nearer. They are based on the granting of a substantial Government subsidy, and the Government has already declared emphatically that the public finances will not permit further subsidies.

Bitter Debate in Commons.

The debate in the House of Commons today on the third renewal of the Emergency Powers act, due to the continuance of the coal stoppage, was marked by considerable acrimony. So heated were some of the observations that the Speaker suggested at one point that the quarrel might be adjourned to the tea room.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, was accused by Captain Wedgewood Benn, Liberal, of trying to make a point for the continuance of the regulations by commenting on a case which was still sub judice. It was abuse of the regulations of the House, said Captain Benn, to make statements which might prejudice the decision of the Court.

"It is what you are always doing," he asserted, and Mr. Batey, Labor, shouted:

"You did the same with Saklatvala!"

Captain Benn declared later in the debate that the Home Secretary's nature was foreign to the conceptions of judicial fairness, that he had prejudged the issue of cases before and that he went about like a hired barrister.

Sir Herbert Nield, Conservative, said Captain Benn seemed to represent the rump of the Liberal Party. He criticized the conduct of the Labor Party in the recent by-elections. The debate on this point was continued by members across the floor of the House, Miss Susan Lawrence, Labor, and Commander Kenworthy, Liberal, interjecting pointed remarks.

It was then that the Speaker suggested that the discussion of the subject should be adjourned to the tea room.

Mr. MacQuisten, Conservative, attacked Mr. Lloyd George. He declared that the ex-Premier, armed with tanks and howitzers, was prepared to make a shambles at Glasgow when the labor troubles occurred there during his tenure of office, yet now he came to Parliament with the Christian churches, posing as an angel of peace.

The Labor amendment to omit certain of the emergency regulations was defeated by a Government majority of 133.

Laborites Sailing Second Class.

LONDON, July 30 (AP).—The British miners' delegation which is leaving for the United States tomorrow to seek relief funds for the women and children of the striking coal miners will travel second class to save expenses, Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Laborite M. P., announced today.

Miss Wilkinson, who is accompanying the delegation, will be the first woman Member of Parliament to cross the Atlantic second class. She is going as the Chairwoman of the Women's Relief Fund.

After meeting President William Green and other officials of the American Federation of Labor at Washington, the delegation will tour the mining districts of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois and Ohio.

Molloy Orders Prayers for Mexico.

Prayers will be said in all the Catholic churches of the Diocese of Brooklyn at the masses tomorrow for "the persecuted Church in Mexico," by order of the Right Rev. Thomas E. Molloy, Bishop of the diocese. Bishop Molloy has issued a letter which will be read at all masses.

Will Erect Homes for Workers Near the Holy See.

ROME, July 30 (AP).—Pope Pius intends to build a group of houses near the Holy See which will be rented at minimum prices to relieve the pressure of the increasing high cost of living among several thousand working persons in Rome, it is asserted in ecclesiastical circles of the Vatican.

These same authorities say the Pope has created a special technical office, directed by three prelate engineers who also will supervise the construction of several thousand parish houses in various parts of Italy for the use of the poor among the faithful. The houses will be constructed with Vatican funds.

The novelties were Gustav Holst's "St. Paul Suite" and the Aladdin Suite of Stillman Kelley. Interest in Kelley's work was greatly stimulated by the presence of the composer, whom the audience acclaimed. Mr. Stoessel yesterday gave the first of five programs for children to a large audience.

LAWYERS RETAINED TO DEFEND GUNMEN

LEGAL FUND FROM CRIMES

PROSECUTORS IN CONTEST

Conference to Be Held Today to Decide on Claims of Counties to Prisoners.

Fearing possible identification by four witnesses as the slayers of Aaron Rodack, the "fighting jeweler" of Washington Heights, the five gunmen of the Oberst gang awaiting indictment in the Bronx for the hold-up of the Liccione Bank there an hour after Mr. Rodack was killed, refused yesterday to go to the office of District Attorney John E. McGeehan.

They had been lodged in cells in the Bronx County Jail two days previously, having confessed that they had participated in the bank hold-up in which a clerk was shot and Peter Baranowski, a sixth robber, was wounded mortallly by one of them in their escape after a pistol battle with the nephew of the banker.

They had denied having shot anybody in the thirty or more other hold-ups attributed to them, but one of them had been identified as a member of the gang that shot and killed a girl and a man in the office of the Sunglo-Sills wholesale grocery in West Thirteenth Street, and he and another member had been identified as having taken part in the frustrated hold-up of the Loft candy factory in Long Island City in which Probationary Patrolman James J. Broderick was shot.

Money for Lawyers.

From the time of the round-up of the gang last Tuesday each member had declared repeatedly that he had spent his full share of the loot and that they had only $37. A short time before they refused to face the Rodack witnesses, however, Police Commissioner McLaughlin said the police had learned that they had put aside a large sum to defray the expense of counsel in the event of their arrest. This statement appeared to have been borne out in the afternoon when several lawyers called on District Attorney McGeehan and informed him that they had just been retained to represent the robbers.

These lawyers said also that, regardless of the statements of the gunmen that they would plead guilty when called for trial on next Thursday on indictments which are expected to be voted by the Bronx Grand Jury on Monday, their clients would plead not guilty and would stand trial.

The prosecutor received this information with surprise, but he warned the lawyers that he would brook no delay in bringing the gunmen to trial and said he intended to make good his promise of three days ago that before the end of next week the State would have the five prisoners ready to receive long prison sentences from the Court.

On the departure of the lawyers, Mr. McGeehan sent Acting Captain Henry Bruckman, head of the North Bronx Detective Bureau, and several detectives to take the prisoners to his office from the jail. They found the gunmen in a defiant mood and even discourteous. Phillip Oberst, leader of the gang, saying:

"We know our rights. The District Attorney can't take us to his office if we don't want to go, and we don't propose to go there to be identified again."

Do Danger If Innocent.

Captain Bruckman told the prisoners that if their declarations were true that they had done no shooting except in the bank case, they had nothing to fear.

"We have lawyers to take care of our interests," was the rejoinder of Benjamin Frankel, alias "Frenchie," who was identified as a participant in the Sunglo-Sills and the Loft factory hold-ups. Leo Hecker, whose right name the police believe is Stein, and who is accused of having shot Broderick, and Oberst and the other two gunmen, Peter Mahoney, alias Brown, the gang's chauffeur, and John Ward, alias Kerrigan, nodded their heads in approval of Frankel's stand.

The detectives were surprised most at Franke's attitude, for only on the previous day when he and Oberst, Ward and Mahoney were admiting in Mr. McGeehan's office that they had participated in the $2,500 robbery of the Kenney gasoline station in Jamaica, Queens, he wept almost continuously.

After the detectives had reported to Mr. McGeehan the result of their visit, the four witnesses were taken away. It was understood that they would have an opportunity to view the gunmen after the latter have been indicted.

"They were within their rights in refusing to come here," Mr. McGeehan said. "It is plain that they are resting on the advice of lawyers. But this stand will gain nothing for them. Witnesses of the Rodack murder and other shootings will have an opportunity later to look them over."

Rivalry Among Counties.

Mr. McGeehan revealed that there is a battle pending between District Attorney Banton of New York County, District Attorney Newcombe of Queens and himself for final possession of the five prisoners with a view to quick trial. There is to be a conference about the matter today.

Indictments charging the gunmen with first degree robbery in connection with the robbery of Roosevelt Hospital of $8,000 were returned by the New York County Grand Jury on the day after the robbers were arrested. This offense would not bring so long a term of imprisonment as would conviction in the Bronx for the shooting of the bank clerk. The Keeny hold-up in Queens is on a par with the Roosevelt Hospital robbery as regards Penalty.

It was understood, however, that the police had centred their efforts on an attempt to prove that the prisoners were the gunmen in the Rodack case and that if they were identified as such District Attorney Banton immediately would lodge a General Sessions bench warrant for them.

Bronx to Keep Prisoners.

"I shall fight to retain the gunmen in the Bronx," Mr. McGeehan said. "There is no need of their being taken out of this county until the Liccione bank indictments have been disposed of here. If in the meantime indictments charging more serious offenses are returned in any other county, it will not be a difficult matter for the District Attorney of that county to ask the Judge of the court here to stay the imposition of sentence. Then the prisoners can be taken to the other county for trial on the more serious offense."

Commissioner McLaughlin said he had been informed that the detectives had obtained additional proof of the connection of the gang with the Loft hold-up and that he had instructed Captain Gallagher of the Queens Detective Bureau to keep working on the case.

"The county which has the best case and can send the men away for the longest term should have the preference," the Commissioner said. "We have strong evidence that they are responsible for the Sunglo-Sills grocery killings. The Loft job came after that, and a policeman was nearly killed. Bear in mind that after that came the bank job in the Bronx. They were there, prepared to kill everybody.

The principal criticism we made of the parole of Frankel is that he represented to the parole officer that since last November, when he came out of the reformatory, he was engaged as a plumber's helper. One glance at his hands would indicate that he was not a plumber's helper. All the while he was out on parole he was perpetrating holdups. The same is true of Stein, who is out of Elmira Reformatory only one and a half months.

LINNENKAMP SUES MANAGER

Ernst Linnekamp, Viennese portrait painter, applied in the Supreme Court yesterday for an attachment against the property of his former business manager, William A. Flanagan, in a suit to recover $3,200 alleged to be due for making a portrait off Beryl Halley, late star of "The Bunk of 1926," to which he gave the title, "Twentieth Century Venus." The writ was to obtain possession of a picture "John the Baptist," which Mr. Linnenkamp says is reputed to be a Van Dyck.

Mr. Linnenkamp said that he had met Flanagan a year ago in San Francisco, and that the defendant held himself out to be a dealer in old masters. Flanagan came East three months ago, the artist says, and suggested that he act as business manager for the plaintiff, to which he agreed, and gave Flanagan a power of attorney. The petition says that on May 27 Russell A. Reed asked the artist to do a portrait of Miss Halley, and offered $2,500, but Mr. Linnenkamp demanded $5,000. The latter asserts that Flanagan then agreed to make up the additional $2,500 if he could have an interest in the reproducing rights of the portrait.

The artist asserts that the portrait was painted, and that he endorsed Reed's $2,500 check and turned it over to Flanagan, who deposited the check in an account opened in his own name. Flanagan later withdrew $3,200 from the account and disappeared, Mr. Linnenkamp alleges. He says he has heard from one source that Flanagan has gone to China, and from the clerks at the Hotel Raleigh, 106 West Forty-seventh Street, where Flanagan lived, that he had gone to South America.

BALL PLAYER IN CONTEMPT.

McQuillan Faces Jail Term if He Fails to Appear in Alimony Case.

Hugh McQuillan, a pitcher for the New York National League Baseball Club, was adjudged in contempt in the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday, and he is liable to a jail term if he delays in obeying a court order. The baseball player's trouble resulted from an action by his wife, Mrs. Nellie T. McQuillan of Worcester, Mass., in which she sought to force him to pay $750 alimony, said to be overdue.

A year ago McQuillan was ordered to pay $500 monthly to his wife pending trial of her suit for separation. Recently McQuillan was directed to appear in court on this complaint. He failed to obey. His attorney, Bernard H. Reich, told Justice James C. Cropsey that McQuillan had other obligations which had hampered him in his alimony payments, and asked for more time.

"There is no use in granting additional time," said Justice Cropsey. "When a man shows disrespect for an order of the court he should be given no more time, but should be committed." The Court directed James F. Kelly, attorney for Mrs. McQuillan, to prepare an order for the commitment to jail of the pitcher.

DAWES GOES TO DENVER.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Vice President Dawes and a party of seven left tonight for the West on his first vacation since the adjournment of Congress.

On Sunday afternoon he will attend the opening ceremonies in Denver of the three days celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Colorado statehood, and at night will address a mass meeting.

Plans have been made for a military reception for General Dawes in Denver.

Then he will go to Wagon Wheel Gap for ten days as the guest of A. E. Humphreys, a Denver oil man and capitalist, at the latter's 500-acre camp. Wagon Wheel Gap is about 300 miles southwest of Denver in the Rocky Mountains and near the headwaters of the Rio Grande.

Strike Over, I. R. T. Stock Sags; It Rose as Trouble Started

Interborough Rapid Transit Company stock, which rose at the beginning of the strike, ran true to form yesterday and dropped a full point from the closing New York Stock Exchange quotations on Thursday.

On July 6, the first day of the strike, Interborough stock rose to $42.75 a share, a gain of $2.75 since the strike declaration, two days before. Yesterday Interborough stock, which had closed on Thursday at $44.75, opened at $43, but rallied later and closed at $43.75.

MILK PROSECUTIONS DROPPED, HE SAYS

BORROWED FROM DANZIGER

Loan of $1,200 for Purchase of House Repaid, He Swears—Not Friends Now.

Fred W. Kautzman, who was dismissed from his position as milk inspector by Dr. Louis I. Harris after the latter became Health Commissioner last January, testified yesterday that he had been under financial obligation to Harry Danziger, who has pleaded guilty in the Bronx to an indictment charging him with extorting $7,000 from milk dealers.

At the trial before Judge Max S. Levine and a jury in General Sessions of William H. Kehoe, former Assistant Corporation Counsel, accused of conspiracy in the milk graft scandal, Kautzman admitted having borrowed $1,200 from Danziger. The money, he said, had been used in the purchase of a home and had been repaid. Kautzman said he had given Danziger a second mortgage on the property as security, but the instrument never had been recorded.

Most of yesterday's session was devoted to cross examination of Kautzman by Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora. Kautzman said he had not been surprised that there was no prosecution of Samuel Doner, wholesale cream merchant, following the seizure and return to Donor of fifty-six cans of bootleg cream in January, 1924.

"Things like that happened many times," Kautzman said.

Payment to Danziger.

About the time of this seizure Doner told him, Kautzman said, that he had paid Danziger $2,000 to prevent the latter from making trouble for him with the Dairymen's League, from which he had been purchasing much of his cream.

"You wouldn't blame Doner for lying to save his fifty-six cans of cream?" Mr. Pecora asked.

"No, I wouldn't," Kautzman said. "I wouldn't believe any milk dealer."

Kautzman testified that Doner told him he kept no books, and a check-up of the waybills in Doner's possession failed to disclose that he had brought cream into the city from unapproved sources.

Mr. Pecora questioned the witness concerning the case of Charles Cacciopo of Brooklyn, a milk dealer who was arrested by Kautzman and fined $100 by Magistrate Conway after Kautzman had testified that he saw Cacciopo watering his milk with a hose. It was brought out that samples of the milk were analyzed in the Health Department Laboratory and reported to be "above standard." Although other milk was found there which was below the Health Department requirements, no prosecution was instituted, the witness admitted.

"Isn't the reason you didn't press the charge against him to the fullest extent because he paid you and Kehoe $1,500?" Mr. Pecora asked. Kautzman denied this was the fact.

Split With Danziger.

The witness told of a trip he had taken to Atlantic City with Danziger, and said he had "quit going with him" early in 1924 because he learned that Danziger was "going" with a young woman other than his wife.

Almost immediately it was brought out that the witness had accompanied Danziger to a roadhouse and that neither of their women companions was Mrs. Danziger.

M. M. Edelstein, Kehoe's counsel, developed on redirect examination that Kautzman first became intimate with Danziger when Mrs. Danziger asked him to do what he could to bring about a reconciliation between her and her husband. She was suing for a divorce, Kautzman said, but dropped the suit and there was a temporary reconciliation.

Kautzman declared it was possible to put water in milk and still have it conform to the Health Department standards. He said the fact that milk or cream came into the city from unapproved sources did not mean it was necessarily below standard or injurious to the public health.

The trial will be resumed at 10 o'clock Monday.

Greenhaus Gets Two-Year Sentence—Griffin One Year—Each Also Is Fined $1,000.

Charles H. Greenhaus, once known as the "Boy Wizard of Wall Street," and Harry R. Griffin, President of the Griffin Development and Construction Company, were found guilty yesterday by a jury before Federal Judge Burns of having swindled a large number of victims out of more than $200,000 by inducing them to invest in land in Putnam County, Fla., that was practically worthless.

Greenhaus, who was said to have originated the scheme and who, it was charged, absorbed most of the money obtained through the fraud, was sentenced to the Atlanta Penitentiary for two years and fined $1,000. Griffin was sentenced to the same prison for a year and a day. The Griffin Company was fined $1,000. Ivan Franklin Israel and William Price, who were named in the same indictment and who pleaded guilty on the eve of the trial, will be sentenced Monday.

The scheme consisted of acquiring the names of many persons who had lost money in other ventures and inducing them to exchange their worthless stock for lots in the Florida tract owned by the Griffin Company. Later the victims were asked to make cash payments so that a mortgage might be cleared off and the property be disposed of to alleged buyers who were said to be anxious to get hold of it at prices that would represent large profits.

400 Drown in the Niigata Floods in Japan; Storm Sweeps Kobe; Total Loss Is $5,000,000

TOKIO, July 30.—An official report of the floods following torrential rains in Niigata Prefecture state that 400 are dead and missing, 8,000 houses flooded and 800 destroyed, 25,000 acres of rice fields devastated and forty-six bridges destroyed, the total loss being estimated at more than $5,000,000.

Today the storm swept south, inundating Kobe and creating havoc in that port, where three Japanese schooners are missing, slums are flooded and the city is without lights. No Kobe fatalities are reported.

In Niigata the rains continued until this evening, when the relief work started, although handicapped by miles of roads having been destroyed and railway lines broken.

The rivers are still rising and threaten to isolate Niigata City by taking away the railway bridge.

Dykes burst throughout the district pouring floods into the farms and driving the inhabitants to higher ground, where they are without food or comforts and cannot as yet be reached by relief workers.

TOKIO, July 30 (AP).—In addition to the toll of dead and missing in the terrific floods which have ravaged Niigata Prefecture, on the west coast of the main island of Japan, disease is reported to have followed in the wake of the waters of the Shinano River, adding to the misery of the population.

Seventy bodies have been recovered in the village of Tochio alone, this place having borne the brunt of the disaster. There 1,500 houses were washed away.

The cries of women and children for help and the floating bodies added to the distress of the situation.

Electric lights have been cut off in most of the villages and hunger is adding its terrors to darkness.

A relief corps from Nagaoka brought food and medical aid, but the assistance has been inadequate. The Red Cross and other relief agencies have started for the flood area from other cities.

HIGHER CALL MONEY CHECKS STOCK RISE

STEEL AND MOTORS LEAD

Both Go to New High Points in Brisk Early Trading—Slight Rally Toward Close.

An abrupt advance in the call money rate from 4 to 5 per cent. arrested the uprush in the stock market yesterday after General Motors, United States Steel and other trading favorites had made further gains and had again attained the highest price levels in their history.

For a while in the morning there was a display of speculative activity which sent prices skyrocketing, and traders prepared themselves for a repetition of the excited operations of Thursday. United States Steel wrested the market leadership from General Motors and soared to a peak of 149¼ on a burst of buying that has rarely been equalled. Hudson Motors emerged as one of the sensations of the market, rising to 68⅞, and showing a net gain of 5¼ points at the end of the day. Consolidated Gas, General Electric, United States Cast Iron Pipe and a few other issues attracted attention by the extent of their advance.

Interest in the railway shares expanded around noon, indicating that the professional operators who are credited with dominating the market had switched from the industrial group which theretofore had received principal attention. This was regarded as an adroit manoeuvre, and was significant as emphasizing the professional character of the market. Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Atchison and a few other issues rose sharply under the impetus of the heavy buying.

The reaction came in the early afternoon, coincident with the change in the call money rate. Almost instantly the market turned about as heavy selling appeared. Nearly all of the stocks which had been most active in the advance broke sharply, with General Motors leading. This stock not only lost all of its previous gain, but ended the day with a net loss of 2¾ points. The market rallied somewhat in the late trading, as the selling subsided, but the close was irregular.

The day's trading was heavier than that of Thursday. At the end of the day 2,384,216 shares had changed hands.

Wall Street was busy yesterday guessing the size of the profits which William C. Durant and others who have been active in the market have realized. The estimates ran from a few millions to a hundred millon. As a matter of fact, it was pointed out in brokerage circles, his profits cannot be even approximated. He has been doing business through fifteen or more brokerage houses and, as usual, has kept silent regarding his operations.

Praise Harris's Pollution Warning.

Announcement was made by the Municipal Civic League yesterday that at a meeting held Thursday at 105 Russell Street, Brooklyn, a resolution had been adopted commending Dr. Louis T. Harris, Health Commissioner, for his warning of the danger from polluted waters about the city. Thomas E. Willmott, former Assemblyman, said Commissioner Harris was confronted with a "tremendous problem" and that the warning should not go unheeded.

I. R. T. AGAIN NORMAL, 150 MORE MEN BACK

RECRUITS TO LOSE JOBS

Leaders of Walkout Must Apply to Hedley Personally—Cost of Strike Put at Over a Million.

Nearly 150 Interborough strikers returned to work yesterday, and with high-speed operation of the west side subway locals resumed at midnight the Interborough system returned to normal operation.

At 5 o'clock 462 regular motormen and 187 switchmen were at work, leaving only 37 regular motormen and 50 regular switchmen who had failed up to that time to signalize the formal end of the strike by returning to their jobs.

The company still has 288 new motormen and 181 new switchmen on its payroll. Most of them will be discharged ultimately and returned to the cities from which they came, but many of the new men will be retained for a week or more as an assurance of safety.

Leaders Fail to Apply.

The majority of the men still out are expected to return today. Edward P. Lavin, Harry Bark and Joseph A. Phelan, the three strike leaders, failed to apply for reinstatement. It will be necessary for them, if they desire to be taken back, to apply to Frank Hedley, President and general manager of the company. Mr. Bark and Mr. Phelan were reported to be ready to seek reinstatement, but Mr. Lavin was said to be reluctant to ask for his job as motorman again.

The cost of the strike to the Interborough Company has not yet been calculated, but James L. Quackenbush, general counsel, said it would be well over a million dollars. The company's loss in revenue from fares up to and including Thursday was $492,682.90. In addition to this direct loss, Mr. Quackenbush said, operating expenses had been about doubled during the strike.

More than 100 striking motormen and switchmen reported at the 147th Street and Lenox Avenue yards yesterday morning. The commissary for the strike-breakers was still in operation and the returning strikers were asked to have luncheon "on the company." Many accepted the invitation, which was offered with the explanation that "we've killed the fatted calf for you prodigals."

Jobs Open for All but Three.

"Our orders are to take back everybody except Lavin, Bark and Phelan," said P. C. Cusack, assistant trainmaster. "They will have to call at the Interborough offices and see Mr. Hedley personally."

In the meantime, the three strike leaders finished closing up the business of the strike at the Manhattan Casino headquarters.

"It's all over, boys; go back to work," said Mr. Lavin to a handful of men who appeared at the Casino. A few said they never would go back to work for the Interborough.

Mr. Lavin said that, although the strike was ended, he would insist upon an investigation by Police Commissioner McLaughlin of the alleged assault upon a group of strikers by detectives last Friday night.

WOMAN SUICIDE SENT CASH TO PORTO RICO

SOURCE STILL A MYSTERY

State's Attorney Was About to Ask for Her Indictment as a Forger When She Took Fatal Leap.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 30.—The mystery surrounding the activities of Mrs. Alice Miller, who committed suicide on July 1, when State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Connor was about to move her indictment on charges of forgery, may be cleared as a result of a clue recently obtained, Abraham Rosenthal said today.

Mr. Rosenthal is the attorney for Irving Caplan, receiver with W. L. Galvin for the art shop conducted by Mrs. Miller.

Mr. Rosenthal declares he knows that Mrs. Miller sent to Porto Rico in the three years preceding her death in excess of $820,000, which was cabled through two Baltimore banking institutions. He declares that between Jan. 1 and the end of May, 1926, she sent to Porto Rico through the same Baltimore banks $323,000.

"What was the source from which she drew these sums? I confess that that is a considerable mystery. She did not draw from the Artcrafts Shop or from the Porto Rican fruit business, which she conducted here. She did not do any such volume of business with these two concerns to get such funds.

Always a Woman of Mystery.

"Mrs. Miller has been a woman of mystery since her appearance in Baltimore. We have been unable to learn whether her husband was living or where she came from originally.

"We have had some information to the effect that she at one time lived in Porto Rico and was known as a person of importance and integrity there, as were others with whom she was associated.

"One fact has added to the difficulties of clearing up the mystery surrounding her. Some banks and finance companies which are known to have claims against her have not filed their claims."

An important coincidence was the discovery that Mrs. Miller's brother-in-law, Charles W. Reed, Vice President of the West Indies Express Company here, is supposed to be in Porto Rico. In the receivership papers filed by Mr. Rosenthal he is charged with having received money fraudulently obtained by Mrs. Miller. Charles W. Reed is the husband of Mrs. Miller's sister Florence, who was in the art shop with Mrs. Miller, but who denies that she was a partner.

The bill filed by the receiver asks that Walter Reed, a nephew of Mrs. Miller, "discover and account to the receivers for any and all money received from any source for or on account of the business" of the Arts and Crafts Centre, and "that he be enjoined from receiving money or papers of any description in connection with the business."

The bill alleged that Mr. Reed drew $100 from the Park Bank subsequent to Mrs. Muller's death on July 1.

The bill asking for the receivership specifically asserts that "Charles W. Reed, Vice President and General Manager of the West Indies Express Company, has been receiving the money that the said Alice M. Miller received from plaintiffs under forged notes with the knowledge that the said money was obtained under false pretenses and upon forged collateral."

It is alleged in the bill that Mrs. Reed was preparing to leave the United States and join her husband in Porto Rico.

Court records and documents in the hands of State's Attorney O'Conor charge Mrs. Miller with forgeries to a total of $30,000. She is said to have forged the names of well-known residents here to notes which she discounted at banks where she had accounts. Mr. O'Conor is said to have information which will bring the total amount lost through the forgeries attributed to her up to $100,000.

Informed She Was Watched.

When persons in authority are asked why if Mrs. Miller were sending funds to Porto Rico she did not go there rather than commit suicide they said that she had been informed that she was being watched and would not be allowed to leave Baltimore.

Failure of some of those who are reported to have claims against her to file them in order to collect from her estate was attributed to the desire of those creditors to avoid revealing publicly their connection with the case.

Attorneys for the receivers are giving attention to her life insurance policies, said to total $70,000. Efforts will be made to have this insurance included in her assets and charged against her alleged forgeries.

MAYOR ON A VACATION; TO BE GONE TEN DAYS

Mayor Walker left at 8 o'clock last night for a vacation of ten days in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. His destination is Dixville Notch, where he will stop at the Hotel Balsam as the guest of his personal friend and associate, William Seaman, a wholesale grocer and tea importer of this city.

The New Hampshire resort, which is highly favored by persons subject to annual attacks of hay fever, is only a short distance from the Canadian border. The Mayor expects to return to New York on or about Sunday, Aug. 8.

If in the meantime the bus franchise report, now being prepared by the Board of Transportation, should be ready for delivery, Charles F. Kerrigan, Assistant to the Mayor, has been empowered by Mayor Walker to call special meetings of the Board of Estimate, the Sinking Fund Commission and the Municipal Assembly for the week of Aug. 8. The Mayor is anxious to have notices of the special meetings sent out in ample time to recall all city officials who are absent on their vacations, so that action on bus franchises and all other pending business may be transacted without delay.

The primary purpose of calling the Municipal Assembly togethes is to take action on Mayor Walker's night club 3 A. M. "curfew law."

EX-CONVICT HUNTED IN MELLETT MURDER

PHOTOGRAPH IS IDENTIFIED

Prisoner Declares He Was in Canton "to Do a Job" at Time Editor Was Slain.

CANTON, Ohio, July 30 (AP).—A countrywide search was started today for Patrick Eugene McDermott, 28 years old, of Cleveland, wanted as a principal in the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher.

Detective Ora Slater, heading the Stark County investigation, refused to designate McDermott as the man sought as the "trigger man."

Pictures of McDermott were broadcast throughout the country today to all police stations and detective agencies, and to all news picture services.

Slater admitted today that a man was being held in a jail in a city near Canton in connection with the murder investigation. The prisoner positively identified today the picture of McDermott as that of a man who had come to Canton at the time of the murder to "do a job," Slater said.

Slater said the prisoner was being held to protect him from an attack.

Censorship Is Tightened.

With the bare announcement that McDermott was sought for questioning, censorship was clamped down tight by investigators, in spite of the fact that earlier in the day they had declared they had conclusive evidence against "the trigger man."

According to information in the hands of the investigators, McDermott is an alleged gunman, has served a sentence in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, was in Canton at the time of the murder and dropped remarks construed to mean he was to have part in some "job," evidently a murder conspiracy.

McDermott is described as follows: Five feet four and one-quarter inches tall, weight 127 pounds, pale blue eyes, light chestnut hair, medium fair complexion, many freckles, and a barber.

Five hundred photographs were sent throughout the country.

Shortly after Detective Slater sent out the appeal for the apprehension of McDermott, Mayor S. M. Swarts announced the appointment of Joseph Roach, Chicago criminal lawyer, as advisory counsel to Acting Chief Earl W. Hexamer.

Appointment of Mr. Roach as advisory counsel was declared to be in no way a conflict with the operations of Slater, who is directly responsible to Prosecutor C. B. McClintock. Mr. Roach conferred with McClintock today and Mayor Swarts later took his appointment under consideration.

New Clues Are Obtained.

Reports from Toledo were that police there had laid a net throughout Northwestern Ohio for a man in an automobile, who was said to have confided to a railroad ticket agent at Millbury, Ohio, that an alleged leader of Canton's underworld had hired two men to slay an editor there.

Returned from Youngstown, whence he took a hurried trip yesterday on a promising lead, Detective Ora Slater returned to Canton last night more firmly convinced that he and his coworkers are "on the right trail." Movements of the slayer for several days prior to the shooting are known to Slater, he said.

Caution has been the supreme word in the movements of the investigators he said, because the plot was cleverly laid, and one which covered up many important angles even from those who participated.

The investigators are convinced the assassin was hired by underworld leaders to get Mellett "out of the way" because he was a menace to illicit trafficking in liquor and narcotics.

Youngstown Chief May Quit.

PITTSBURGH, July 30.—Ora Slater notified the Pittsburgh police that he would come here tonight and would bring an identification witness to see George Psialas, alias "George, the Greek,' who is in the county jail here.

Slater also will confer with Detective Peter Connors, who has been working on the Pittsburgh angles of the Mellett murder, in regard to Psialas and Mike Contos, who is being held in Youngstown.

Psialas and Contos are the men whom John Ritz, Somerset miner, swears offered him and another man $1,500 to go to Canton and "do an easy job."

Following the departure of Slater from Youngstown, Ohio, Police Chief Powell joined with Detective Connors in declaring that he was through trying to cooperate with the Canton officials in solving the murder mystery.

"They either don't know what they are doing or else don't want to know. All they do is run around in circles, so far as I can see," Powell said. "I'll hold Contos a few more days for them and then, so far as I'm concerned, he can go free."

Samuel Rosenberg, attorney for George Psialas, today issued the following statement: "As to the murder of Don Mellett it is most deplorable, and, speaking for my client and myself, it is our sincere hope that the murderer or murderers of Mellett be caught and given speedy justice."

BYSTANDER BALKS HOLD-UP

BOSTON, July 30 (AP).—An "innocent bystander" became the hero of an attempted robbery here today when he tackled the robber and wrested from him the $500 he had taken from a girl.

Miss Cyma Waxman had drawn the money from a bank in the Park Square district and was returning to the office where she was employed when the robber snatched the money from her hand. Her screams attracted James W. Kinsella, an insurance man, who chased the robber through the street, caught him, and engaged in a rough-and-tumble fight, during which he wrenched away the money from the thief.

As he yielded the money the robber twisted himself free and escaped.

RAILROAD WILL OPEN MIDCITY BUS DEPOTS

B. & O. to Run Service Between Jersey Terminal and Two Stations Here.

QUITS P. R. R. NEXT MONTH

RAIL CONNECTIONS NEAR BY

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 30.—When the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad discontinues use of the Pennsylvania Station in New York the last of next month, it will open two passenger waiting rooms of its own in the heart of Manhattan—one in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Building and the other in the Pershing Square Building, opposite the Grand Central Terminal.

The former station, in Fifth Avenue, between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, will afford easy connection with Long Island lines out of the Pennsylvania station only a few squares away. The Pershing Square terminal will give almost direct communication with New York Central lines to Northern New York and Canada, and with the New York, New Haven & Hartford trains to New England, out of the Grand Central Station, just across Forty-second Street.

These arrangements, it was learned, will be announced officially by the railroad next week in a complete statement of the road's plan for handling passenger traffic in and out of New York.

Officials of the company refused to discuss the plan in advance of the announcement. It is known, however, that they have followed the lines indicated by Daniel Willard, President of the road, in working out an elaborate motor coach system which will transport passengers to Manhattan from the road's terminal in Jersey City.

The coaches, which are expected to be the most modern and luxurious yet manufactured, will take on their passengers at the Jersey City train sheds and will proceed over designated routes in Manhattan to both uptown and downtown destinations.

For the present, it is understood, the Baltimore & Ohio does not contemplate running its motor coaches through the new vehicular tunnel.

It was said the general plan was viewed as an effort to make the best of a bad situation imposed on the railroad by the refusal of one of its competitors, the Pennsylvania, to allow further use of its New York passenger terminal. Today observers said that the Baltimore & Ohio may have worked out something which will give it the greatest passenger facilities it ever has known in New York.

The Baltimore & Ohio went into the Pennsylvania Station six years ago as a war-time emergency measure. When the contract was renewed in 1925 it was said by the Pennsylvania Railroad that the contract would not be extended after 1926. This intimation became a reality, and at that time Mr. Willard was quoted as saying he thought the action of the Pennsylvania was "quite fair."

It was learned in New York last night that a contract had been signed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the Fifth Avenue Coach Company under which the latter concern will supply the buses required by the railroad to inaugurate the service which will enable the railroad to handle its New York City passengers after it has discontinued the use of the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal next month.

W. W. Harris, Vice President of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, said that steps would be taken immediately to complete plans for supplying the service. Mr. Harris said he was not familiar with the full details of the contract, but that it was his opinion about eight or ten buses would be required for the service.

MAYOR WILLING TO DO AS WILL ROGERS ASKS

Glad to Help Lady Astor Enjoy Visit to America, He Says, in Reply to Message.

Mayor Walker was amused yesterday by the cable despatch from London to THE NEW YORK TIMES quoting Will Rogers as expressing the hope that his friend, the Mayor, would take good care of Lady Astor when she arrives in this country to visit her American relatives.

"Tell Will," said the Mayor, "that I will be glad to do everything in my power to add to the happiness of Lady Astor, short of naming a ferryboat for her.

"Speaking more seriously," the Mayor added, "I should regard it as a privilege, and so, I am sure, would the City of New York, if I might be able to do anything to help Lady Astor enjoy her visit to her homeland. It would be a pleasure to honor her in any way."

The Mayor expressed a wish to learn just when Lady Astor was likely to come to New York and the hope that it would be after he returns from his outing in New Hampshire, on which he started last night.

He left total property worth $147,232, of which he gave 46 per cent. to his son, Lewis, and 12 per cent. to his wife, Yetta Kruger. The Home of the Daughters of Jacob received $15,511, while 1 per cent. each went to the High School at Jaffa, Palestine; the Moshev Shenim, Jerusalem; the Rabbi Jacob Joseph School and four other Palestine organizations. The Hebrew University of Palestine received 2 per cent., or $2,585.

Mr. Kruger, who was one of the best known workers in Jewish philanthropy in the city, was Superintendent of the Home of the Daughters of Jacob for twenty-six years.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Erratic movements on the Stock Exchange, in which General Motors and United States Steel common once more were the outstanding features, kept the market in an uproar yesterday. The volume of trading was again large and the swings of leading stocks were even wider than on the previous day. At the same time, the market appeared to be broadening out and there were some good-sized gains in representative railroad issues. Confusion and uncertainty on the part of many who are participating in present trading were quite apparent and despite the violent "churning" about which the market reflected, the industrial averages were lower on the day.

The start was an exciting one and reflected vigorously buoyancy throughout the entire list of active shares. In the rapid pace of the morning, United States Steel common reached the new high for all time of 149¼, while General Motors sold at 149¾, also a new high record. Pressure began to make itself felt in the late morning. This synchronized with an advance in the call money rate to 4½ per cent., itself a reflection of heavy withdrawals for month-end settlements. The liquidation both for profit-taking purposes and fresh short-selling became most severe and shortly after noon, when the call money rate was again raised to 5 per cent., a sharp break occurred which sent all of the leading stocks down quickly and carried the market back some 2 points on the averages. In one or two cases this decline ran to as much as 8 points.

The market met excellent support, however, on this break and stocks recovered moderately at the close, although many of them showed losses on the day's trading. After having reached a "level of recovery" on the rebound the majority of issues fluctuated easily and quietly within a narrow range for the balance of the day. There is no reason to believe that the advance of the call rate to 5 per cent., the highest since June 30, was any more than the normal tightening always expected at the "end of the month." It was merely an excuse for the selling which developed and which rocked the market considerably until it had spent its strength.

The state of trade at the end of the week, as viewed by the commercial reporting agencies, is one of strength. Dun's Review says that "July has been an unusually good month. It has brought less than the usual seasonal slackening of operations in various lines, while in some quarters there has been a distinct gain in demand and a perceptible stiffening of prices." Bradstreet's notes that there has been a "slight improvement in both wholesale and retail trade and a small but perceptible gain in the speed of industry." This testimony bears out the reports from many industries which have been received during the week, emphasizing mainly the fact that the volume of buying is now showing a steady increase in practically every line, a most unusual situation for midsummer.

The foreign exchanges continued merely to mark time yesterday. Fluctuations in the franc, in sterling and in lire were moderately heavy but without significant changes. In the French market it seems most reasonable to suppose that the franc is getting an excellent quality of governmental support, at least, until the time when the plans for stabilization of the franc are completed and put into effect.

N. Y. CENTRAL MOVES IN $500,000,000 PLAN

Seeks I. C. C. Permission to Lease Big Four, Michigan Central and the C., K. & S.

RENTALS ON SHARE BASIS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Formal application was made to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the New York Central Railroad to acquire control by lease for ninety-nine years of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway (the Big Four), the Michigan Central Railroad Company and the Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw Railway Company, in all of which lines the New York Central now has heavy majority stock holdings. Application was filed simultaneously by the Big Four to lease for a like period the Cincinnati Northern Railroad Company and the Evansville, Indianapolis & Terre Haute Railway Company, in both of which the Big Four holds large blocks of stock.

In its application the New York Central agrees to pay as rental to the other stockholders in the Big Four $1.25 quarterly on the preferred and $5 semiannually on the common shares. Stockholders of the Michigan Central will receive $25 semiannually on each share of capital stock held, and shareholders of the Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw will be paid $5 a share semiannually on the capital stock.

Big Four's Terms.

The Big Four, in turn, agrees to pay to other stockholders of the Cincinnati Northern $6 a share semiannually on the capital stock and to stockholders of the Evanston, Indianapolis & Terre Haute $2 a share per year on the capital stock. Both applying roads agree further to assume payment of all sums required to maintain and preserve the corporate existence of the roads leased, interest on bonds, notes and other obligations of indebtedness.

Stockholders of the New York Central are to meet in New York on Sept. 29, to vote on the proposed lease and to approve an increase in capital stock of the New York Central by $100,000,000 to $500,000,000. Out of the proceeds of this increase in capitalization will come the funds needed to effect the leases. The plan of the proposed leases was originally announced by the New York Central on June 9.

The New York Central owns 84,681 shares of the preferred capital stock of the Big Four, of a par value of $8,468,100, which is 84.694 per cent. of the outstanding 99,985 shares, with a par value of $9,998,500. It also owns 429,411 shares of Big Four common stock, of a par value of $42,941,100, which is 91.308 per cent. of the outstanding 470,287 shares, of a par value of $47,028,700.

Controls Most of Stock.

The New York Central also owns 185,762 shares of the capital stock of the Michigan Central, of a par value of $18,576,200, or 99.145 per cent. of the outstanding 187,364 shares, of a par value of $18,736,400. In addition, it owns 1,800 shares of the capital stock of the Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw, of a par value of $180,000, which is 40 per cent. of the outstanding 4,500 shares, of a par value of $450,000. The remaining 60 per cent. is owned by the Michigan Central.

The total mileage operated by the Big Four is 2,398, that by the Michigan Central 1,862.25 and by the Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw 45.91.

It is stated that the Big Four owns 29,316 shares of the capital stock of the Cincinnati Northern, of a par value of $2,931,600, which is 97.72 per cent. of the outstanding 30,000 shares, of a par value of $3,000,000. It also owns all of the capital stock of the Evansville, Indianapolis & Terre Haute, namely, 42,900 shares, of a par value of $4,290,000. The total mileage of the Cincinnati Northern is 244.23 and of the Evansville, Indianapolis & Terre Haute, 146.26.

The applicants agree to purchase all holdings of minority stockholders who might desire to relinquish their stock in any of the companies to be taken over and suggest the selection of three appraisers to fix a fair price if satisfactory agreement cannot otherwise be obtained.

TEXAS GULF'S CAPITAL PLAN

Stockholders to Vote on Proposed Stock Change on Sept. 9.

Stockholders of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company have been notified of a special meeting to convene Sept. 9 to vote on a proposal to change the capital structure of the company. The plan involves changing 635,000 shares of $10 par stock into 2,540,000 shares of no par stock, the new shares to be exchanged on a basis of four new for each one old share owned.

The proposed change in capitalization has been anticipated for some time in the financial district. As a result the stock has experienced considerable activity through recent weeks, the issue having advanced from 119, the year's lowest point, to around 170, the current quotation.

Harvey S. Mudd has been elected a director of the Texas Gulf Sulphur to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, Seeley W. Mudd.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sterling Reacts as Commercials Sell for Month-End Payments —Francs and Lire Weak.

Selling of sterling by commercials in need of dollar funds for month-end requirements brought a sharp break in the pound yesterday, London checks sagging 7/8 cent, to $4.85⅝. This is the lowest price in more than two months, or since cable transfers touched parity in mid-May. Dealers held that it was the last minute rush to realize on London balances which caused the decline, the relative steadiness of the pound up to yesterday acting to cause the deferment of the selling in the hope of cheaper rates, which did not come.

French, Belgian and Italian exchanges were also heavy, all three revealing good size losses from Thursday's final. Paris closed at 2.39 cents, Roman at 3.22½ cents, and the Belgian description at 2.53 cents. Danish featured in the Scandinavian group in a rise of 3 points to 26.52 cents. Swiss and Holland were firm, but the Spanish pesetas dropped 6 points to 15.35 cents. Chinese currencies reacted, while the South Americans were moderately firm.

TRADE CONDITIONS INCREASE OPTIMISM

CAR LOADINGS A FEATURE

Improvement has been noted in general business this week, trade and industry have become more active, and, with July reaching almost a record in buying and production, signs for the most part point to further betterment as the second half of the year progresses.

Crop reports are slightly spotty; the iron and steel industry continues at an unprecedented rate for this season; car loadings for the last week reached a new record.

Dun's Weekly Review of Business comments on the situation, in part, as follows:

"In the main July has been an unusually good month. It has brought less than the seasonal slackening of operations in various lines, while in some quarters there has been a distinct gain in demand and a perceptible stiffening of prices. Financial statements issued this week by leading interests in the steel and automobile industries, moreover, have further increased confidence, and the buoyancy of the stock market, with more new high records established, has continued to be an outstanding feature. There is a wider recognition now of the strong points in the domestic economic situation. That the aggregate of dealings is notably heavy is attested by returns of railroad freight traffic and some other statistical indices, while the recent tightening of rates for time money is also a reflection of the activity in commercial channels."

Bradstreet's says:

"With a slight improvement shown in both wholesale and retail trade and a small but perceptible gain in the speed of industry noted as manufacturing emerges from midyear quietness, two lines of products, cotton goods and steel, stand out as furnishing about the best reports of buying.

"Automobile buying is noted to have been helped by the bringing out of some new models, and output at the largest centre is said to be rising, as indicated by increased employment figures issued. The petroleum industry very generally reports increased output. Car loadings for the third week of July show the largest totals of the year, contributing to this being immense wheat marketing in the Southwest and the very large shipments of fruit and vegetables, which latter, however, tended to depress prices of these commodities."

CEREMONIES TO OPEN GRAIN FUTURE TRADING

Luncheon Will Be Given by the Produce Exchange Board Monday Afternoon.

Plans for the ceremonies that will mark the opening of grain futures trading on the New York Produce Exchange on Monday were completed yesterday by the committee on arrangements, of which T. Harry Story is Chairman. The opening exercises will be held on the floor shortly after 10 o'clock, when President B. H. Wunder will make a brief address. Trading will begin at 10:30 o'clock.

At 1 P. M. the board of managers will give a luncheon to the heads of fifty railroads, steamship companies, other exchange officials and the executives of several large commercial organizations. Julius H. Barnes, former United States Food Administrator and a leading member of the Exchange, will preside.

The new grain and cottonseed oil ticker will be in operation on Monday. Numerous Cotton and Stock Exchange houses have taken tickers, Mr. Story said. Memberships on the Exchange, which in February sold at $1,150 each, have changed hands in the last few days at $3,250 each.

Many out-of-town commission houses, as well as foreign interests, have been buyers.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

The advance in the stock market was halted temporarily yesterday following an advance in the call money rate from 4 to 5 per cent. The confident tone which characterized Thursday's trading was in evidence at the opening and for a time the market was buoyant. A fresh burst of buying lifted many of the active industrial issues well above the closing quotations of the previous day. United States Steel rose to another new high at 149¼ and General Motors accomplished the same feat by advancing to 194¾. American Can, which sold ex dividend 50 cents, made a fractional gain and attained the best price on record at 62⅛. The du Pont shares sold up to 286½, also a peak for all time. Hudson made a sensational gain, most of which it held, closing at 68¼ for a net advance of 5¼. Texas Gulf Sulphur, which has been active recently, turned downward following the announcement that a stock split-up was contemplated. Atlantic Coast Line, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Atchison led a brisk advance in the railway group. The upturn was checked when the advance in the call money rate caused heavy selling. General Motors sold off sharply, ending the day with a net loss of 2⅝. Recessions also took place in many other industrial leaders. After the selling had been absorbed there was a slight rally and the close found the market irregular.

General Motors Control.

Reports that the recent heavy buying of General Motors might represent an effort on the part of certain persons to wrest control from the interests which are now dominant in the organization are refuted, according to Wall Street opinion, by the figures which indicate how the stock is now held. The management of the corporation, and interests closely identified with it, hold or control more than 50 per cent. of the voting stock, it was pointed out. It is understood that about 736,000 shares are registered in brokers' names, while holders who are classified as investors own about 85 per cent. of the entire issue, or approximately 4,425,000 shares.

The favorite sport in Wall Street just now is trying to figure out how much money William C. Durant has made in the stock market during the recent rise. The figure is a large one, but trying to estimate the profits which this operator has made is like trying to follow him in the market. It is a difficult task. The guesses range all the way from $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 up to $25,000,000 or $30,000,000, and one is about as good as another. Mr. Durant and his brokers, of course, will say nothing about it.

The Market Position of Oil.

Oil company executives who within the last few days have discussed the general condition of the petroleum market detect a decided improvement, particularly in the mid-continent territory. Gasoline stocks in that region have been drawn on heavily within the past week. The production of crude is not showing the same rate of increase that was reported a short time ago. The talk of a reduction in mid-continent crude prices is not heard as frequently as it was a few weeks ago. Well-informed oil men have held the view that if July passed without any substantial lowering of prices the industry might go through the Summer without further reductions.

Call Money Rates Advance.

Several explanations were advanced for the rise to 5 per cent. in the call money rate yesterday, the first time that figure had been in force since June 30. First of all were mentioned the usual month-end requirements, which customarily cause a stiffening of money rates. On this occasion the month-end happened to coincide with the week-end, both periods at which money is in demand for settlements. Another factor was the approaching expiration of the time limit for the right to subscribe to a large American Telephone and Telegraph stock issue. Approximately $25,000,000 was withdrawn from the call money market, but new funds came in to replace it, making one of the largest turnovers of recent weeks. Fairly firm money rates are forecast for the next month, but no credit stringency.

Banks Buying Liberty Bonds.

Indications that large institutions had resumed purchases of United States Government securities were seen yesterday in an enlarged turnover in Liberty bonds and Treasury notes and in a firm range of prices. Government securities still are below their high points of the year, but are well above the low points, and net gains yesterday averaged about a sixteenth of a point. The Fourth Liberty 4¼s were particularly active, a total of $237,000 of this issue having changed hands on the Exchange. The general bond market was quiet, but prices were firm, with fractional gains general throughout the list.

Gas Issues Rise.

Attainment of new highs by Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas provided a feature of the market. The former gained more than 5 points and closed at a high of 109½. The latter gained nearly 2 points and touched a high for the year of 91½. Special reasons for the strength of these stocks were not forthcoming, although favorable decisions in the rate cases have for some time been considered strong factors in the situations of the two companies. It was pointed out that market interest is now more generally directed toward the electrical division of the utility field, which made the movement of these gas stocks particularly interesting.

Drain on Sterling Exchange.

The lagging tendency which sterling exchange has exhibited for the last week is declared by bankers to be the result of commodity purchases, which Great Britain usually begins to make in quantities at this time of the year. Last Summer a gradual decline in sterling set in which culminated in October in a movement below the British gold export point, resulting in heavy shipments of gold from London to New York. During the Winter, when the movement of trade was in the other direction, sterling recovered, and last Spring it went above par for the first time since the war. With heavy cotton and grain purchases in prospect, bankers would not be surprised to see additional pressure on sterling develop in coming months, but good support is assured.

Northwest Rates.

The railway rate situation in the Northwest continues to arouse interest. Some shareholders in the road which precipitated the situation by lowering certain of its rates are said to be unfavorably impressed by the move. However, it appears that their opinions will have at least no immediate effect. Meanwhile, other roads operating in the territory are known to be considering adjustments in their schedules to meet the original reduction.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JULY 30, 1926.

An advance to 5 per cent. in Stock Exchange call loans from an opening at 4, and interval of 4½, and highest since June 30, proved the feature. Factor immediately responsible was withdrawals of some $30,000,000, made for the purpose of meeting week-end and month-end requirements, together with the necessity of being in funds for the subscription to a prominent public utility issue on Monday. When the maximum rate had been reached shortly after midday, some of the money withdrawn earlier began to flow back. It was estimated that the turnover aggregated $50,000,000. Time money developed no change. Business was done in three-four months' at 4½, and six months' at 4⅝. Borrowers were anxious enough, but lenders refused to meet the bids

Half-Yearly Return of $14.51 on Common More Than Double Last Year's Record.

Net earnings of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc., after fixed charges and debenture stock dividends, amounted to $19,315,334 in the first six months, equal to $14.51 a share on the common stock, as compared with $6.70 for the corresponding period last year. The income from operations and investments, including equity in controlled companies not wholly owned, was $21,575,001, and the profit from sales of real estate and securities was $227,461.

In a statement accompanying the earnings report, Lammot du Pont, President of the company, said:

"The income statement for the six months' period includes actual dividends received from the company's investment in the General Motors Corporation. The statement includes as income $6,654,145, received on Jan 7 last as an extra dividend of $5 per share paid by the General Motors Corporation on its common stock; the distribution of a like amount as an extra dividend of 5 per cent. paid Jan. 8 last on the du Pont Company's common stock is included as a dividend distribution.

"Also included in the statement is a Federal tax refund to the company of $5,100,000, plus interest of approximately $2,000,000, paid as a result of a review of the company's income tax payments over a ten-year period. The complexity of the revenue laws had raised many questions concerning the tax levies during those years, but the review has resulted in definitely fixing the company's tax liability, and it showed an overpayment of approximately 10 per cent. of the total of about $50,000,000 of taxes paid during that time.

"After providing for the substantial expenses incident to the review and the portion paid to controlled companies, not included in consolidation in the financial statement, there remained a balance of $3,300,000, which has been credited to reserves.

"As of June 30 last, the current assets of the company amounted to $56,511,897, including cash and marketable securities of $18,375,388. Current liabilities amounted to $7,022,225, being only 12½ per cent. of current assets, or a ratio of 8 to 1. In addition, stockholders are advised that since June 30 last the Managers Securities Company has redeemed, in cash, the entire amount of the $14,930,000 par value of its 7 per cent. cumulative convertible preferred stock that appears in the semi-annual balance sheet."

SEES BIG YEAR FOR AUTOS.

Studebaker Head Predicts Unbroken Prosperity for Country.

The closing half of the year will be a prosperous one for the automobile industry generally and the country at large faces a long period of unbroken prosperity, according to A. R. Erskine, President of the Studebaker Corporation.

"I base my belief on a big half year for motor companies," Mr. Erskine said, "because I think this country is in for a long era of uninterrupted prosperity, and if this is true, the public generally will be large buyers of motor cars. I wouldn't attempt to predict any specific production schedule for the Studebaker Corporation for the last half of the year, because we don't know what the public demands will be, but we expect to do a very nice business. I think that general business throughout the country is good."

STORROW HOLDINGS IN NASH STOCK SOLD

The extensive stock holdings of the late James J. Storrow in the Nash Motors Company, of which he was Chairman of the Board at the time of his death, have been sold privately, according to an announcement in Boston yesterday on behalf of the estate.

While the shares held by the Storrow estate were the largest individual holdings of Nash stock, they do not constitute a control, it is understood here. The extent of the holdings and the price they brought were not revealed. At the New York offices of Lee, Higginson & Co., bankers for the company, it was said that nothing was known of the transaction beyond the facts contained in the brief announcement authorized by David Howie, one of the executors of the estate. It was considered unlikely here that a public offering of the stock would be made.

Particular interest surrounds the sale of the shares in view of the fact that a violent bear attack on the Nash stock was made in May, last, at the same time that rumors were circulated that the holdings of the Storrow estate were being sold on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange. The reports were promptly denied, but in the meantime the Nash stock had been the centre of a sensation on the Exchange as speculators undertook to depress the price. Inside interests were reported to have supported the market by taking all stock offered at not less than $52 a share. The attack failed and the speculators were severely punished.

POWER PLANT BOND ISSUE.

Jersey Central Company Proposes New Financing.

The Jersey Central Power and Light Company has applied to the Public Service Commission of New Jersey for permission to issue bonds, the proceeds of which will be used to build a $2,762,521 plant at Whippany, N. J. The amount of the bond issue will depend upon the decision of the commission.

In making its application the Jersey Central said a new plant was necessary because it was economically impossible to increase the capacities of plants at Summit and Morristown to meet the growing demand for power and light in that section.

A. M. Byers Earns $280,232.

Earnings of the A. M. Byers Company for the second quarter of the year were $280,232, after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes, equal to $1.35 a share, after 7 per cent. preferred dividends, as compared with 150,000 shares of no par common stock outstanding. In the second quarter of last year the income was $364,403, or $1.90 a share on the common. For the first six months of 1926, Byers earned $1,071,332, or $5.57 a share, as compared with $947,501, or $4.74 a share, in the corresponding period of last year.

A. T. & T. STOCK AIDS RISE IN CALL MONEY

Demand for Funds to Exercise Rights a Factor in Advance to 5 Per Cent. Rate.

$30,000,000 IS REQUIRED

At Least That Much Must Be Paid on New Shares by Monday, When Privilege Expires.

Rights to subscribe to $154,000,000 of new common stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, plans for the issuance of which were announced on May 19, expire next Monday, and preparations for this financing proved an important factor in the money market yesterday. For the first time since June 30 call money loaned at 5 per cent., the ruling rate all this month having been 4 per cent.

Plans for the stock increase provide that $20 a share must be paid by Aug. 2, with the option of spreading installments up to April 1, 1927. This means that at least $30,000,000 in cash must be paid for the stock by Monday, and the amount undoubtedly is larger than this, as many purchasers will pay more than the minimum instalment.

While in many cases stockholders already had set aside funds to exercise their subscription rights, others were arranging loans at the last moment and the volume of these transactions was sufficient to bring the demand for funds above normal. The stock is being sold to stockholders of the company in the ratio of one new share for every six now held. The price is $100, and the second instalment, $40, must be paid by Dec. 1 and the third instalment, $40, by April 1 next.

The stock increase brings the outstanding shares up to $1,075,597,500, the only American corporation whose total exceeds a billion dollars. The rights to the new stock are traded in on the Stock Exchange, and closed yesterday at 6%. Since announcement of the plan the rights have sold as high as 6⅞ and as low as 5⅝.

Other factors contributed to the firmness in money yesterday. One was the month-end settlement requirements, which usually cause a stiffening of the rate. The 5 per cent. rate is regarded as temporary, but relatively firm money is looked for during the remainder of the Summer, owing to the increasing commercial demand for funds. There is no indication of any stringency, however, since Federal Reserve credit resources are more than ample. Time money was firm yesterday at the levels that have prevailed most of the week.

Petition for Receiver Filed Against Certified Company.

A petition was filed in the Federal Court in Brooklyn yesterday by the Filice & Perella Canning Company of California and the C. M. Records Company of Townsend, Del., for the appointment of a receiver in equity for the Certified Food Stores, successors to the holdings of the Federal Food Stores, with main offices at 38 Rose Street.

The petitioners maintain that the Certified Food Stores contracted for the purchase of canned goods aggregating $50,000, then refused to accept the shipments. They allege the assets of the corporation, which has 170 stores in Brooklyn and other parts of Long Island, stands in danger of being dissipated because of an alleged lack of harmony between the management and the officers.

A similar application was denied several months ago by Judge Moscowitz. It was made by the Records Company. The Court maintained the company was solvent and in no danger of dissolution.

WARNS OF FORGERIES IN STOCK CERTIFICATES

Stock Exchange Secretary Urges Careful Examination of All Odd-Lot Documents.

In connection with the discovery on July 6 of forty or fifty one-share stock certificates involving thousands of dollars, E. V. D. Cox, Secretary of the New York Stock Exchange, yesterday sent out a warning to all members that one-share certificates coming into their possession should be examined carefully.

"I am instructed by the Committee on Securities to call attention to the fact that the columns of tens and units on the right-hand side of these certificates were altered by inserting in place of the numerals originally punched out numerals from other certificates, which were held in place by means of sales tax stamps attached to the reverse side," the warning read.

"The committee requests that particular instructions be given to all persons handling stock certificates that if any certificate for odd lots with tax stamps or any other matter attached thereto should come into your possession, they be examined most carefully or sent to this office for examination."

$89,415,000 IN BONDS PLACED THIS WEEK

UTILITIES ISSUES IN LEAD

New bonds to the amount of $89,415,000 were offered to the public in the week ended yesterday, compared with $112,775,700 last week and $80,505,000 in the corresponding week a year ago. The offerings, by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Foreign	21,250,000	520,000
State and municipal	3,915,000	13,530,700
Farm loan	500,000	8,500,000
Total	$89,415,000	$112,775,700

The week's largest issue was offered yesterday — $20,000,000 of Mortgage Bank of Chile 6% per cent. bonds, underwritten by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Guaranty Company, and priced at 99¼. The Chilean bank is one of the largest and most successful organizations of its kind in the world, and had arranged previous financing in this market.

Another issue primarily concerned with foreign operations was a $15,000,000 offering of securities of the Silesian-American Corporation. This was classified as domestic, however, as it was issued by a Delaware company. The financing was in connection with the acquisition of control of the large Giesche zinc mining properties in Silesia by the Harriman and Anaconda interests.

Public utility financing continued on a large scale. An additional issue of $12,500,000 of the Gatineau Power Company, consisting this time of debentures, was placed and good-sized offering were made in behalf of the Connecticut Light & Power Company, the Central Power & Light Company and the Derby Gas & Electric Corporation.

State and municipal financing decreased sharply, but interest in this type of securities was unabated and there was strong competition for the several small issues brought out. One farm loan issue of $500,000 was floated.

A favorable tone prevailed in the bond market nearly all week, with indications of a renewal of buying by large institutions. Over-subscriptions were announced of the important new issues. Although the midsummer decrease in the volume of new offerings apparently is approaching, several important issues are scheduled for next week.

TEXAS CO. DICKERING FOR CROWN CENTRAL

27,000 ACRES ARE INVOLVED

8,000 Are Producing Oil and 22,000 Are Undeveloped—Blair & Co. Buy Interest in the Creole.

The Texas Company, which some time ago embarked upon a program of expansion, is negotiating for the acquisition of the Crown Central Petroleum Corporation, and early consummation of the deal is expected. Amos L. Beaty, Chairman of the board of the Texas Company, said yesterday he was not ready to make any announcement.

The Crown Central was incorporated Feb. 13, 1924, under the name of the United Central Oil Corporation, as successor, under a plan of reorganization, of the White Oil Corporation. The name was changed to the Crown Central in April, 1925.

The properties of the Crown Central as of May 14, 1925, after giving effect to the completion of purchases then proposed, consisted of 5,000 acres of producing leases in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana and Arkansas and about 22,000 acres of undeveloped leases. The developed leases, with 308 wells, had a gross production of about 4,300 barrels a day and a net production of about 3,400 barrels a day, which does not include any flush production. Recoverable oil reserves were estimated to be 7,000,000 barrels. The company has two refineries, one on the Houston Ship Channel, Houston, and the other at Clarendon, Pa.

The company has 582,000 shares of no par capital stock outstanding and its funded debt consists of $4,000,000 first mortgage and collateral lien ten-year 8 per cent. sinking fund bonds, $825,000 of five-year 8 per cent. debentures and $80,000 of equipment trust obligations.

Another transaction in the oil industry that became known yesterday involves the purchase by Blair & Co., Inc., of a stock interest in the Creole Syndicate, which has interests in Colombia. The price paid was reported to be $15 a share.

TRADING INACTIVE IN COUNTER MARKET

Dullness characterized yesterday's over-the-counter market, but buying orders "at a price" exceeded selling orders. The lessened activity was ascribed to the departure of many traders from the city over the week-end. What activity took place was distributed among the industrials, public utilities and bank stocks, with the rest of the market remaining quiet or dull.

Hercules Powder and Armstrong Cork, both of which have been inactive for several days, rose 5 points each at the opening and maintained the advances throughout the session. Ziely Processes came into the open for the first time in several days and rose 3 or 4 points. Eisemann Magneto common and preferred shares were moderately higher. Reactive tendencies were noted in Syracuse Washing Machine and American Arch. In the late trading Rubberoid moved up several points to a new high on the current upswing.

A stronger tone prevailed among the public utilities, and offerings were scarce. Augusta-Aiken Railroad and Electric common and preferred made additional gains, and improvement was shown in United Electric Railway and Columbus Railway, Power and Light preferred A.

Of the bank stocks Irving Bank-Columbia Trust and Butchers and Drovers' still occupied the centre of attention, although both stocks reacted several points. There was favorable activity in County Trust, Central Mercantile, Bronx National and Capital National.

To Rebuild Gondola Cars.

A contract to rebuild 500 seventy-ton hopper-bottom gondola cars of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway has been awarded to the Richmond (Va.) Car Works, Inc. Delivery of the repaired cars will begin in three months at the rate of ten cars a day. The estimated cost is $1,443 a car.

NEW YORK REGAINS LEAD IN EXPORTS

MICHIGAN IN THIRD PLACE

WASHINGTON, July 30.—New York opened 1926 by leading all other States in exports of merchandise for the first quarter of the year, in contrast to last year, when the end of the first three-months period saw the Empire State trailing Texas.

New York's foreign shipments for the first quarter of 1926, according to statistics released today by the Department of Commerce, amounted to $195,510,071, a drop of $8,000,000 from the total for the corresponding quarter of 1925, when they were valued at $203,497,245.

But this amount, nevertheless, was a lead of more than $66,000,000 over the $128,873,613 total of Texas, its runner-up in the export race for all of last year and this year so far.

However, the total exports of the States for the first quarter of 1926 were $150,000,000 lower than last year.

Compared with the first three months of last year, New York jumped from second place to its customary leadership as an exporting State, then lost temporarily to Texas.

Michigan advanced for the quarter from eighth to third place and California from sixth to fifth. Pennsylvania dropped from third to fourth, Louisiana from fourth to sixth, New Jersey from fifth to seventh and Illinois from seventh to eighth. Ohio and Virginia retained their ninth and tenth places, respectively.

Machinery and parts of machinery made up the principal item of exports of New York for the quarter at $32,415,754. Refined petroleum products came next with a total of $19,808,671, followed by manufacturers of iron and steel, valued at $14,390,680, and cotton cloth at $11,735,765.

Changes for Several States.

Total exports from the United States during the first three months of 1926 amounted to $1,098,839,243, as compared with $1,250,769,000 for the corresponding quarter of 1925 and with $1,338,440,518 for the last three months of 1925.

Michigan, California, Ohio and Virginia made export gains during the initial quarter of 1926; New York, Texas, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, New Jersey and Illinois suffered export declines.

Michigan's increase was the largest and amounted to more than $18,000,000. It was followed in order by California, with a gain of nearly $8,000,000; Virginia, with more than $6,000,000, and Ohio, with almost $4,500,000 more.

Texas sustained an export loss amounting to nearly $121,000,000, due chiefly to decreased shipments of cotton and at lower prices. Pennsylvania's export trade declined about $15,500,000. The other important losses incurred were: Louisiana, $7,700,000; New Jersey, $1,750,000; Illinois, slighly more than $600,000.

The table herewith covers the District of Columbia and the territories of Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, but not the Philippine Islands, which are classified as insular possessions.

Long Island Charges Competition —Defendants Say Service Is for Sightseers Only.

The Long Island Railroad began an action yesterday to stop the Long Beach-Brooklyn Coach Company from operating buses between Brooklyn and Long Beach "in competition" with the railroad company. Through Joseph F. Keany, general solicitor, the railroad company obtained from Justice Mitchell May in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn an order requiring David P. Goldstein and the coach company of which he is Secretary to show cause why they should not be enjoined from operating four de luxe buses which were put into service several weeks ago. The order is returnable next Tuesday.

The railroad company charges that the coach company is operating buses without proper legal authority in that it has not obtained a certificate of convenience and necessity nor a franchise, also that the fares charged by the defendants are in competition with the fares for rail transportation.

"We are operating four de luxe coaches as sightseeing buses," said Mr. Goldstein, "and we don't have to get a certificate of convenience and necessity. We maintain we are not in competition with the railroad company, because as a sight-seeing organization we do not pick up fares en route. We do not parallel the railroad tracks, as charged, except at short intervals, perhaps two blocks in some places. But in other places there are stretches of four miles where our route is nowhere near the railroad right of way.

"We further contend that we are not competing with the Long Island Railroad Company, because we charge a higher fare."

10 Per Cent. Cash Required on Sales Instead of 25 Per Cent.

CHURCH ST. SUBWAY MEETS OPPOSITION

FAVORS DOUBLE-DECK LINE

Transportation Board Has Hearing on Its Plan for One-Level, Four-Track Route.

Opposition to the proposed plan of the Board of Transportation to build a four-track single-level subway under Church Street from Franklin to Fulton Streets and to widen Church Street above the subway was expressed yesterday by Alfred R. Kirkus at a hearing held by the board.

Mr. Kirkus, who is an owner of real estate in that district, said the acquisition by the city of fifty feet on the west side of Church Street to widen that thoroughfare would demoralize the wholesale textile and dry goods industries which occupy that part of the city and which, he said, do an annual business of $2,000,000,000.

"The dry goods district, like Wall Street, has gone through all the city's changes and is still doing business at the same old stand," said Mr. Kirkus. "During the last fifty years the district has averaged less than 3 per cent. loss in rentals and there are few vacancies there now.

"The district has been paying taxes regularly for years. We do not want to be obstructionists, but we do not want our buildings torn down and our zone destroyed. If you destroy buildings, the tenants in them will have no places to go in the same district."

Mr. Kirkus insisted that the cost of widening Church Street would be much greater than that of constructing a double-deck subway.

"On what grounds are you opposed to a single-deck road?" asked Commissioner Daniel L. Ryan.

"That doesn't make any difference," Mr. Kirkus replied.

"Yes it does," said Mr. Ryan. "It makes a big difference to a man who has to walk up two flights of stairs instead of one."

Clarence Crane and John F. Collins of the General Contractors' Association, objected to a provision of the proposed form of contract, designed to prevent contractors from making claims against the city after accepting payments for their work. Mr. Crane also asked that the contracts be drawn so as to absolve contractors from damage caused by blasting during construction.

While the members of the Board of Transportation are understood to believe that a single-deck subway should be built and Church Street widened, they have made no formal recommendation to that effect to the Board of Estimate, which will have the final decision.

BRIDGE CONTRACTS LET.

The Port of New York Authority announced yesterday that it had awarded contracts for the substructure work on the two Arthur Kill bridges to connect Staten Island and New Jersey for a total of $5,593,430, which was said to have been less than the engineers' estimate for this work.

The P. J. Carlin Construction Company received the contract for work on the New Jersey side of the Outerbridge Crossing, the bridge between Tottenville and Perth Amboy, and the Frederick Snare Company, the contract for work on the Staten Island side. The Triest Construction Company will do the work on the New Jersey side of the Elizabeth-Howland Hook Bridge and the Snare Company the work on the Staten Island side.

Bids for the steel work on the bridges will be asked within a week. It is expected that both bridges can be opened for traffic before the end of 1928.

SPECIALTIES GET MOST INTEREST ON THE CURB

There was a continuation of specialty issue buying in the Curb Market yesterday and many stocks in this class registered substantial gains, but the rank and file of securities followed an irregular course. Profit-taking sales were in evidence in several groups which recently exhibited strength, particularly in the public utility list. These stocks followed up the advance of the day previous at the opening, but the rise was not long sustained and eventually prices sought lower levels.

American Gas and Electric was one of the chief sufferers, with a drop of 3½ points, to 95, before covering in the last half-hour brought about a rally to above 97, compared with 98½ at the close Thursday. American Superpower and United Gas and Improvement lost over a point each, while fractional declines occurred elsewhere. Mohawk Valley and Lehigh Power were about the best performers on the list.

Miscellaneous industrials presented a spotty appearance. Specialty issues like Tubize Silk, Alabama Great Southern, American Sumatra new, Continental Tobacco and Mengel Box registered good advances and abrupt gains were scored by Celotex, which ran up 17 points, to 165; Kraft Cheese, which jumped 4½ points, to 67; Rand Kardex, which rose 5½ points, to 45, and Procter & Gamble, which gained 2 points, to 152. On the other hand, losses of a point and more were made by Hazeltine, Glen Alden Coal, Fajardo Sugar, Johns-Mansville and Herman Nelson. Baking stocks were firm and so were the motors.

Standard Oils generally inclined toward heaviness. However, Standard of New York was buoyant, with sales mostly above 33. The strength was attributed to the outlook for an increased dividend. Vacuum Oil, Buckeye Pipe and Standard of Ohio were weak, and Prairie and Humble lost fractionally. The Indiana stock held steady.

In the domestic bond section Baltimore & Ohio 5s were strong and active, while the Florida Power issues and Otis Steel 6s were weak. Foreign obligations moved within a narrow price range on a limited volume of business.

Utilities Shares Has Increase.

For the first six months the Utilities Shares Corporation reports a net income of $658,434, compared with $435,550 earned in the 1925 period. For the second quarter the profit was $316,465 against $232,577 in the 1925 quarter. Gross earnings for the six months were $5,700,933; for the June quarter they reached $2,906,617.

ACQUIRES PENNZ-OIL.

Special to The New York Times.

OIL CITY, Pa., July 30.—The South Penn Oil Company of Pittsburgh acquired today a 51 per cent. interest in the Pennz-Oil Company, The Derrick will say tomorrow. This marks the first entrance of the South Penn into the refining and marketing of Pennsylvania oils, of which it has been the leading producer for many years.

The Pennz-Oil Company operates two large refineries in Oil City and owns a large marketing organization, especially in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Florida and California.

Announcement was made that there would be no change in the management or the policy of the Pennz-Oil Company as the result of the deal. L. W. Young, President of the South Penn Oil Company, said he felt this venture on the part of the South Penn should cause no uneasiness on the part of the refiners, who have been depending upon it for their supply of crude, as the company did not intend to disturb any of its present relations, but hoped this move would greatly stabilize the Pennsylvania oil business.

PROFIT-TAKING DEPRESSES WHEAT

FOREIGN DEMAND IMPROVES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 30.—The wheat market was sharply higher at the start with values up 1⅜ cents over yesterday's finish, but the highest prices of the day were made at the opening, and with heavy profit-taking sales the upturn was more than lost later, although the finish was on a rally with net gains of ⅛ to ⅝ cent, with July leading. Strength in Winnipeg and Liverpool and the continued dry weather in Canada were the bullish influences. Winnipeg showed strength throughout the day and closed 1⅜ to 1¾ cents higher on the deferred deliveries, while Minneapolis was ¾ cent higher. Kansas City was unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Outside trade was liberal at the opening, but faded away rapidly later, and heavy profit taking was in evidence above $1.45½ for September. At the high point today's prices showed around 5 cents over the low made earlier in the week. Liverpool closed 1⅛ to 3¼ pence higher with limited tenders on July contracts and shorts were good buyers, causing the bulge. Foreign demand for cash wheat showed improvement with sales estimated at 1,400,000 bushels, including 1,000,000 bushels old crop Manitobas. Gulf basis was ½ cent higher at 7½ cents over Chicago September for August loading. Locally and at Kansas City cash wheat was unchanged to ½ cent lower as compared with the July. Prices declined ¾ cent toward the last on free buying by several local professionals, on prospects that the Canadian figures would be bearish. There was also a rumor that an embargo might be placed against shipments of wheat to Galveston, but messages from Kansas City late in the day said that port was clear and there was no sign of congestion.

Primary arrivals of wheat today, 3,900,000 bushels; a week ago, 3,651,000; last year, 2,071,000. Shipments, 1,376,000; a week ago, 1,239,000; last year, 953,000.

There was liberal profit taking in corn on account of the rains, and the finish was easy, with net losses of ⅝ to 1⅝ cents, with July leading, the latter being 6¾ cents under the September. Support came largely from holders of bids and as resting orders in the hands of commission houses, and there was also buying of September against sales of December. Cash basis was steady to ½ cent higher, with shipping sales of 125,000 bushels.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 464,000 bushels; a week ago, 476,000; last year, 438,000. Shipments, 274,000; a week ago, 416,000; last year, 242,000.

Oats declined ¼ to ½ cent, with corn and on profit taking. The latter has been rather persistent for several days, and the market has been showing a heavier undertone. Rye was ½ cent higher to ⅝ cent lower, the former on July, while the September was easy on selling by scattered longs, who found support less aggressive.

COTTON DEPRESSED BY BETTER WEATHER

NEW TEXAS CROP MOVING

Spinners' Takings for Season Are Estimated at 15,049,000 Bales.

With the storm showing a diminishing degree of intensity in the Atlantic States and more favorable growing conditions prevailing west of the river, an easier cotton market developed yesterday. Realizing operations proved the dominating feature of trading, and under selling pressure final quotations showed a loss of 17 to 19 points on the day. As a result of the rise of about three-quarters of a cent since the last Washington report, prices had reached a level more attractive to holders of unsold cotton in the South. There is still about a million bales from last year's production left in the interior with the new crop beginning to move from South Texas.

Weather details showed eleven stations in Alabama where rainfall ranged from two to over four inches, with showers in Mississippi, Georgia and South Carolina. In the west belt, rainfall was confined to northern portions of Texas and southern sections of Oklahoma. Temperatures generally were higher in the West, but were moderate in the East.

Two private crop reports appeared during the day. Norman Mayer of New Orleans placed the condition at 68 and the indicated crop at 14,090,000. A month ago the crop possibilities were estimated at 14 to 17 million bales. J. W. Jay & Co. placed the condition at 68.6, compared with 77.7 last month, cutting the indicated yield from 15,700,000 to 14,815,000. The report stated that frequent or excessive moisture in many sections, attended with low temperatures, especially at night, had caused a large weedy plant with deficient fruitage. Owing to the light lower crop the frost date and weevil become factors of importance. Due to lateness and poor bottom fruiting only a small percentage of the crop can be called safe.

CITY ATTACKS SUIT ON DRY REFERENDUM

HOLDS COST WILL BE SMALL

State Will Pay It, He Adds—Court Intimates He Will Decide Injunction Case by Aug. 13.

Supreme Court Justice Crain heard arguments and reserved decision yesterday in the injunction suit by Mrs. Helen M. Albert, as a taxpayer, to restrain participation by the Board of Elections in the vote at the coming general election on the dry referendum. The suit seeks also to prevent payment by the city of the cost of the balloting to determine the wishes of the voters as to an amendment of the Volstead law.

The action is in behalf of the New York City Women's Committee for Law Enforcement, of which Mrs. Geraldine Dens is Chairman and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. John Grier Hibben and many other well-known women are members. Miss Bertha Rembaugh, attorney for the committee, argued for the injunction and was opposed by Assistant Corporation Counsel William E. C. Mayer.

The suit is based on an alleged waste of the funds of the taxpayers for the reason that if the law is held unconstitutional the State will not be required to refund to the city the money spent on the referendum. Miss Rembaugh cited the law on this point and said that the provision in the statute that the cost was to be a State charge was enacted to render a taxpayer's action fruitless. She insisted that the entire law was beyond the powers of the Legislature as they are defined in Article III of the State Constitution.

Miss Rembaugh argued that even if the law was valid, only Congress may initiate any measures for the modification of one of its own acts, and that payment for such a referendum would be a waste of money because Congress would not be required to take notice of any suggestion by the voters of any State as to a modification of the dry law. The Federal courts have determined and defined intoxicating beverages, she said, and the States have no right to modify this definition in any manner.

Mr. Mayer took the position that the suit was directed against two classes of public officials, one of which, the Board of Elections, is a State body, while the Mayor, City Chamberlain and Controller, who are also named as defendants, are city officials. He said that the plaintiff contended that the State through the Board of Elections acted for the city as its agent, but that such was not the case. The functions of the Board of Elections were statewide, he said, and no taxpayer's action would lie against the members of the board or any other State officials.

The Assistant Corporation Counsel, in answering the allegations of added expense and waste of funds, submitted an affidavit by President Voorhis of the Board of Elections saying the dry referendum would be printed on the same ballot as the five-cent fare proposal, and therefore that the cost would be trifling. The State will undoubtedly recompense the city for the slight cost, he said.

Mr. Mayer argued further that the State Legislature acted well within its powers in submitting the proposal of a memorial to Congress to the voters and said that while the State has no right to do anything in conflict with the Volstead law, it is justified in ascertaining the sentiment of the voters on the question. There is no better way of acquainting Congress with the attitude of New York State than by the referendum, he said. He argued finally that if the suit was upheld and the vote of the New York City electorate forbidden, the unusual situation of all the State except New York City expressing its sentiment would arise.

Former Mayor John F. Hylan attacked both Governor Smith and George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, yesterday, and charged that Judge Olvany declared in favor of the Craig five-cent-fare referendum only after he had been advised by lawyers that the courts would not permit the referendum to go on the ballot.

Mr. Hylan gave expression to his views in a letter to Cornelius F. Sheehan, Chairman of the Transit Committee of the Brooklyn Allied Boards of Trade and an officeholder in the Hylan Administration. He said:

"Last year in the Mayoralty pirmary contest in this city the traction and public utility interests, it is said, contributed close to $6,000,000 to aid Olvany and Smith to get control of the City Government, and now these interests want the carfare increased.

"Olvany and Smith are frightened and have concluded to postpone the question of increasing carfares until after election. Smith wanted the carfare increased before the Democratic Convention. Olvany consulted lawyers about the five-cent-fare referendum at the next election. He was advised that if the question was taken to court no doubt the courts would decide this year the same as Judge Proskauer decided last year, that the five-cent-fare referendum could not go on the ballot.

"After getting this reassuring advice Olvany came out strong for the referendum and has directed that they proceed to put it on the ballot. Olvany knows that his friends the traction interests will proceed through the courts to restrain the people from voting on the five-cent-fare referendum, which Olvany and Smith think will let them out and put the blame on the court. After election they will again attempt to increase carfare and give away the valuable bus franchises.

"Do all you can to help us fight these so-called Democrats who are betraying the people."

Daytona Shores Suit Dropped.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., July 30 (AP).—Suit for dissolution and a receivership for Daytona Shores Company, instituted recently in Miami by eight holders of certificates of the company, has been withdrawn after a conference today between counsel for the company and Miami men, in which the latter were informed of reorganization plans which have been virtually completed. They are said to show that the company is on a sound financial basis.

PRAISES AMERICAN LIBERTY.

Cardinal Dubois Impressed by Religious Freedom Here.

PARIS, July 30 (AP).—The religious freedom in the United States and the lack of prejudice greatly impressed Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris, who has written a letter to the weekly organ of his diocese concerning the recent Eucharistic Congress in Chicago.

"The event was an incomparable triumph for the Holy Eucharist in that immense populous city, bustling with business, where all races meet, all nationalities rub shoulders and every form of civilization and religion mingles together," the Cardinal wrote.

His letter sums up the congress as a lesson in faith and a striking testimony to the unity of the Catholic Church, which made a strong impression, especially on those dissenting from its doctrines or belonging to no religion. The Cardinal wrote that he was particularly struck by the full liberty allowed the organizers of the congress, describing it as "an example of the truly liberal spirit, favoring every happy initiative in for the country's good."

The Cardinal recalled that President Coolidge sent a message and that the Mayors of New York and Chicago received Cardinal Bonzano, the Papal Legate, and other Cardinals. He speaks of the streets of Chicago being decorated with American and pontifical flags, with the police assuring every courtesy.

"Attention, politeness and sympathy were everywhere, yet it was a Catholic fête in a country where Catholics are far from a majority," concludes the Cardinal, wondering when such liberty will be allowed the churches of France.

PLANS THEOSOPHIST TOUR.

Mrs. Besant Arranges American Trip as Ommen Meetings Ends.

OMMEN, Holland, July 30 (AP).—With the congress of the Order of the Star of the East concluded, Mrs. Annie Besant, head of the Theosophists, plans to tour the United States.

At 8 o'clock each evening Mrs. Besant took her seat on a rough throne. Beside her, in his fantastic Indian costume, was the young Krishnamurti, her Hindu protégé, who is hailed by the Theosophists as the vehicle for the coming "World Teacher."

After official announcement through loud speakers there was silence. Then Mrs. Besant and Krishnamurti, rising from their seats, walked toward a stack of wood six feet high. Mrs. Besant handed the young Hindu a torch, which he plunged into the stack. As the flames burst forth Krishnamurti invoked the god of fire, and the members of the congress watched in profound silence.

This ceremony ended, Krishnamurti returned to his seat and addressed the gathering, his auditors following his words with the utmost tension.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4 per cent. for the best names. Thursday—4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Early Demand for Men's Mufflers.

A tendency on the part of retailers to place fairly good early orders for men's mufflers is commented upon in the wholesale market. The anticipation is traced to the offering of considerable merchandise at prices which will permit very attractive retail quotations. While the cashmere or silk muffler is being offered for the better-class trade, volume business is again expected in the woolen kind, either in plain or fancy versions. All-wool Scotch mufflers are particularly well regarded. Wholesale prices are such that these may be retailed at about $1.95.

Orders for Women's Underwear.

Orders for women's underwear for early Fall delivery are increasing. Substantial business in glove silk merchandise has already been booked. The demand for this merchandise for holiday sale is expected by wholesalers to set new records, owing to its increasing popularity for gift purposes. Garments of crêpe de chine and georgette are also strong favorites for the coming season. Touches of embroidery, appliqué work and the generous use of lace are outstanding trimming details. Much of the early business is being placed in garments retailing from $4.95 up.

Are Sampling New Fall Blouses.

While there has been no great activity in Fall blouses as yet, wholesalers here report a fair amount of sampling. Retailers are said to show interest in the new semi-tailored models fashioned of checked or brocaded velvet and some of the novel metallic fabrics. The trimming of the new blouses is of a highly varied nature and includes leather pipings, novelty buttons and tinsel embroideries. It would appear, according to wholesalers, that the trend of blouse design will be strongly toward novelty effects all through the Fall in order to stimulate interest in the merchandise.

Favor "U" Neck in Sweaters.

The "U" type of neck in both coat and slip-over styles is favored by buyers in their early purchases of women's fancy sweaters for Fall. Garments of brushed mohair and the so-called zephyr type are well to the fore in the merchandise being ordered. Solid colors are frequently specified, but buyers' interest is said to be centred mainly in novelty stripe and plaid combinations. Merchandise to retail from $5 to $7.50 is in active demand for early shipment.

Opening Date of Fancy Worsteds.

Although no official announcement has yet been made, the expectation in the woolen trade is that the American Woolen Company will open its men's wear fancy worsteds for Spring during the week of Aug. 9. Indications yesterday were that the company would probably issue a definite statement about the opening date early next week. Meanwhile, guesses are being made about the extent of the reductions which the new lines will carry. Staples were reduced about 10 per cent. for the coming season, and in some quarters it is believed that a slightly smaller reduction will be made on the fancies. Although a few lines of fancy worsteds of other concerns are being shown, the trade for the most part is awaiting action by the American company.

Hard Coal Trade Reviving.

The anthracite market is recovering from the depression, such as it was, that made its appearance earlier in the Summer. Saward's Journal will say today that this depression was not severe enough seriously to affect production, which has continued unseasonably high throughout June and July, but was reflected in a softening of "independent" prices. All sizes, however, both steam and domestic, are now firming up. In the bituminous trade the tendency is not all one way, for there are some cross currents visible, but on the whole the influences making for a better market are exerting the greater force. This is shown by the upward trend of production.

To Form New Millinery Body.

A new millinery trade association, which will devote its energies primarily to the so-called evils in the industry, is soon to be organized here. A committee of fifteen prominent members of the trade has been selected to draw up plans for the new body, and also to select a name for it. Theodore I. Sturtz, executive head of the Eastern Millinery Association, will act as Chairman of the committee for the time being. It is planned to have the new organization, which will embody transportation, labor and purchasing bureaus, act in conjunction with the Eastern Association. A meeting of the organization committee will be called by Mr. Sturtz some time next week.

Plate Glass Output Is Heavy.

The output of plate glass in the United States during the first half of this year reached 67,116,979 square feet, according to a bulletin issued by the Plate Glass Manufacturers of America. This total exceeded by more than 10,000,000 square feet the output of the same period in 1925. It is estimated that production for the current year will reach over 135,000,000 square feet, or nearly 18,000,000 square feet more than was turned out in 1925. The increase is attributed in good part to the greater use of plate glass in dwellings. This is attributed, in turn, to increasing knowledge of heating economies in homes that are made possible by its use.

Gray Goods Have Fair Day.

A pretty fair business was put through in the local gray goods market yesterday, both as to quantity and variety. August deliveries of printcloths were sold on the basis of 8½ cents for 39-inch 68-72s and 7¼ cents for 38½-inch 64-60s. For similar shipment, business was done in 36-inch 5 and 5.50 yard sheetings at 7¼ and 6¾ cents, respectively. For 37-inch 3.95-yard drills, buyers paid 8½ cents, and they also bought 37½-inch 4.37-yard sateens at 11½ cents. In the specialties, business was reported in 39-inch 68-76 three-leaf twills, for August-September delivery, at 10 cents. Nearby deliveries of 40-inch 76-72, nine-yard combed lawns were sold at 12 cents.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Except in Foodstuffs, More Advances Than Declines Occurred.

Advances again exceeded declines in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week, but the margin between the two was smaller than it was last week. Then there were thirty-five advances in a total of sixty-four changes, while this week only thirty-one of the fifty-nine indicated revisions were upward. Despite the trend of the general list there were two declines in the foodstuffs for every advance.

The following table gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal

Twelve of the eighteen changes in the foodstuffs were downward this week. The local provisions list showed declines of 25 to 15 cents a barrel, respectively, in Spring patent and Winter soft straight flours, but no change was seen in the price of the family grade of fancy Minnesota flour. Middle Western lard was higher here, but hams and bacon did not change. At Chicago short ribs, mess pork, live steers and live hogs were all lower, while live sheep showed no change.

In the local list for provisions extra creamery butter dropped three-quarters of a cent a pound, with both fresh and held special cheese unchanged. Fancy near-by eggs rose 2 cents a dozen, while a rise of a cent a dozen was seen in fresh-gathered "firsts." Prices in this part of the general list continue lower than those of a year ago.

In the listed fresh and dried fruits no changes were seen and revisions in the vegetables were few. They consisted of a rise of 10 cents a barrel in rutabaga turnips and a drop of 25 cents a bag in onions.

Aside from declines in both No. 7 Rio and No. 4 Santos coffees there were no revisions in the beverage portion of the list. Fine granulated sugar was higher, and there was also a rise in 96-degree centrifugal raw sugar. Changes in the spices consisted solely of declines in Zanzibar cloves and nutmegs.

Three of the five changes in the grains this week were upward. These were in corn, oats and rye. Wheat and malting barley were lower. Except for No. 1 native packer, No. 1 extreme and No. 1 kip hides, which did not change, all of the listed hides were higher. In the leather list a decline in No. 1 light belting butts contrasted with further advances in tannery-run union backs and No. 1 scoured oak backs.

The listed building materials and lumber were bare of change this week, while in the metals two declines contrasted with four advances. The former were in gray forge pig iron and No. 28 galvanized iron sheets; the latter occurred in antimony, copper, lead and tin. Furnace coke for prompt shipment declined.

Features were lacking in the changes shown by the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, which included five advances and four declines. In the naval stores a rise in turpentine and a decline in resin were the only revisions.

Miscellaneous changes of the week consisted of advances in wool and Brazilian crude rubber and declines in jute and Eastern rubber. The week in the textiles was largely without feature. Burlaps eased off under a slump in demand. In the cotton goods about the only features were the further upturns in unfinished printcloths, sheetings and similar fabrics.

WARNS OF CHEWING GUM.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Chewing gum makes the modern girl's face hard, Mrs. Ruth J. Maurer of Chicago declared today, in addressing a school of cosmeticians.

"Many a modern woman has a face as hard as the crockery of a railroad lunch counter," she asserted, "and the reason is chewing gum. Human beings were not meant to be ruminating animals, and when they try it there is some kind of a rebellion of nature, and the muscles of the jaw become unduly enlarged."

Paul Whiteman and his jazz orchestra arrived yesterday on the Holland-American liner Rotterdam from their second triumphant tour of Europe and immediately began an equally triumphant invasion of New York City. Mrs. Whiteman, with two or three hundred of her husband's friends and a band, were on the Hoboken pier when Mr. Whiteman, plumper than ever, descended the gangplank.

"How well you look," said Mrs. Whiteman. "You've put on weight, haven't you?"

"And how!" replied the genial Paul. "Can you imagine being able to get the finest Pilsener at four cents a stein and not getting fat?"

With the customs formalities over, the Whiteman party entered six automobiles bearing large posters, saying, "Welcome home, Paul Whiteman." The cars, practically covered with multi-colored paper streamers, crossed on the Lackawanna ferry to Twenty-third Street and were met there by two motorcycle policemen, who escorted them to the City Hall.

A group of small boys in and about the pool at the base of Civic Virtue set up a cheer. Mr. Whiteman tok a good look at them and then turned to Mrs. Whiteman.

"That pool reminds me of the old-fashioned swimming hole," he said. "Gee, I'd like to join those kids."

"Aw, go wan, I dare you to," said a man.

Mr. Whiteman, without another word, began to climb over the spiked iron fence which guards the statue's grass plot. But he hadn't allowed for the added plumpness and ripped his trousers. It wasn't a serious rip, however, and with the aid of two policemen he negotiated the fence. Some of the boys offered to dive for coins.

"You mean pennies?" asked Paul.

So quarters they got for the next ten minutes. Then Paul went into City Hall to greet his old friend, Mayor Walker, and tell him how once in Berlin 100 students lined up outside the concert hall, each with a stein of good beer in hand and asked him to take a sip from each one.

"It's no use offering you the freedom of the city," said the Mayor, "its already yours."

But Mr. Whiteman responded modestly by saying his orchestra was always at the city's disposal and that he would give a concert on the Central Park Mall tomorrow afternoon.

BERLIN AGAIN HEARS GESSLER WILL RETIRE

Departure of Interallied Control Commission Is Also Reported as Certain.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 30.—The retirement of Minister of Defense Gessler and the withdrawal of the Interallied Control Commission in October were coincidently rumored in political circles here today. The commission's departure is regarded as certain, provided Germany becomes a member of the League of Nations in September. Thirty allied officers still engaged in the business of supervising the Reich's disarmament are known to have received orders to prepare to return home within three months.

Dr. Gessler's resignation from the Ministerial post which he has occupied for five years seems less probable, although his native Bavarian press already is naming Dr. M. J. R. Külz, Minister of the Interior, and, like Dr. Gessler, a Democrat, as the Defense Minister's successor. Dr. Gessler gets along well with General Von Seeckt, chief of the Reichswehr, who undoubtedly would have a potent word to say in the selection of his successor and might not relish the appointment of so staunch a Democrat as Dr. Külz.

While still officially a member of the Democratic Party, the present Minister has incurred the disfavor of that faction by his too lenient treatment of Reichswehr officers who participated in monarchistic demonstrations. Hence there have been frequent rumors of his impending retirement. He recently completed a vacation of several months and returned to Berlin tonight from a tour of provincial garrisons apparently in the best of health.

Incidentally, Vorwaerts, the organ of the Socialists, has launched an attack against both Ministers Gessler and Külz on the ground of their failure to put a stop to the military activities of anti-republican patriotic societies. Target practice with small calibre rifles may not be forbidden by law, Vorwaerts says, but military training with these weapons on German Army reservations decidedly is forbidden. The paper adds: "Small calibre shootings are practiced by reactionary organizations, not as sport, but to give their members military training. Where this is proved the societies involved should be disbanded and the Minister who fails to take such action violates Federal law. Law breaking by monarchistic bands is particularly flagrant in Bavaria and Wurttemburg. These States interpret the Federal statutes as they please, feeling secure against intervention by the Federal Ministry of the Interior. And conditions in that Ministry duplicate those in the Defense Ministry."

EARTHQUAKE IN FRANCE.

Brittany and Normandy Are Shaken for First Time in 40 Years.

PARIS, July 30.—For the first time in forty years Brittany and Normandy were shaken by a sharp earthquake between 2 and 2:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Reports from the Island of Jersey, Havre, Caen, Cherbourg, Granville, Rennes, Lorient, Carentan and other points announce tremors lasting from five to fifteen seconds, but no damage is reported except minor breakages inside of houses, where movable objects danced on the tables and sideboards.

WESTBOURNE, July 30 (AP).—An earthquake lasting several seconds was felt at this town on the Hampshire and Dorsetshire boundary at 2:26 o'clock this afternoon.

NOTED PERSONS HERE ON THE AQUITANIA

Dr. Harris E. Kirk, pastor of the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church of Baltimore, Md., who refused the more lucrative post of pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, because he felt that his greater duty lay with his old congregation, arrived yesterday on the Aquitania.

Dr. Kirk was accompanied by Dr. James Moffatt, Professor of the New Testament at the Free Church College, Glasgow, and Mrs. Moffatt. They left later in the day for Northfield, Mass., to attend the conference to be held there next week.

Dr. Moffatt, who is recognized as a leading translator of the Old and New Testaments into English, was asked if he approved of the up-to-date translations of the sacred books. He replied that if they had the effect of making the modern generation read them it was a good thing.

"A live mind is better than a dead one, always," he said.

Another passenger was Benjamin Lowenstein, President of the Nassau Smelting and Refining Works and the Tottenville Copper Company, S. I., who returned from his first visit to Europe in 43 years. The village chimes at Wallau near Wiesbaden, Germany, where he was born, rang for thirty minutes in his honor. During the war all church bells were melted to make shells. After the war, Mr. Lowenstein said, he thought the best gift he could make to his native village was a set of bells and it gave him more joy to hear their chimes than anything on his trip.

Justice Franklin Chase Hoyt of the Children's Court returned after a vacation in England and France, where he had left Mrs. Hoyt and their two daughters. They will return in the Fall. The Justice said he believed the Children's Courts in New York were the best of any place in the world and had no criticism to make of similar institutions abroad.

James Dunn, one of the best known reporters on The London Daily Mail because of his feature articles on the dismal side of life in the British metropolis, arrived on the Aquitania to visit the principal police courts in New York and Chicago.

Another passenger on the Aquitania was H. C. Blackiston, head of the Furness-Withy Steamship Lines in the United States, who crossed on the Olympic to London three weeks ago in connection with the proposed purchase of the White Star Line by his organization in England. He declined to comment on why the $35,000,000 deal had been suddenly called off.

Dr. Sydney Jones, for many years the senior surgeon of the Aquitania, had to stop in Southampton on account of illness and was replaced by Dr. C. P. O'Brien.

POOR HEALTH BLAMED FOR BROKER'S SUICIDE

Samuel Anable, a broker, was found dead with a bullet wound in his head and a pistol lying near his body in the bathroom of his apartment at 815 Park Avenue yesterday afternoon by his wife, Mrs. Francis Cook Anable. Assistant Medical Examiner Charles S. B. Cassasa said Mr. Anable had taken his own life in a moment of depression.

Daniel Roy Anable, a brother, of 100 West Eightieth Street, said the family knew of no reason, other than depression because of his health, why Mr. Anable should have shot himself. Mr. and Mrs. Anable returned from the country on Thursday night. He seemed to be in good spirits at breakfast. In the forenoon Mrs. Anable went shopping. According to a maid, Mr. Anable asked her to tidy up his room and then went to the bathroom.

When Mrs. Anable returned at 2 o'clock in the afternoon she went to the bathroom and found her husband's body with a bullet wound in the right temple. Calling for help, Dr. Littman, whose office is in the building, was summoned and found that Mr. Anable was dead. The police were notified.

Mr. Anable was formerly a director of the Patterson King Corporation before that firm of architects and contractors was reorganized as the King-Walsh Corporation. The present members of the corporation were unable to throw any light on Mr. Anable's activities.

He was born in Albany fifty-three years ago, according to his brother, and came to New York City about twenty-five years ago. He later went to Syracuse, and when the United States entered the European war he became a Captain in the army Air Service, serving as ground officer at Kelly Field, Texas. At the end of the war he went back to Syracuse and returned to New York about five years ago. According to his brother, Mr. Anable had been depressed over the state of his health for some time. But it is believed that he had not consulted a physician.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Henry Leavitt of Centre Moriches, L. I., and Miss Margaret Anable, living with her parents.

SWAM HELL GATE IN ESCAPE

Burglar Who Battled Current Four Hours Is Recaptured.

How Bernard Schnite, 18 years old, of 398 South Third Street, Brooklyn, escaped from the House of Refuge on Randall's Island a month ago and swam the treacherous waters of Hell Gate to Long Island City, Queens, was revealed yesterday when he was placed in the line-up of Brooklyn Headquarters, according to the police.

Schnite was sentenced in 1924 to twenty months on Randall's Island for burglary. On the night of June 24 last, shortly before 11 o'clock, he emerged from the cellar, where he had been attending the fires, plunged into Hell Gate and battled the current. Shortly before 3 o'clock he got ashore. He found a pair of overalls, begged 10 cents from a passerby and made his way to Manhattan.

Detectives Beck and Donnelly of the Liberty Avenue Precinct, in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, came upon Schnite yesterday in a pool room. Schnite recognized the policemen and he dashed out to the street. He tripped, fell and was captured.

OLD SWISS HOUSES FOUND.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 30.—While excavating near the shores of Lake Zurich recently workmen unearthed the remains of lake dwellings dating from a stone age of more than 7,000 years ago, when the natives built their huts high on piles above the water to escape attack from the wild beasts of the neighboring forests. Among the objects found are stone axes, spears and domestic utensils, which will join the large collection of prehistoric articles in the Museum of Berne.

Swiss lake dwellings were revealed to the world in 1853 by the great drought, when the level of lakes and rivers fell several yards below normal. So far as is known now they are unique in Europe.

These structures, which were supported by wooden platforms on which the dwellings were built, are made of strong piles of tree trunks driven into the bottom of the lake, evidently with great force.

The lake huts were made of a combination of clay and wood. Their floors, above the water, were made of large slabs of stone bearing inscriptions of the Stone Age in hieroglyphs.

CANCER EXPERT COMING.

Wife of Brazilian Surgeon Lands to Prepare for His Work Here.

Among the passengers to arrive yesterday on the United States liner George Washington was Mme. C. F. Pedroso, wife of the Brazilian surgeon whose new theories of the cause of cancer are attracting wide attention in Europe. Mme. Pedroso, who acts as her husband's assistant, said he would follow her to this country in a few weeks.

"He is anxious to introduce his work here," she said. "After years of investigation, he has found that the uneven exchange of oxygen and carbon-dioxide in the blood is the organic disharmony which produces a favorable condition for the various metabolic diseases, such as cancer, and infectious diseases, such as tuberculosis, to exist.

"He stumbled upon this knowledge accidently ten years ago. A patient suffering from a blood disease contracted scarlet fever. When the scarlet fever was cured, the other disease disappeared. In time of fever the circulation is increased. This led my husband to seek a connection between increased circulation and the cure of disease. He found that deficiencies in oxygen and carbon-dioxide in the blood were removed by increased circulation, and later discovered that certain disease bacteria only were able to exist when there were those deficiencies."

DIGGNG FOR MEHL NEAR END

Only One Mound to Be Removed in Search for Body.

A single mound of dirt remained last night in the open lots near Denton and Rockaway Avenues, Brooklyn, as the possible resting place of the body of John W. Mehl, a wealthy dairyman, who has been missing from his home at 1,155 Clarkson Avenue, Brooklyn, since April 29. Detectives and men from the Department of Highways, who since Tuesday have dug up the rest of the open land, will begin work on the final mound this morning.

Captain John J. McClosky, in charge of detectives in Brownsville, is certain that Mehl was killed and his body buried somewhere in the Canarsie section of Brooklyn. Gus Kahlu, owner of the White House Hotel, near by, told the police yesterday that on the night of Mehl's disappearance he saw several men deposit a large bundle about where the police are digging. This statement made Captain McClosky determine to examine all of the land there thoroughly.

Miss Grace Mehl, sister of the missing man, was reported yesterday as paying half of the $100 a day expense for the steam shovel which is being used in the excavating. She and her niece, Ruth, who were attacked on June 29 in the Mehl home, are guarded there by a police detail.

SEES NEED OF UNION WITH LATIN AMERICA

RUSSIA'S LAWS DISCUSSED

Arthur K. Kuhn Says Soviet Is Outside Family of Nations Because of Legal System.

PRESS HAILED AS POWER

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 30.—Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union, at the Institute of Politics today declared that it was necessary for the nations of the Western Hemisphere to develop an international system that would set new and higher standards in international affairs. In suggesting that Americans take an increased interest in the Pan-American movement, Dr. Rowe said that the United States was becoming so entangled in the European situation despite its desire to remain aloof, that many difficult problems were bound to develop, and in the solution of these problems the friendship of Latin America would be of great benefit to the United States.

"The basic principles of such an American system," he said, "must be the acceptance of two cardinal principles—non-aggression and the arbitration of all disputes whatever their character. Supplementing these two principles, the nations of America must develop a plan of mutual helpfulness through which the lessons of experience in the solution of the problems of each nation shall be placed at the disposal of all."

Referring to the Pan-American movement, Dr. Rowe said:

"One of the great needs of the present moment is a fuller realization on the part of the people of the United States of the far-reaching significance of the Pan-American movement and its importance to the future of our country. The future of our relations with Europe is full of uncertainties. Politically, we are endeavoring to maintain a position of aloofness, whereas financially we are becoming more and more entangled in the European situation. Out of this manifest contradiction many difficulties are certain to arise in the future.

"When confronted with these problems the good-will and active support of Latin America will be of great assistance to the United States. In the development of unity of policy and unity of viewpoint among the nations of America the United States is far more deeply and vitally interested than any of the countries to the south of us."

Dr. A. Mendelssohn-Bartheldy, a member of the German Peace Delegation in 1919 and an authority on financial and economic problems spoke of the importance of American public opinion to the reconstruction of Europe.

Says We Must Aid Europe.

"I am not thinking now of loans or the remittance of debts, nor even of the alms you might give to Europe," he said, "though it is obvious that a nation which in its free will, elected to decide the issue of a European war, cannot hold back now when the loss of the war has to be made up.

"But the United States should mean more, and they do, in fact, mean more to Europe than a great country from which material help may be forthcoming or, on the other hand, be withheld. Public opinion in the United States is the mirror in which Europe is trying to see itself, and no one who has not lived through these post-war years in Europe can possibly know what this means for us. Our face has been distorted by hatred and utter despair; it is the face of a man who has seen the black death standing at the foot of his bed and is now for the first time again, and timidly, asking his looking glass if he may consort with his fellow-beings again.

"And this is his appeal to you—keep the mirror of your judgment of Europe clean and you will do more for us than, as far as history goes, one country has ever done for another. Let this mirror punish every lie and every bit of pretense—but let it invite frankness."

Arthur K. Kuhn, President of the American branch of the International Law Association, discussed the international problems resulting from the diversity of legal systems in the various countries of the world. He said that Russia found herself practically outside the community of nations, not because of the Bolshevist economic régime but because of the resulting legal system which makes political relation with other nations difficult, if not impossible.

"Of course," said Mr. Kuhn, "the Russian legal system results from the economic goal which the leaders sought to realize. Laws must always be the effective sanction of political and economic policies. But as laws affect the lives and property of foreigners as well as nationals, the character of laws will determine whether international relations will be smooth or disturbed, or perhaps be rendered impossible for a time.

Political Power Over Courts.

"The Third Congress of Soviets resolved among other things to abolish private property, to annul the debts of the former Government, to establish universal labor servitude, to denounce all treaties with foreign nations. In carrying out these and other purposes the legal system of Soviet Russia wiped out all separation of the judicial system from the executive power and established a wide system of exception to the regular application of law through what is known as the revolutionary conscience of the Judges. It also gave extensive powers to representatives of the Government to intervene in all cases, civil or criminal. As foreign trade is declared to be a State monopoly, corporations and individuals alike are prevented from entering into binding transactions in ordinary international commerce.

"The wide diversity of law and legal conceptions thus created have made diplomatic relations with States recognizing individual rights all but impossible.

"Would a foreigner accustomed to the Anglo-Saxon or the modern Roman system of justice be willing to abide by the determination of a court governed by no binding rules, subject to the control of political functionaries and permitted to apply exceptions not fixed by statute?

"Peoples like to feel that they are entities. The tendency is to break off into smaller entities with sanction of the law. Thus is created a diversity of law, and I think that this diversity is a great part of international life."

The existence of an astonishing lack of uniformity in laws throughout the United States was shown by various speakers who argued that lawyers and Judges, the persons most interested, showed considerable apathy toward reform of the existing system.

Chinese Republic Discussed.

Henry K. Norton, lecturer on problems of the Far East, discussed the validity of China as a republic, outlining the rapid succession of political changes in the nation since the adoption of the first constitution in 1912. He discussed the present state of China, its law courts, military forces and its educational system, and added: "We are accustomed to say that educated citizenry must be back of any republic. In 1914 and 1915 it was estimated that only 1 per cent. of the population of China could read and write. A year later the estimate was 5 per cent. Present estimates range between 15 and 20 per cent. In other words, 80 per cent. of the Chinese people are unable to read or write today." He said the Chinese monarchy would not be re-established, no matter what political changes the future held for China.

Dean Frederic E. Lee of the University of Maryland, who returned to a discussion of the validity of the Chinese Republic said:

"Viewed from the aspects of the two main functions of a government, the protection of life and property and protection from outside aggression, the question of China's being a republic or not might be dismissed with the statement that China has no government. Perhaps a military dictatorship might be better for China today than a republic which can be representative in name only."

A spirited discussion of American and foreign newspapers developed today at the general conference on "public opinion in world affairs," presided over by Arthur S. Draper, assistant editor of The New York Herald Tribune.

At this discussion, Mr. Kuhn spoke of the "subsidized press," and some of those present understood him to mean that American as well as foreign newspapers received subsidies for publishing propaganda of various kinds. James E. King, an editorial writer of The Boston Transcript, inquired if Mr. Kuhn could recall any instance of a direct subsidy to reputable American newspapers. Mr. Kuhn admitted that he could not and said he meant foreign papers.

Calls Press Powerful Agent.

In opening the discussion on public opinion in world affairs, Mr. Draper said that the press was the most powerful agent in molding public opinion today. He mentioned the difficulties attendant on the work of the journalist and said that the newspaper man asked less for praise than for a sympathetic understanding of the difficulties under which he labored.

Norman Hapgood questioned Mr. Draper's belief that the increasing influence of journalism was assured, asserting that some people were of the opinion that the relative influence of newspapers was likely to decrease rather than to increase. Several speakers were of the opinion that British newspapers were more thorough in their handling of news, while American newspapers were more enterprising.

Alfred C. Dieffenbach, editor of The Christian Register of Boston, maintained that controversy was the essence of journalism. He regarded a difference of opinion as a healthy sign, saying that it was for the public to judge of the merits of any controversy by reading the statements in newspapers whose views on the question under discussion differed.

At the round table discussion on mineral resources in their political aspects, Dr. H. Foster Bain, former Director of the United States Bureau of Mines, told of how the price of tin for the entire world is fixed every day by one man in Singapore.

"The resident manager of the Straits Trading Company receives cabled offers from all sources for tin," he said. "He takes these offers and the price at which tin closed in London the previous day, retires to a room, studies the information, including the stock on hand, possibility of future sales and then announces the price of tin for the day. Every buyer gets his tin at this price whether he offered more or less. If he offered less he can of course refuse to buy, but hat is presumably one of the factors which the resident manager considers in fixing the prices."

See Aid to British Industry.

Dr. Bain and Charles P. Perin, consulting engineer, of New York City, said that the effect of this monopolistic control might well be to create a preference for British industries.

Dr. Bain was asked if the breaking of the tin monopoly would result in increased efficiency in the industry. He was of the opinion that monopolistic control had kept alive many wasteful and inefficient smelting plants.

The members of the round table believed that high import duties on some minerals did not serve to protect American industry. Mr. Perin referred to the 300 per cent. duty on tungsten, and said that removal of this tariff would permit American business men to compete with the British alloy steel industry, since the tungsten, a necessary ingredient, could then be imported in large quantities and at a satisfactory price.

Dr. Charles K. Leith of the University of Wisconsin, leader of the round table, said that the tariffs on some metals were based on forlorn hopes of non-scientific investigators and Congressmen that these metals would be found in sufficient quantities in the United States. He declared that American geologists were practically unanimous in condemning the exhaustion of the small American reserves which resulted from the high tariff.

MLLE. CURIE'S TROTH A RADIUM ROMANCE

PARIS, July 30 (AP).—Mlle. Irene Curie, daughter of Mme. Curie, co-discoverer with her late husband of radium, is to be married, probably at the end of September, to Dr. F. Joliot, who has been working in the same laboratory with Mme. and Mlle. Curie on radium experiments.

Mme. Curie and Irene are in Brazil at the present time, having gone there a month ago with a group of French savants to give a series of lectures. They will return to Paris in late September, when the marriage is expected to take place.

Mlle. Curie is mainly interested in science, and recently made important discoveries in radioactivity. She is 26 years of age, and Dr. Joliot is two or three years younger.

Two Lawyers of the Same Name.

The late Abraham Goodman, attorney, at 299 Broadway, who died last Tuesday after undergoing an operation, was not Abraham Goodman, attorney, at 1,482 Broadway. The latter said the published death notices had unwittingly caused him much embarrassment through the many messages of condolence his family was receiving from friends and clients who had not distinguished between the two lawyers. In addition to having the same name, he said, both had also been Assemblymen, a coincidence that had increased the confusion.

ANDREWS ARRIVES IN FRANCE TODAY

MIQUELON CURB UNLIKELY

PARIS, July 30.—Brig. Gen. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, is expected in Paris tomorrow to enlist the support of the French Government in his fight to dry up the United States. Having obtained the cooperation of Great Britain, General Andrews hopes to induce French officials to prevent shipments of large quantities of wines and champagnes said to be leaving each week from French ports bound for secret rendezvous off the American coast.

The so-called twelve-mile treaty which the American Government proposed to France nearly a year ago remains buried in a committee of the Chamber of Deputies because of strong opposition to it. The treaty would authorize search and in some instances seizure of French rum-runners within the twelve-mile limit.

There is not the slightest chance for the agreement at the present session of Parliament, as it has more than enough to do with financial measures. Therefore the most General Andrews can expect is a promise of aid within the bounds of the present treaties. It is an open secret in Paris that many persons are getting rich on "legitimate" shipping of wines, brandies and champagne; to the Island of St. Pierre, Miquelon, off the coast of New Foundland. This island, which is a possession of France, has become one of the most active bases of operations for bootleggers of all nationalities, among whom are some Frenchmen.

There is nothing now to prevent the loading of a ship at Havre, Bordeaux or some other French port with the finest wines of France and clearing for St. Pierre without any attempt at concealment. Once the cargo is unloaded at St. Pierre and turned over to the "agent" responsibility of the original shipper ceases. It will be difficult for General Andrews to obtain any satisfaction from the French regarding this character of rum running, for to all intents and purposes it is a legal business proposition.

There is another class of rum-runners, however, who are believed to operate between French ports and points around the twelve-mile limit, and to this General Andrews may devote most of his attention. The American prohibition enforcement chief may also find it worth while to investigate persistent reports from the wine-growing districts of France that American agents have been canvassing the territory and buying for delivery at yet undetermined future dates all the available stocks of wines.

Far-fetched as it may seem to Americans in America, a report has gained great circulation in these districts that prohibition will soon be modified to permit light wines and beers, and that these advance purchases are being made in anticipation by agents who know what is coming. Another version is that big purchases are being made by bootleggers who are scheming to take large quantities of French wines to America by the present underground methods.

WOMAN AND DAUGHTER FINED AS SHOPLIFTERS

A mother and a daughter were fined $50 each and a German governess escaped with a suspended sentence when they were arraigned yesterday before Justices Kelly, Nolan and Direnzo in Special Sessions on shoplifting charges. Mrs. Mary Tapola, 48 years old, an employe of the Hotel Pennsylvania, had pleaded guilty to the theft of two dresses, worth $38.24, from Macy's on July 20 last, while her daughter, Mrs. Marian Abrams, 19 years old, of 600 West 189th Street, who had pretended to be a stranger to the older woman, was convicted after a trial.

Mrs. Agnes Breck, a probation officer, testified at the daughter's trial that when Mrs. Tapola pleaded guilty and assumed responsibility for the theft, in which they were caught by detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association, the older woman was poorly dressed, while the daughter wore expensive clothes. This was part of the plan, she said, to have it appear that they were not related and had met by chance in the store.

The pair came here from their home in Crosby, Minn., about two years ago. The daughter was a student in the University of Minnesota for a time, but wanted to become a stage dancer. She stopped with girl chums here, while her mother was forced to seek employment in the hotel. They paid the fines.

Theresa Cossens, 23 years old, the governess, of 202 Riverside Drive, was released on parole on her plea of guilty to the theft of articles valued at $49 from the same store on the same day. Probation officers reported that the girl never before had been arrested and came of an excellent family in Germany.

NO TYPHOID MENACE IN HUDSON, HE SAYS

State Health Commissioner Would Not Close Palisades Beach if He Could.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 30.—The danger of typhoid fever to the thousands who use the bathing beach of Palisades Interstate Park on the Hudson River opposite Dyckman Street, New York City, is not grave enough to warrant closing the beach, even if he had the authority to do so, Dr. Matthias Nicoll Jr., State Commissioner of Health, wrote today to Dr. Louis I. Harris, Health Commissioner of that city. His letter was a reply to a communication from Dr. Harris, transmitting a protest from Edward Hatch Jr. of New York against the use of the beach.

Dr. Nicoll said he was heartily in sympathy with Mr. Hatch's annual crusade for the restoration of the Hudson, North and East Rivers to "the pristine state of purity which existed in the days of Henry Hudson," but he doubted the practicability of Mr. Hatch's aims.

Dr. Nicoll said that under the law he probably would have authority to order the City of New York to cease polluting the waters with sewage, but that such disposal would run into hundreds of millions of dollars and he doubted that the expenditure of such sums would be justified in the near future. As to warning the people from the use of the Interstate Park beach, he said, the beach was entirely in the State of New Jersey, which removed it from his jurisdiction. He advised that the protest be lodged with the Palisades Interstate Park Commissioners.

He said he had directed his department to take up with the Park Commissioners the advisability of determining by analysis the exact amount of pollution along the beach.

Dr. Nicoll contradicted a statement of Dr. Harris concerning the typhoid fever outbreak in Palisade Park in 1924, denying that it was traced to drinking water in the park. The source of pollution was entirely outside the park, he said.

DWYER OUT OF TOMBS THREE TIMES A WEEK

Court Permits Him to Be Taken to Have Fractured Jaw and Heel Treated.

Federal Judge Julian W. Mack, as a member of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, yesterday directed that William V. Dwyer, convicted head of a $40,000,000 liquor syndicate, be taken from the Tombs by deputy marshals every Monday, Wednesday and Friday to receive treatments for a compound fracture of the lower jaw and paplamoa of the right heel. The order directs that he is not to leave the jurisdiction of the court and not to remain out of the Tombs more than four hours on any one day.

The petition for the order, presented by Benjamin F. Spellman, Dwyer's attorney, was accompanied by certificates from Dr. Melville M. Marks, a dental specialist, of 69 Central Avenue, Far Rockaway, Queens, and Dr. Isaac C. Cohen, a physician and pediatrist, of 127 West Forty-sixth Street. Dr. Marks certified that he had been treating Dwyer for a fracture of the jaw caused by an automobile acident and had found it necessary to remove fragments of the bone and several teeth.

As Judge Mack's order does not permit Dwyer to leave this jurisdiction it will be necessary for Dr. Marks to come from Far Rockaway to meet him. The order directs that Dwyer be taken to Dr. Cohen's office or to any dental office in this jurisdiction. Two Deputy United States marshals are to remain with him constantly when he is out of the Tombs.

Mr. Spellman is working on Dwyer's appeal papers, which he expects to have ready in a few days. Judge Mack, having presided in the Federal District Court at Dwyer's trial, is barred from acting upon the appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals, attorneys said yesterday. Neither, it was said, could he act on an application for a stay which would result in Dwyer being admitted to bail. Yesterday's application, however, was concerned solely with Dwyer's physical condition.

AN ERROR IN THE CASE OF W. H. ANDERSON

Mistake in Typography Made The Times Say He Was Sentenced for "Perjury."

A typographical error in a news article in THE NEW YORK TIMES printed on July 21 made one of the opening sentences in the article read that William H. Anderson, former Superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League, who had testified the previous day before the State Crime Commission, spoke "from the standpoint of one who has spent nine months in Sing Sing for perjury." The word "perjury" should have read "forgery."

Anderson was never accused of perjury. He was convicted of forgery in the third degree and was sentenced on Feb. 8, 1924, to from one to two years in Sing Sing. He began serving his sentence on March 25, 1924, and was released on parole on Christmas Eve, 1924, after serving nine months. Subsequently he was released from parole.

EXPLAINS ALCOHOL RULING.

Lawyer Says Denial of Permit to W. J. Higgins Was Without Prejudice.

Lewis Landes, counsel for William J. Higgins, said yesterday that the account of the court proceedings printed in THE TIMES last Thursday concerning a motion by his client for an order compelling the Prohibition Director to issue a permit for the purchase of alcohol was inaccurate.

He explained that Federal Judge A. N. Hand, a District Judge, did not nullify a decision of the Circuit Court, for he could not do so even if he had so desired, and that he did not hold that Mr. Higgins could have his basic permit to denature alcohol and yet not withdraw alcohol. His decision, according to Mr. Landes, was that wherever there is a refusal by the administrator for a permit, the refusal could be reviewed by a court of equity. Mr. Landes said that an appeal had been taken from Judge Hand's decision.

He also said that Judge Thacher, in sustaining the refusal of the authorities to issue to his client a permit to purchase 40,000 gallons of denatured alcohol, based his refusal on the failure of the applicant to show the possible amount of business done by him and that the denial was without prejudice.

The Uniform Trust for Public Uses

THE relief of suffering, the increase of knowledge, the spiritual guidance of life, these ideals have occupied the minds of the greatest leaders of thought throughout the centuries. They have resulted in the establishment of hospitals, colleges and religious foundations. Such institutions require endowments of money, the administration of which, in accordance with the wishes of the founder, has often been a difficult problem.

Certain leaders in philanthropic undertakings have recently evolved the Uniform Trust for Public Uses, designed to carry out the intentions of the maker of a gift or bequest for charitable, educational or religious purposes and to perpetuate the usefulness of the fund.

This form of Trust has the approval of many great organizations devoted to the public good. This company, which has administered private and public trusts since 1830 has been the first institution in New York to adopt the Uniform Trust for Public Uses.

If you contemplate establishing a fund for the benefit of the public, we offer our services as Trustee for its administration under this new, complete and far-seeing instrument of trust.
